Steele Man Crash Victim

A 58-year-old Steele man was killed when his pickup truck ran off a bridge and plunged into a creek at 9 a.m. Saturday on a township road two and one-half miles southeast of Rives in Dunklin county.

The highway patrol said the victim, Mark Chaney, apparently drowned when the truck landed upside down in the water.

A Dexter man is in critical condition at Doctors hospital in Poplar Bluff following a two - car accident at 10:15 p.m. Saturday on Missouri 114, one and one-half miles east of Dexter.

Hershel Sitz, 56, was severely burned after his car and a car driven by Jimmy Hogan, 20, Gray Ridge, collided. Troopers said the Sitz car pulled onto the highway and was hit in the rear by the Hogan car. The Sitz car then hit a utility pole and caught fire, troopers reported.

Sustaining minor cuts and bruises were passengers in the Hogan car, David Rice, 17, and Roger Carter, 18, both of Essex, Farrel Deal, 17, and Carol Deal, 15, both of Sikeston. They were treated at Missouri Delta Community hospital, Sikeston.

Two Mississippians were injured in an accident Saturday at 3:15 p.m. on Missouri 80, three miles east of East Prairie.

Troopers said a pickup truck driven by Ronald Haney, 23, East Prairie, pulled onto the highway from a sideroad and into the path of a car driven by Augustus Holley, 44, Shannon, Miss.

Injured were two passengers in the car, Elizabeth Holley, 35, broken right foot, and Janice Holley, 17, minor leg injury. Both were taken to Missouri Delta Community hospital in Sikeston. Haney was charged with failure to yield right of way.

U.S. Unit Struck by Cong Raid

By ROBERT TUCKMAN

SAIGON, South Viet Nam AP -- U. S. air cavalrymen clashed with North Vietnamese soldiers in close-quarter fighting today in the central highlands and reported killing 102 of the enemy.

The U. S. military command said the battle broke out when a platoon of the 1st Cavalry, Airmobile, Division was attacked at hand grenade range by a "sizeable" North Vietnamese force.

The platoon suffered heavy casualties before reinforcements arrived, a military spokesman sid. Air strikes were called in to hammer at the attacking Communists.

Gen. William C. Westmoreland, commander of U.S. forces in Viet Nam, said the North Vietnamese are infiltrating 7,000 troops a month into South Viet Nam.

Westmoreland told U.S. News and World Report that it is likely "there will be an increase in infiltration" in the near future.

The four - star commander estimated that there are now about 50,000 North Vietnamese regulars in South Viet Nam.

The action, part of Operation Paul Revere 4, raged 22 miles southwest of the U.S. Army Special Forces camp at Plei Djereng, scene of North Vietnamese probes and skirmishes for more than a week.

Ground action was reported light elsewhere, but Korean marines operating near the South China Sea coast reported killing 91 Viet Cong Sunday in a two - and - a - half - hour battle seven miles northwest of Quang Ngai City. A Korean spokesman said the marines clashed with a reinforced Viet Cong company of 200 men, the largest enemy unit they have met since moving into the area last August.

In the air, Guam-based B52 bombers staged three raids today on enemy positions in South Viet Nam, two of them in Communist War Zone C in Tay Ninh Province.

A few hours after the giant Stratoforts struck, 1,200 men of the U.S. 25th Infantry Division were lifted by helicopter into the target area, moving to within 1,500 yards of the Cambodian border.

Brig. Gen. G. G. O'Connor, the assistant division commander, said his forces would continue to search for the Viet Cong in the area "but it seems now that they have fled across the border for sanctuary."

In the central highlands fighting, a U.S. spokesman said the North Vietnamese hit the American cavalrymen initially from all sides.

The spokesman said contact diminished this afternoon but was still continuing at last report. He said U.S. casualties so far were light.

In addition to two raids on Tay Ninh Province, B52 bombers also struck today at a suspected Viet Cong troop concentration 32 miles northwest of the coastal city of Qui Nhon.

U.S. air action over North Viet Nam was limited sharply again Sunday by bad weather and poor visibility. U.S. pilots flew only 45 strike missions, most of them against coastal targets in the southern panhandle.

Supreme Court Upholds Georgia Governor Ruling

WASHINGTON AP -- The Supreme Court stayed today a three - judge federal court ruling that the Georgia Legislature cannot elect that state's next governor.

The effect is to freeze the tangled Georgia election situation until at least Dec. 5, the date set by the high court for hearing argument.

The three-judge court in Atlanta on Nov. 17 ruled unconstitutional a Georgia Constitution provision that the legislature choose between two top candidates when no candidate for governor gets a majority of the popular vote.

The three-judge court ruling barred a choice by the legislature between Democrat Lester G. Maddox and Republican Howard (Bo) Callaway.

Neither Maddox nor Callaway received the required clear majority for election as governor in the Nov. 8 election.

The Supreme Court said an appeal from the three-judge court ruling had been filed by Ben W. Fortson, Georgia secretary of state. Fortson also asked the lower court judgment be stayed pending final action by the highest tribunal on the secretary's appeal.

The Supreme Court said further that all of the parties involved had requested speeded-up action. Because of this the high tribunal agreed to the Dec. 5 hearing of arguments.

Georgia's attorney general, in asking for delay in further lower court action, gained a temporary ally—the American Civil Liberties Union. The ACLU sought unsuccessfully last week to void the state constitution provision.

Republican Howard Callaway drew 451,032 general election votes for governor to 448,459 for Democrat Lester Maddox. But former Gov. Ellis Arnall got 57,832 write - in votes -- keeping either nominee from the 50-plus per cent required to win.

Atty. Gen. Arthur K. Bolton was in Washington today, backed by Charles Morgan, regional director of the ACLU, to ask that the lower court's ruling be stayed until after the Supreme Court has heard Bolton's appeal.

The extended stay would delay action by the lower court on petitions calling for a runoff or a special election.

Francis Shackelford and Emmet J. Bondurant, lawyers for a citizens group which had joined the ACLU in attacking the constitutional provision, also are in Washington. They are seeking to have the lower court ruling upheld promptly.

A stay until Nov. 27 already is in effect, set by the three-judge panel in Atlanta which ruled last Thursday that a showdown in a malapportioned legislature would give unfair weight to some voters' ballots. The three federal jurists proposed no alternative.

Gov. Carl E. Sanders is due to leave office Jan. 10 but has said he would remain until a successor is chosen.

Italian Proposal Supported

By WILLIAM N. OATIS

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The United States today rejected once more the seating of Red China in the United Nations but announced it would support a plan offered by Italy and five other countries for a full high-level study of the China problem.

In a policy speech before the U.N. General Assembly, Ambassador Arthur Goldberg repeated the traditional U.S. opposition to the admission of the Peking government and declared the United States could not accept any move to expel Nationalist China.

"There is no conceivable justification for the expulsion of the Republic of China," he told the 121-nation assembly. "The Republic of China is a founding member of this organization and its role has been outstanding."

Goldberg stressed that the problem of deciding Chinese representation in the United Nations was an "important question" and as such must be resolved by a two-thirds majority. The United States is among sponsors of a resolution reaffirming previous decisions of the assembly on the two-thirds rule.

On the proposed study of the China question, Goldberg quickly indicated U.S. support. But this plan would not sidetrack the vote on the seating of Peking at this session. It would be considered only after the vote on a resolution sponsored by Albania, Cambodia and nine other Communist and nonaligned nations to expel Nationalist China and seat Communist China.

Suggests Early Mailing

Post Office Expects Mail Rush

The annual Christmas mailing rush - already underway at the Sikeston Post Office - is expected to increase by "considerable amounts" in the next few weeks, Ewart Taylor, acting postmaster said today.

Parcel post deliveries during the past two weeks have averaged about a 20 per cent increase over the amount handled during the same period last year, Taylor said.

Many of the parcel post packages handled in the past few weeks were going to Viet Nam, he said.

All parcel post to be sent to Viet Nam should now be sent by "Air Mail" to have the best chance for delivery by Christmas, he added.

To better insure mail delivery in time for Christmas both in the United States and abroad, Taylor made the following suggestions: Mail early, use zip codes, send Christmas cards by first class and be sure to insure any parcel post packages.

No additional employees are expected to be hired to handle the Christmas rush.

"We feel we can do the job more efficiently by allowing experienced personnel to work overtime," Taylor said.

Most mail delivered in Sikeston is distributed by foot. The office here serves the immediate area with eight foot routes, three mounted routes (curb, foot and parcel post combined) and four rural routes.

The Sikeston Post Office is a sectional center serving 53 Post Offices in Southeast Missouri. The area served is bounded on the North by Highway 60, on the East by the Mississippi River, on the South by the Arkansas border, and on the West by Dexter. Bloomfield, Mo. and Cairo, Ill. also are served by the office here.

Because of the regional nature of the setup, use of the zip code number is most important, Taylor said. The first three numbers of the zip code designate the mail for the Sikeston office; the last two numbers mark it for one of the 53 offices served by the center here.

The zip code of any city may be obtained by calling or writing the Sikeston Post Office, Taylor said.

Sikeston's zip code is 63801. It should be used on all return addresses.

The operation has been underway for about two years here.

The flow of mail has gradually but steadily increased through the office here, Taylor noted.

The office normally handles about a quarter of a million pieces of mail per week, he said.

The Christmas season always brings an increase of mail at the office. The increase over last year's average is expected to run from seven to ten per cent this year, Taylor noted.

The importance of mailing early cannot be stressed too much, Taylor emphasized.

Christmas cards haven't started coming in yet. Card mailing is expected to come into full swing about Dec. 1, he stated.

"We recommend that persons sending Christmas cards use five cent stamps to insure the same service they receive for a letter, "Taylor said.

The extra cent will insure that the card will be forwarded, if the person has moved, or it will be returned to the return address when a person mails by first class.

Cards sent by third class mail will be discarded if the person to whom the card is addressed has moved, he pointed out.

Insuring parcel post does not guarantee it will reach its destination. But the mailer will be reimbursed for loss or breakage, if he insures his packages. A 20 cent fee is charged for a package valued at $15. Rates increase proportionately with the value of the package.

When sending a parcel post package, Taylor stressed, the person should enclose a card inside the package with the address, the return address and a list of the items being mailed. This is added insurance that the package will reach its destination.

All packages sent should be well packed, cushioned, placed in a sturdy cardboard box, wrapped with heavy brown paper and tied with a cord.

Motorbike, Car Collide; Rider Suffers Injury

A Sikeston youth, injured Sunday when the motorbike he was riding collided with a car, is reported in satisfactory condition today in Missouri Delta Community hospital.

Robert Porter Jr., 16, the son of Robert L. Porter, 701 South Prairie, suffered back injuries, cuts to the face and a possible slight concussion as a result of a collision at South Kingshighway and Malone. The car was driven by Clarence Murphy, route three.

These conclusions followed months of hearing hundreds of witnesses and examining a mountainous array of evidence.

But still pouring forth are books and magazine articles challenging both the commission's report and the adequacy of its investigation.

New Optimist Club Has First Program Meeting

The new Sikeston Optimist Club had for its first program speaker at the 7 a.m. meeting today at the Rustic Rock. The Rev. Robert E. Lively, new pastor of Trinity Baptist church, addressed the guests on "Heritage and Freedom." Present were 45 members and guests, with President John Harper, in charge of the program.

The club closed its charter membership last Thursday noon with 51 members, and preparations are now being made for a gala event to be held on charter night, Jan. 14, and for the "Friend of the Boy" organization for Sikeston.

Lively told his listeners, "we have a tendency to take our freedom for granted, but I urge all of you to take a trip to Plymouth Rock, and see for yourselves the struggles and difficulties our founding fathers had to live through their first winter. You will find that they were forced to ration their food, in order to live through the winter, and gave their first Thanksgiving to God for their survival.

"They also gave thanks for the cause and their mission for coming to the new world," the Rev. Mr. Lively continued, "so that they would be free to worship their God. There was once a slogan for making the world safe for democracy. But there is also a new way to make 'democracy free for the world', by being big enough to accept the rights of democracy. Freedom is not something that is handed on a silver platter, but

WASHINGTON AP -- The Supreme Court stayed today a three-judge federal court ruling that the Georgia Legislature cannot elect that state's next governor.

The effect is to freeze the tangled Georgia election situation until at least Dec. 5, the date set by the high court for hearing argument.

The three-judge court in Atlanta on Nov. 17 ruled unconstitutional a Georgia Constitution provision that the legislature choose between two top candidates when no candidate for governor gets a majority of the popular vote.

The three-judge court ruling barred a choice by the legislature between Democrat Lester G. Maddox and Republican Howard (Bo) Callaway.

Neither Maddox nor Callaway received the required clear majority for election as governor in the Nov. 8 election.

The Supreme Court said an appeal from the three-judge court ruling had been filed by Ben W. Fortson, Georgia secretary of state. Fortson also asked the lower court judgment be stayed pending final action by the highest tribunal on the secretary's appeal.

The Supreme Court said further that all of the parties involved had requested speeded-up action. Because of this the high tribunal agreed to the Dec. 5 hearing of arguments.

Georgia's attorney general, in asking for delay in further lower court action, gained a temporary ally—the American Civil Liberties Union. The ACLU sought unsuccessfully last week to void the state constitution provision.

Republican Howard Callaway drew 451,032 general election votes for governor to 448,459 for Democrat Lester Maddox. But former Gov. Ellis Arnall got 57,832 write-in votes -- keeping either nominee from the 50-plus per cent required to win.

Atty. Gen. Arthur K. Bolton was in Washington today, backed by Charles Morgan, regional director of the ACLU, to ask that the lower court's ruling be stayed until after the Supreme Court has heard Bolton's appeal.

The extended stay would delay action by the lower court on petitions calling for a runoff or a special election.

Francis Shackelford and Emmet J. Bondurant, lawyers for a citizens group which had joined the ACLU in attacking the constitutional provision, also are in Washington. They are seeking to have the lower court ruling upheld promptly.

A stay until Nov. 27 already is in effect, set by the three-judge panel in Atlanta which ruled last Thursday that a showdown in a malapportioned legislature would give unfair weight to some voters' ballots. The three federal jurists proposed no alternative.

Gov. Carl E. Sanders is due to leave office Jan. 10 but has said he would remain until a successor is chosen.

Italian Proposal Supported

By WILLIAM N. OATIS

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The United States today rejected once more the seating of Red China in the United Nations but announced it would support a plan offered by Italy and five other countries for a full high-level study of the China problem.

Suggests Early Mailing

Post Office Expects Mail Rush

The annual Christmas mailing rush - already underway at the Sikeston Post Office - is expected to increase by "considerable amounts" in the next few weeks, Ewart Taylor, acting postmaster said today.

Parcel post deliveries during the past two weeks have averaged about a 20 per cent increase over the amount handled during the same period last year, Taylor said.

Many of the parcel post packages handled in the past few weeks were going to Viet Nam, he said.

All parcel post to be sent to Viet Nam should now be sent by "Air Mail" to have the best chance for delivery by Christmas, he added.

To better insure mail delivery in time for Christmas both in the United States and abroad, Taylor made the following suggestions: Mail early, use zip codes, send Christmas cards by first class and be sure to insure any parcel post packages.

No additional employees are expected to be hired to handle the Christmas rush.

"We feel we can do the job more efficiently by allowing experienced personnel to work overtime," Taylor said.

Most mail delivered in Sikeston is distributed by foot. The office here serves the immediate area with eight foot routes, three mounted routes (curb, foot and parcel post combined) and four rural routes.

The Sikeston Post Office is a sectional center serving 53 Post Offices in Southeast Missouri. The area served is bounded on the North by Highway 60, on the East by the Mississippi River, on the South by the Arkansas border, and on the West by Dexter. Bloomfield, Mo. and Cairo, Ill. also are served by the office here.

Because of the regional nature of the setup, use of the zip code number is most important, Taylor said. The first three numbers of the zip code designate the mail for the Sikeston office; the last two numbers mark it for one of the 53 offices served by the center here.

The zip code of any city may be obtained by calling or writing the Sikeston Post Office, Taylor said.

Sikeston's zip code is 63801. It should be used on all return addresses.

The operation has been underway for about two years here.

The flow of mail has gradually but steadily increased through the office here, Taylor noted.

The office normally handles about a quarter of a million pieces of mail per week, he said.

The Christmas season always brings an increase of mail at the office. The increase over last year's average is expected to run from seven to ten per cent this year, Taylor noted.

The importance of mailing early cannot be stressed too much, Taylor emphasized.

Christmas cards haven't started coming in yet. Card mailing is expected to come into full swing about Dec. 1, he stated.

"We recommend that persons sending Christmas cards use five cent stamps to insure the same service they receive for a letter, "Taylor said.

The extra cent will insure that the card will be forwarded, if the person has moved, or it will be returned to the return address when a person mails by first class.

Cards sent by third class mail will be discarded if the person to whom the card is addressed has moved, he pointed out.

Insuring parcel post does not guarantee it will reach its destination. But the mailer will be reimbursed for loss or breakage, if he insures his packages. A 20 cent fee is charged for a package valued at $15. Rates increase proportionately with the value of the package.

When sending a parcel post package, Taylor stressed, the person should enclose a card inside the package with the address, the return address and a list of the items being mailed. This is added insurance that the package will reach its destination.

All packages sent should be well packed, cushioned, placed in a sturdy cardboard box, wrapped with heavy brown paper and tied with a cord.

New Date Set For Bids on Dexter Hospital

DEXTER -- The board of directors of Dexter Memorial hospital last week received notice from the hospital architects, Hewitt and Royer of Kansas City, that it is necessary to reschedule the date for receiving bids due to failure to receive the necessary federal wage rate determination in time to receive bids Tuesday.

The board has been notified that the Department of Labor is making a special investigation of actual wages being paid on construction projects in the Stoddard county area, and it is due to the amount of time involved in making such an investigation that the Department of Labor was unable to publish the rates in time for the previously scheduled date Tuesday.

Judge Goodman Dies Today

KENNETT, Mo. AP -- Judge Arthur W. Goodman Jr., 54, of Missouri Circuit Court District 35, for Stoddard and Dunklin counties, died today in a Memphis, Tenn., hospital.

Goodman, of Kennett, had been a circuit judge since 1952.

He died following abdominal surgery for a bleeding ulcer.

New Optimist Club Has First Program Meeting

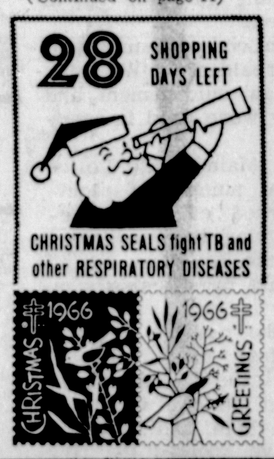

The new Sikeston Optimist Club had for its first program speaker at the 7 a.m. meeting today at the Rustic Rock. The Rev. Robert E. Lively, new pastor of Trinity Baptist church, addressed the guests on "Heritage and Freedom." Present were 45 members and guests, with President John Harper, in charge of the program.

The club closed its charter membership last Thursday noon with 51 members, and preparations are now being made for a gala event to be held on charter night, Jan. 14, and for the "Friend of the Boy" organization for Sikeston.

Lively told his listeners, "we have a tendency to take our freedom for granted, but I urge all of you to take a trip to Plymouth Rock, and see for yourselves the struggles and difficulties our founding fathers had to live through their first winter. You will find that they were forced to ration their food, in order to live through the winter, and gave their first Thanksgiving to God for their survival.

"They also gave thanks for the cause and their mission for coming to the new world," the Rev. Mr. Lively continued, "so that they would be free to worship their God. There was once a slogan for making the world safe for democracy. But there is also a new way to make 'democracy free for the world', by being big enough to accept the rights of democracy. Freedom is not something that is handed on a silver platter, but

Seven Treated

Seven patients were admitted to the Missouri Delta Community hospital emergency room Saturday and Sunday.

Shirley Fields of East St. Louis, fell off horse, injuring right arm; Nellie Reynolds, stuck piece of glass in right finger; David Loren Rice of Essex, car accident on Highway 114; Edward Eason, furnace blew up in face; Farrel Wayne Deal, car accident one mile east of Dexter; Theda Farrell of Charleston, injured ankle when he stepped in hole while hunting; Sharon Blasingame of Blodgett, glass bowl broke and cut right wrist.

Shotgun Taken

A 12-gauge Beretta shotgun was reported stolen from a truck parked behind Daugherty's tavern Saturday night. The gun, owned by M. A. Freeman of Morehouse, was taken between 6:30-11:30 p.m. Mrs. Freeman said.

St. Johns Bayou District Meet Here Tuesday

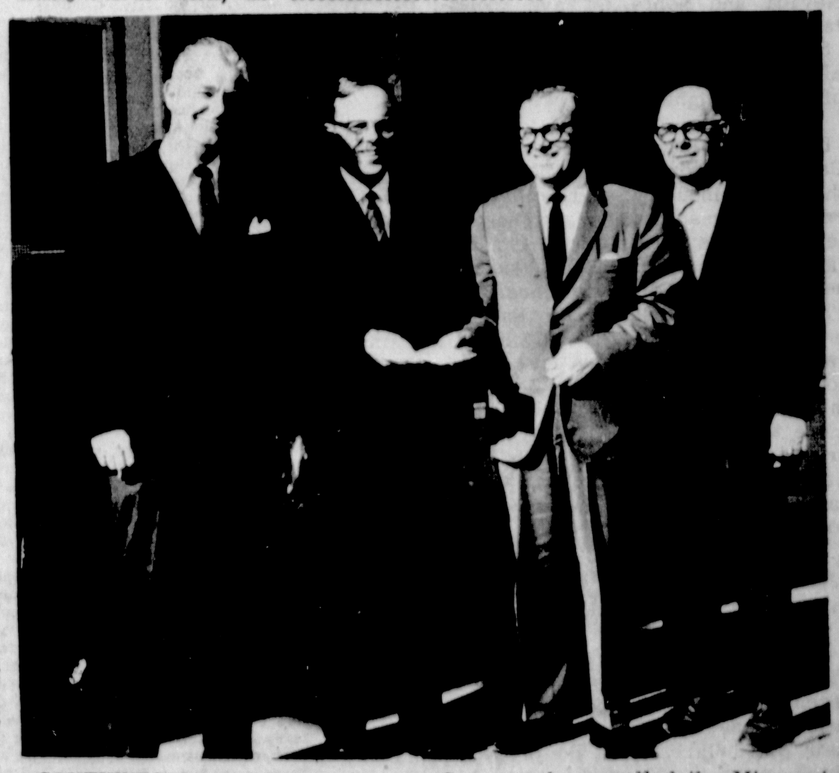

A meeting of the St. John's Bayou Basin Drainage District will be Tuesday at 1:30 p.m. at the Fabick Brothers building on South Main St. The meeting will be sponsored by the U.S. Department of Agriculture and Soil Conservation Service.

The meeting has been called for all interested parties in Scott, Mississippi and New Madrid counties. The preliminary investigation report for the St. Johns Bayou Basin watershed will be made available, explained and discussed.

Officers of the St. Johns Bayou drainage district are Everett B. Gee, president; John H. Edwards, vice president; Jesse H. Wilkins, secretary; W. H. Ice, engineer; T.F. Hunter, W. C. Moore, Thomas B. Allen, members, and Harry H. Bock, attorney for the district.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

ONE THANKSGIVING

One of the many things for which Americans can be thankful this Thanksgiving is that we now have only one Thanksgiving.

If you go home to California, Maine or Florida on November 24th, it will be Thanksgiving there too and you will not run the risk of finding adults at work and children in school.

A quarter of a century ago, it was different. Beginning in 1939 for a period of three years, we had two Thanksgiving Days. Tom Mahoney recalls the resulting "confusion, humor, recrimination and bitter dispute" in an October American Legion Magazine article, "When F.D.R. Juggled Thanksgiving," written from hitherto un-revealed Roosevelt papers at Hyde Park.

The idea was to give merchants a normal Christmas shopping period in a depression year when Thanksgiving by the usual calculation fell on the very last day of November.

It was not this but the way that it was handled that caused the trouble. Given a year's notice, everybody probably would have gone along.

But President Roosevelt sprang it suddenly to go into effect the same year. Though his attorney general had warned that it should be done, he didn't even give the governors advance warning and many did not go along.

Several hundred women who planned to be brides at Thanksgiving were pretty upset and wrote the White House. Then there were the football games, the hotels and convention planners and the calendar makers.

The article reveals that President Roosevelt wanted not only to move up the date but change it to Monday. But he dropped this part when Steve Early told him that Protestants, feeling it unlikely that people would come back to church on Monday after being there on Sunday, opposed it. Early said, "The Protestants will raise hell if you change their Thanksgiving celebration from Thursday to Monday."

There would have been even more trouble if F.D.R. had tried that change.

Ask any city boy what a sheriff does and he'll probably say: "He rides a horse and shoots outlaws."

Maybe so, on television. But, nowadays sheriffs' posses ride automobiles and sheriffs are as concerned with protecting their motoring constituents as they are in pursuing outlaws.

Demonstrating concern over modern traffic problems, the National Sheriffs Association has endorsed a type of "safety" license plate that casts a bright warning glow for up to 2,000 feet by light reflection.

Said Sheriff Malcolm McLeod of Lumberton, N.C., the Association's president: "We think they are an excellent law enforcement and safety aid. We wish they were used in every state."

A recent report by the Maine State Police points out that the annual number of night-time collisions with parked cars was reduced by 58 per cent during the years 1950 to 1963, compared with the five-year period before 1950, when that state began using such tags.

With the influence of the nation's sheriffs behind them, perhaps safety plates will, indeed, become standard issue in all states. Already 17 states and the District of Columbia issue about 22 million of them, and Montana, Nevada and Nebraska have adopted the new tags for 1966 and 1967.

Sheriffs still shoot outlaws. But, today they also are shooting - verbally - at another kind of outlaw: Highway dangers.

Reid Derrick, president of Laclede Gas Company, reports that: "For over a century the (gas) industry's growth was steady but relatively unspectacular. Then, in the nineteen twenties, came the development of pipeline which could withstand the high pressure needed for long-distance transmission of gas. This made it possible for the first time to bring natural gas, generally found in remote regions, to the populous market areas of the country. Today, a vast network of transmission pipelines - enough to circle the earth more than eight times at the equator - criss-crosses the nation and supplies one third of all America's energy needs. And the gas industry has grown to become the sixth largest in the country."

GONE THE OLD KITCHEN

There has been a lot of talk in Congress recently about the high cost of food in Eastern cities. Members have taken the floor to complain particularly about the price of potatoes - which were in short supply early this year because of freezes last year - and the rising cost of meats.

Yet, even in New York it is possible to find some fine food bargains these days. All one needs to do is drive out to the farm areas of eastern Long Island and stop at one of many roadside stands to pick up a 50-pound bag of potatoes for $2 and other specials in similar quantities.

The trouble is that most New Yorkers don't have kitchens big enough to "put up" tomatoes, beans, corn and other products when they are in season and low in price, or they don't have the time to spare for such old-fashioned chores. Indeed, many of them don't even know how to do it. And if they do, what will they do with a couple dozen jars of home preserves, a big sack of potatoes or the other goodies they could have? Their efficiency apartments they rent at such exorbitant prices don't have space for such essentials of living.

It is a strange commentary on civilization that it so often defeats its own purposes with the "progress" it achieves.

Consider yourself lucky if you still live where there is a stove of size ample enough to do the canning as well as preparing the evening meal and where you have a pantry that offers shelves long and deep to hold the goodies that came from your garden or a nearby farm.

You may not have the luxury of fighting off some hoodlums on the way to see a Broadway show, but you can come to the dinner table next winter with a feeling of satisfaction that the "rich" New Yorkers will never know.

LONG COPY NOT RESENTED

People do not resent long copy in newspaper advertising. The reading of newspaper advertising is voluntary and people read only what interests them. Hence it causes no resentment. When the reading or attention is forced, the customer builds resentment.

Every day a certain group of people become prospects for merchandise. Able and just about ready to buy, newspaper advertising attracts these new customers. They have the habit of looking at newspapers for "what's new?" "how much does it cost?" and "who sells it?"

Newspaper advertising can tell a complete story about "what's new?" Long copy or short copy can be used in accordance with what you need and desire.

FOLD THAT UMBRELLA, UNCLE

In the face of all the contention and argument and bitterness that have developed over the years between the bargelines and the railroads, the recent testimony of a Southern Railway executive in hearings before the US Army Corps of Engineers on extending navigation on river systems in his part of the country is as refreshing as the first gentle rain that breaks a long drought.

The Southern Railway man assured the engineers that his road did not oppose the waterway expansion under consideration, and he said: "We believe that competition is the life of business and that only by means of competition can the public obtain the benefits of improved service and lower costs. Such a philosophy has given the US its pre-eminent economic position in the world today. . . Economic development of the South, we believe, can best be continued under the principles of competition, including competition in transportation. This has been the position of Southern for a number of years. It is our position now."

President Johnson, Southern's witness noted, had urged greater freedom of competition in transportation in his State of the Union Message, his Budget Message and his Economic Report - all within a single month! In the latter message to Congress, the President noted specifically that reduced "government supervision over rates (particularly minimum rates) would strengthen competition among various modes of transportation."

The Southern, said the Witness, "wholeheartedly embraces" the President's policy and seeks, under that policy and through its own "best competitive efforts," to cut freight rates as far as it profitably can in the interest of shippers, the public - and railroad.

Traditionally, the water carriers promote their services as the cheapest form of transportation (which it is for them only, since they operate without charge on these improved waterways). But, at the same time they insist that rail rates should be kept higher than theirs to protect their "inherent advantage" as the low-cost carrier. All too often the water carriers prevail in keeping railroad rates at artificially high levels through the use of phony arithmetic. The result is that the public pays twice - once to provide the waterways which these barge operators use without cost, and again through higher-than-necessary freight rates which the railroads would willingly lower if freed to do so.

To insure competition - with the benefit of material rate reduction to the consuming (and tax-paying) public - Southern proposes that enabling legislation for waterway improvements include a proviso that rates of other carriers are not "to be held up to a particular level" to protect the water carriers.

The testimony of the Southern spokesman is not only refreshing, but convincing!

THE MINISTRY OF EVERYTHING

The wide-ranging activities of Sargent Shriver and his Poverty War general staff cause us to think that the name of their office of Economic Opportunity should be changed to the Ministry of Everything. They seem to find one reason or another to inject themselves into just about every field of human activity, public or private. Anyone who had the foolish notion that the purpose of this new bureaucratic agency was mainly to help the unskilled and unemployed to get training and jobs should be wondering by now how a whole agency could wander so far afield.

For example, Mr. Shriver and his staff have become bail bondsmen (to bail out with tax money some of the job-corps recruits who've been arrested for law-breaking in towns near OEO's job-training camps). They've become baby sitters - that is, supervisors of tax-paid baby sitting services in a number of cities. They've becom schoolmasters, in a $20 million program to educate migrant farm families. They've become a travelers' aid society with a $5 million outlay to subsidize the travel of migrants from state to state. They've entered the medical field, setting up health clinics where drop-outs can drop in for free consultation. They've entered the newspaper field with plans for "news-letters" to bring the official truth to communities blessed by one or another OEO project, and arrangements for professional reporters and columnists to pick up a little extra money outside of their regular employment by ghost-writing some of that official "truth" for the OEO to hand out.

On second thought, perhaps our first thought for a new name for the OEO isn't so good. For although Shriver and company do, indeed, seem to involve themselves in just about everything, there is great doubt as of now if they really minister to anything except to the pocketbooks of the supervisors and consultants in their many projects. In Washington, D.C., the annual cost per child for the OEO-sponsored day care center comes to $1,411 - somewhat more than a year's tuition at a University in the same city. And the cost of just one ghost-written bit of official truth about an OEO project in Ypsilanti, Michigan, came to $1,440.

Since it would be inconvenient to give the OEO a new name with different initials, we'll settle for calling it the Office of Endless Opportunism.

H. L. Hunt Says

NOT THE MIDDLE ROAD

In this time of threat to liberty, we have to draw certain lines to determine who is for freedom and who is against freedom. We need to be careful not to draw the wrong lines. To do so lends strength to the enemy.

One line may be safely drawn between the Patriot and the non - patriotic.

The known Patriot, giving his active efforts to advance the pro - freedom cause, serves a fine purpose. No one can ever say of the construction Patriot that he is too constructive. There is simply no such thing. The constructive Patriot cannot be divisive to the detriment of the United States. He is a force for good.

No person needs to have earned the terrible designation of "traitor" in order to be guilty, by sin of commission or ommission, of failure to promote the cause of the United States. The non - patriotic simply does nothing constructive for his country or for freedom. In his non - doing, he gives aid and comfort to the enemies of freedom.

Any American who cannot be given the honored title of Patriot surely must be accounted at fault. This applies especially to those who lack the courage to stand either for or against freedom, but who prefer to bask in the warmth and friendliness so often extended the middle - of - the roader. The lack of conviction implicit in this comfortable position will never contribute anything at all toward preserving our liberties.

Tolerance of evil is no virtue, and the greatest evil of all is found in the effort to eliminate freedom. HLH

Hal Boyle

NEW YORK (AP) —In every large Irish family there is one child who seems closer to God than the others.

The finger of heaven seemed to point at the third son of five children my mother had—Neil.

This is his birthday, and today, although he is young among the angels, he would be 54 years old if he were still what is termed "alive."

Mama, in the grip of childbirth, seemed to name her children in the flowing, old-fashioned style of penmanship that flaunted a flourish. Before or after she came out of the ether, she decided that her third-born son—the one after me—would be known in City Hall records as Cornelius Gerald Boyle.

Mama's doctor in those days got a little annoyed with her because, although she yielded all her children reasonably easy in her home bedroom--none born in a hospital--she had this romantic penchant for long names. A tired doctor in those days, having a cup of coffee in the kitchen after an always successful delivery, hated the chore of writing down the infant's interminable identity. Cornelius Gerald immediately became Neil.

In a rude Irish brood, he had a gentleness that set him apart. He was by far the quickest mind of us all, but there was a softness to his soul that made him different. At the table he was the last to reach for a second helping. He didn't like to compete for advantage.

As children, we were favorite brothers and slept in the same bed. It was ritual for us to scratch each other's back before we fell asleep —the winter underwear in those days kept kids in constant itch — but we never told each other who we were, or discussed our dreams. There was just a faith and a liking.

The whisper of God reached down to Neil, but never me.

The atmosphere of a large Irish family in those days was a capsule history of the Irish fate — loud with brags, hopes, denunciations, interior betrayal, and a seeking of importance by gaining audience. It is a curse of the Irish that so many of them aspire to the conduct of kings, reckless of reckoning.

These family hurrahs hurt the heart of Neil. He used to lie silently on the floor during them, his head based on the pillow of his folded hands, hearing above the family tempests God's word of call to him.

He decided to become a priest, and was about to go away to study and become one. An infection common in those days intervened and left him with a crippled heart.

Neil then became one of those many Irish who can't quite serve God to the fulness of their childhood choice and then become a prisoner of home and never get away.

The Army Air Corps took him in World War II and he loaded the guns in airplanes abroad in which he never flew or pulled a trigger. He was not born to kill.

He liked to be useful, and children and old people trusted him. A little more than a year ago in Kansas City he was mowing the lawn for a nice old lady across the street and suddenly keeled over dead without question or outcry. Firemen came with oxygen tanks, but Neil had left home forever.

Bending over his coffin, mother flecked a spot of dust from his undertaker-adjusted face, kissed him, and said an Irish goodby to the first loss from her womb:

"You look lovely, Neil. Don't worry, dear, I'll be with you soon."

Well, of course Mama is only 79, and the rest of her children have no intention of allowing her this final reunion very soon. We are selfish enough to continue to demand her cheer, even though one of her sons remains away — the first to take flight from here, her brightest and perhaps her best.

And this, my dear brother, is my nosegay on your birthday to you. Hello, Neil.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- The border between Israel and the Arab states is one of the most jagged and difficult in the world to defend. Unlike the long, clearly marked, undefended border between the United States and Canada or between China and the Soviet Union, the Israeli border is as irregular as the meandering of a box turtle on a spring day and has no discernible forts to defend it.

Defense is maintained by small patrols driving in jeeps along the border and a series of Kibutzem or settlements of young Israelis who farm by day and guard by night.

I visited one Kibutz, Telkitzir, near the Sea of Galilee on the Israeli - Syrian border last winter. About 400 Israelis, men and women, lived in barracks or married couples in small cottages, raising wheat, alfalfa, vegetables and milking an up - to - date herd of holstein dairy cows.

They were a rugged, seemingly nonchalant group, living on the edge of danger. Looking down into the valley from the hill on which the Kibutz stood I could see the Israel-Syrian border 100 yards away. On the far side it was brown and barren. On our side it was green and cultivated. Aluminum irrigation pipes lay alongside fields of wheat and alfalfa unmolested by the Syrians.

The Israelis had extended their husbandry right out into no - man's land, the neutral zone between the two countries. It was the most fertile farm land, they argued, and should be used. The Syrians didn't like the incursion, and at first had shot at the farm workers. But retaliatory fire from the Israeli hillside now made them take the Israeli agricultural advance without audible protest.

"JUST LIKE US"

Up above the border, on the Brown Syrian Hillside, was a stone redoubt and a cluster of stone houses. A few Syrian soldiers loitered in the sunshine, unconcerned over what happened on the Israeli hillside across the way.

"They are village people up there, just like us," said my Israeli guide. "I don't think they want trouble any more than we do."

On one occasion, however, shots came across the valley, hurtling close to the kindergarten. After that, a two-foot - thick, eight - foot - high concrete wall was erected in front of the playground and I saw the children enjoying their swings and see - saws oblivious to the fact that danger lurked 200 yards away.

At night I went out in the trenches which rim the edge of the hill facing toward Syria. Young Israelis, both men and women, patrol the trenches. And you are a bit startled to come across a beautiful Israeli girl in the dead of night, her hair in long braids, a rifle slung over her shoulder.

Further up the border toward Lebanon, the line between Israel and Syria is clearly defined by the Jordan River, about half as wide as Rock Creek which flows through the District of Columbia. When I visited that famous river I could see two Syrian soldiers far up on the hill watching us.

At the Sea of Galilee, the boundary is even more complicated, with Israel owning a narrow strip of land around the lake, but with no defense or sentry posts to keep out Arab intruders.

On the road between Jerusalem and Tel Aviv you drive up a narrow gorge, on one side of which Jordanian territory juts down like a dagger pointed at the vital link between the two chief Israeli cities.

Thus it has been easy for Arab saboteurs to penetrate Israeli territory, mine their roads and blow up patrol jeeps. The resentment in Israel is understandable.

KING HUSSEIN'S PROBLEM

But what the Israeli military who invaded Jordan last week didn't seem to realize is that they were retaliating against the country which has tried to remain neutral and which likes the Syrians about as much as do the Israelis.

King Hussein, the young Monarch who rules over the tiny desert kingdom of Jordan, is faced with the fact that several thousand Palestinian refugees, exiled from Israel, live in his territory, itching to get back to the property they left behind. They are a constant irritant.

Despite this, and despite bitterness against Israel all over the Arab world, Hussein has managed to keep a fair amount of neutrality in his country.

Hussein was kneeling beside his late grandfather, King Abdullah, in the great Mosque of Jerusalem when Abdullah was shot and killed by Arabs who disapproved of his talks with Mrs. Golda Meir aimed at peace between the two countries. King Abdullah believed peace was essential, and his grandson, now on the throne, shares the same view.

I interviewed the young King in his palace in Amman. He is completely charming and as frank as the Monarch of a country constantly in danger of war can be.

He personally is in equal danger, and in passing up the hill to his palace I was stopped by three lines of guards to make sure I was not an assassin. Because of this constant danger, Hussein was the only speaker permitted to have an armed guard stand just below the speakers' rostrum when he addressed the U. S. Assembly some years ago.

This precarious situation has been made all the more precarious by the Israel invasion of Jordan, which is why the United States joined Great Britain and France in a stern rebuke to the government of Israel. Ambassador Arthur Goldberg has not always agreed with instructions he receives from Washington, but although a strong supporter of Israel, he agreed with this one.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Labor's National High Command Silent Despite Strikes Which Hit Warships, Supply Freighters and Gun - Firing Radar Production.

Washington, D. C.: -- There was a weird moment on the morning of November 14 when uncomfortable silences wrapped themselves around vital defense works on two coasts.

No workman touched unfinished warships. No skilled fingers laced together the sophisticated insides of Sidewinder missiles in key plants. And no hands touched special assembly lines of educated radar electronic brains which seek out enemy targets and automatically fire at them.

That morning some 26 shipyards and electronic plants, pride of the Pentagon, were on strike. There was no noise because the orders to the Defense Dept. brass were to play it "soft sell."

But in the polished, modern conference chamber of the AFL-CIO's Executive Council that morning and for days later, there was loud sharp talk. The portly statesmen behind closed portals were worried by the swelling outcry for tough antistrike laws.

Articulate men in labor's veteran Executive Council wondered aloud how they would be able to fight off moves for arbitration of emergency strikes; or Congressional action for labor courts; or how to handle the whole "new arsenal of anti - strike weapons" which leaders of a "more conservative" Congress want to hand the President.

In labor's executive suite, the practical men who have made a fetish of realism for half a century, avoided it like the proverbial plague.

At the moment the Executive Council was called to order on the morning of Nov. 14th, 13 West Coast shipyards in the San Francisco, Portland and Seattle areas had been on strike 10 days. The stoppage, called by locals of the generally sedate International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (IBEW), had slashed work on 14 destroyers, 7 smaller naval vessels, a naval tanker escort and a self-propelled floating drydock. The latter two were just in for repairs from Viet Nam's waters.

Also paralyzed was the reactivation of a string of supply ships. All had top priority in the race to keep the lanes open to Saigon.

Why the strike? The union had demanded raises coming to $28 per week per man -- retroactive to July 1, 1965. This meant, according to one pentagon spokesman, an initial payment of some $22 million just to catch up with the moment.

Yet despite the need for the warships and the supply freighters -- and despite the fact that other metal trade unions in the same yards had signed satisfactory contracts and were willing to work -- there was no word from the high council in the national AFL-CIO headquarters.

But that was not all. At just about the same moment that the labor federation's most prestigious and powerful leaders began seating themselves around the table for their opening session, the IBEW struck 13 desperately vital East Coast plants.

One of these is the Westinghouse aerospace installation at Friendship airport near Baltimore. As the gavel crack opened the high command session not many miles away, strikers closed down production of magical radar equipment and naval torpedoes.

This radar is no ordinary wizardry. It operates the armament control systems for the Navy and Air Force jet fighter bombers -- F-4. Phantom jets. This radar seeks out the target. It locks on to it. It fires guns if the fighter pilots are too busy.

Furthermore, it is an all-weather system. This radar is the eye of these planes. At the moment, "desperate" is understatement for the Pentagon's description of its need for this equipment.

Yet, though the plant was shut all through the week - long gathering of national labor leaders, there was no public word from them to the strikers.

At exactly the same moment that Nov. 14 morning, the IBEW locals in Massachusetts struck 12 Raytheon Corp. plants there. This firm is "90 per cent on classified defense work," said one harassed, uncommunicative Pentagon officer. They make, when not struck, Hawk, Sparrow and Sidewinder missiles.

Read the story of any day's aerial dog fights and you read the saga of the Sidewinders. Yet the strike went through the week. And not a word to those on the bricks from those in the executive chamber.

This is what is called solidarity. But what of the citizenry? What of the war? What of solidarity with the young soldiers who need that equipment?

That's what Congressmen will be asking when they reconvene.

ONE THANKSGIVING

One of the many things for which Americans can be thankful this Thanksgiving is that we now have only one Thanksgiving.

If you go home to California, Maine or Florida on November 24th, it will be Thanksgiving there too and you will not run the risk of finding adults at work and children in school.

A quarter of a century ago, it was different. Beginning in 1939 for a period of three years, we had two Thanksgiving Days. Tom Mahoney recalls the resulting "confusion, humor, recrimination and bitter dispute" in an October American Legion Magazine article, "When F.D.R. Juggled Thanksgiving," written from hitherto un-revealed Roosevelt papers at Hyde Park.

The idea was to give merchants a normal Christmas shopping period in a depression year when Thanksgiving by the usual calculation fell on the very last day of November.

It was not this but the way that it was handled that caused the trouble. Given a year's notice, everybody probably would have gone along.

But President Roosevelt sprang it suddenly to go into effect the same year. Though his attorney general had warned that it should be done, he didn't even give the governors advance warning and many did not go along.

Several hundred women who planned to be brides at Thanksgiving were pretty upset and wrote the White House. Then there were the football games, the hotels and convention planners and the calendar makers.

The article reveals that President Roosevelt wanted not only to move up the date but change it to Monday. But he dropped this part when Steve Early told him that Protestants, feeling it unlikely that people would come back to church on Monday after being there on Sunday, opposed it. Early said, "The Protestants will raise hell if you change their Thanksgiving celebration from Thursday to Monday."

There would have been even more trouble if F.D.R. had tried that change.

Ask any city boy what a sheriff does and he'll probably say: "He rides a horse and shoots outlaws."

Maybe so, on television. But, nowadays sheriffs' posses ride automobiles and sheriffs are as concerned with protecting their motoring constituents as they are in pursuing outlaws.

Demonstrating concern over modern traffic problems, the National Sheriffs Association has endorsed a type of "safety" license plate that casts a bright warning glow for up to 2,000 feet by light reflection.

Said Sheriff Malcolm McLeod of Lumberton, N.C., the Association's president: "We think they are an excellent law enforcement and safety aid. We wish they were used in every state."

A recent report by the Maine State Police points out that the annual number of night-time collisions with parked cars was reduced by 58 per cent during the years 1950 to 1963, compared with the five-year period before 1950, when that state began using such tags.

With the influence of the nation's sheriffs behind them, perhaps safety plates will, indeed, become standard issue in all states. Already 17 states and the District of Columbia issue about 22 million of them, and Montana, Nevada and Nebraska have adopted the new tags for 1966 and 1967.

Sheriffs still shoot outlaws. But, today they also are shooting - verbally - at another kind of outlaw: Highway dangers.

Reid Derrick, president of Laclede Gas Company, reports that: "For over a century the (gas) industry's growth was steady but relatively unspectacular. Then, in the nineteen twenties, came the development of pipeline which could withstand the high pressure needed for long-distance transmission of gas. This made it possible for the first time to bring natural gas, generally found in remote regions, to the populous market areas of the country. Today, a vast network of transmission pipelines - enough to circle the earth more than eight times at the equator - criss-crosses the nation and supplies one third of all America's energy needs. And the gas industry has grown to become the sixth largest in the country."

GONE THE OLD KITCHEN

There has been a lot of talk in Congress recently about the high cost of food in Eastern cities. Members have taken the floor to complain particularly about the price of potatoes - which were in short supply early this year because of freezes last year - and the rising cost of meats.

Yet, even in New York it is possible to find some fine food bargains these days. All one needs to do is drive out to the farm areas of eastern Long Island and stop at one of many roadside stands to pick up a 50-pound bag of potatoes for $2 and other specials in similar quantities.

The trouble is that most New Yorkers don't have kitchens big enough to "put up" tomatoes, beans, corn and other products when they are in season and low in price, or they don't have the time to spare for such old-fashioned chores. Indeed, many of them don't even know how to do it. And if they do, what will they do with a couple dozen jars of home preserves, a big sack of potatoes or the other goodies they could have? Their efficiency apartments they rent at such exorbitant prices don't have space for such essentials of living.

It is a strange commentary on civilization that it so often defeats its own purposes with the "progress" it achieves.

Consider yourself lucky if you still live where there is a stove of size ample enough to do the canning as well as preparing the evening meal and where you have a pantry that offers shelves long and deep to hold the goodies that came from your garden or a nearby farm.

You may not have the luxury of fighting off some hoodlums on the way to see a Broadway show, but you can come to the dinner table next winter with a feeling of satisfaction that the "rich" New Yorkers will never know.

LONG COPY NOT RESENTED

People do not resent long copy in newspaper advertising. The reading of newspaper advertising is voluntary and people read only what interests them. Hence it causes no resentment. When the reading or attention is forced, the customer builds resentment.

Every day a certain group of people become prospects for merchandise. Able and just about ready to buy, newspaper advertising attracts these new customers. They have the habit of looking at newspapers for "what's new?" "how much does it cost?" and "who sells it?"

Newspaper advertising can tell a complete story about "what's new?" Long copy or short copy can be used in accordance with what you need and desire.

FOLD THAT UMBRELLA, UNCLE

In the face of all the contention and argument and bitterness that have developed over the years between the bargelines and the railroads, the recent testimony of a Southern Railway executive in hearings before the US Army Corps of Engineers on extending navigation on river systems in his part of the country is as refreshing as the first gentle rain that breaks a long drought.

The Southern Railway man assured the engineers that his road did not oppose the waterway expansion under consideration, and he said: "We believe that competition is the life of business and that only by means of competition can the public obtain the benefits of improved service and lower costs. Such a philosophy has given the US its pre-eminent economic position in the world today. . . Economic development of the South, we believe, can best be continued under the principles of competition, including competition in transportation. This has been the position of Southern for a number of years. It is our position now."

President Johnson, Southern's witness noted, had urged greater freedom of competition in transportation in his State of the Union Message, his Budget Message and his Economic Report - all within a single month! In the latter message to Congress, the President noted specifically that reduced "government supervision over rates (particularly minimum rates) would strengthen competition among various modes of transportation."

The Southern, said the Witness, "wholeheartedly embraces" the President's policy and seeks, under that policy and through its own "best competitive efforts," to cut freight rates as far as it profitably can in the interest of shippers, the public - and railroad.

Traditionally, the water carriers promote their services as the cheapest form of transportation (which it is for them only, since they operate without charge on these improved waterways). But, at the same time they insist that rail rates should be kept higher than theirs to protect their "inherent advantage" as the low-cost carrier. All too often the water carriers prevail in keeping railroad rates at artificially high levels through the use of phony arithmetic. The result is that the public pays twice - once to provide the waterways which these barge operators use without cost, and again through higher-than-necessary freight rates which the railroads would willingly lower if freed to do so.

To insure competition - with the benefit of material rate reduction to the consuming (and tax-paying) public - Southern proposes that enabling legislation for waterway improvements include a proviso that rates of other carriers are not "to be held up to a particular level" to protect the water carriers.

The testimony of the Southern spokesman is not only refreshing, but convincing!

THE MINISTRY OF EVERYTHING

The wide-ranging activities of Sargent Shriver and his Poverty War general staff cause us to think that the name of their office of Economic Opportunity should be changed to the Ministry of Everything. They seem to find one reason or another to inject themselves into just about every field of human activity, public or private. Anyone who had the foolish notion that the purpose of this new bureaucratic agency was mainly to help the unskilled and unemployed to get training and jobs should be wondering by now how a whole agency could wander so far afield.

For example, Mr. Shriver and his staff have become bail bondsmen (to bail out with tax money some of the job-corps recruits who've been arrested for law-breaking in towns near OEO's job-training camps). They've become baby sitters - that is, supervisors of tax-paid baby sitting services in a number of cities. They've becom schoolmasters, in a $20 million program to educate migrant farm families. They've become a travelers' aid society with a $5 million outlay to subsidize the travel of migrants from state to state. They've entered the medical field, setting up health clinics where drop-outs can drop in for free consultation. They've entered the newspaper field with plans for "news-letters" to bring the official truth to communities blessed by one or another OEO project, and arrangements for professional reporters and columnists to pick up a little extra money outside of their regular employment by ghost-writing some of that official "truth" for the OEO to hand out.

On second thought, perhaps our first thought for a new name for the OEO isn't so good. For although Shriver and company do, indeed, seem to involve themselves in just about everything, there is great doubt as of now if they really minister to anything except to the pocketbooks of the supervisors and consultants in their many projects. In Washington, D.C., the annual cost per child for the OEO-sponsored day care center comes to $1,411 - somewhat more than a year's tuition at a University in the same city. And the cost of just one ghost-written bit of official truth about an OEO project in Ypsilanti, Michigan, came to $1,440.

Since it would be inconvenient to give the OEO a new name with different initials, we'll settle for calling it the Office of Endless Opportunism.

DEC. 16, 1932

The Humane Society is working on what it calls "The Lame Duck Amendment." Under it, hunters would not be allowed to shoot birds with aching claws.

Hal Boyle

NEW YORK (AP) —In every large Irish family there is one child who seems closer to God than the others.

The finger of heaven seemed to point at the third son of five children my mother had—Neil.

This is his birthday, and today, although he is young among the angels, he would be 54 years old if he were still what is termed "alive."

Mama, in the grip of childbirth, seemed to name her children in the flowing, old-fashioned style of penmanship that flaunted a flourish. Before or after she came out of the ether, she decided that her third-born son—the one after me—would be known in City Hall records as Cornelius Gerald Boyle.

Mama's doctor in those days got a little annoyed with her because, although she yielded all her children reasonably easy in her home bedroom—none born in a hospital—she had this romantic penchant for long names. A tired doctor in those days, having a cup of coffee in the kitchen after an always successful delivery, hated the chore of writing down the infant's interminable identity.

Cornelius Gerald immediately became Neil.

In a rude Irish brood, he had a gentleness that set him apart. He was by far the quickest mind of us all, but there was a softness to his soul that made him different. At the table he was the last to reach for a second helping. He didn't like to compete for advantage.

As children, we were favorite brothers and slept in the same bed. It was ritual for us to scratch each other's back before we fell asleep—the winter underwear in those days kept kids in constant itch—but we never told each other who we were, or discussed our dreams. There was just a faith and a liking.

The whisper of God reached down to Neil, but never me.

The atmosphere of a large Irish family in those days was a capsule history of the Irish fate — loud with brags, hopes, denunciations, interior betrayal, and a seeking of importance by gaining audience. It is a curse of the Irish that so many of them aspire to the conduct of kings, reckless of reckoning.

These family hurrahs hurt the heart of Neil. He used to lie silently on the floor during them, his head based on the pillow of his folded hands, hearing above the family tempests God's word of call to him.

He decided to become a priest, and was about to go away to study and become one. An infection common in those days intervened and left him with a crippled heart.

Neil then became one of those many Irish who can't quite serve God to the fulness of their childhood choice and then become a prisoner of home and never get away.

The Army Air Corps took him in World War II and he loaded the guns in airplanes abroad in which he never flew or pulled a trigger. He was not born to kill.

He liked to be useful, and children and old people trusted him. A little more than a year ago in Kansas City he was mowing the lawn for a nice old lady across the street and suddenly keeled over dead without question or outcry. Firemen came with oxygen tanks, but Neil had left home forever.

Bending over his coffin, mother flecked a spot of dust from his undertaker-adjusted face, kissed him, and said an Irish goodby to the first loss from her womb:

"You look lovely, Neil. Don't worry, dear, I'll be with you soon."

Well, of course Mama is only 79, and the rest of her children have no intention of allowing her this final reunion very soon. We are selfish enough to continue to demand her cheer, even though one of her sons remains away — the first to take flight from here, her brightest and perhaps her best.

And this, my dear brother, is my nosegay on your birthday to you. Hello, Neil.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- The border between Israel and the Arab states is one of the most jagged and difficult in the world to defend. Unlike the long, clearly marked, undefended border between the United States and Canada or between China and the Soviet Union, the Israeli border is as irregular as the meandering of a box turtle on a spring day and has no discernible forts to defend it.

Defense is maintained by small patrols driving in jeeps along the border and a series of Kibutzem or settlements of young Israelis who farm by day and guard by night.

I visited one Kibutz, Telkitzir, near the Sea of Galilee on the Israeli - Syrian border last winter. About 400 Israelis, men and women, lived in barracks or married couples in small cottages, raising wheat, alfalfa, vegetables and milking an up - to - date herd of holstein dairy cows.

They were a rugged, seemingly nonchalant group, living on the edge of danger. Looking down into the valley from the hill on which the Kibutz stood I could see the Israel-Syrian border 100 yards away. On the far side it was brown and barren. On our side it was green and cultivated. Aluminum irrigation pipes lay alongside fields of wheat and alfalfa unmolested by the Syrians.

The Israelis had extended their husbandry right out into no - man's land, the neutral zone between the two countries. It was the most fertile farm land, they argued, and should be used. The Syrians didn't like the incursion, and at first had shot at the farm workers. But retaliatory fire from the Israeli hillside now made them take the Israeli agricultural advance without audible protest.

"JUST LIKE US"

Up above the border, on the Brown Syrian Hillside, was a stone redoubt and a cluster of stone houses. A few Syrian soldiers loitered in the sunshine, unconcerned over what happened on the Israeli hillside across the way.

"They are village people up there, just like us," said my Israeli guide. "I don't think they want trouble any more than we do."

On one occasion, however, shots came across the valley, hurtling close to the kindergarten. After that, a two-foot - thick, eight - foot- high concrete wall was erected in front of the playground and I saw the children enjoying their swings and see - saws oblivious to the fact that danger lurked 200 yards away.

At night I went out in the trenches which rim the edge of the hill facing toward Syria. Young Israelis, both men and women, patrol the trenches. And you are a bit startled to come across a beautiful Israeli girl in the dead of night, her hair in long braids, a rifle slung over her shoulder.

Further up the border toward Lebanon, the line between Israel and Syria is clearly defined by the Jordan River, about half as wide as Rock Creek which flows through the District of Columbia. When I visited that famous river I could see two Syrian soldiers far up on the hill watching us.

At the Sea of Galilee, the boundary is even more complicated, with Israel owning a narrow strip of land around the lake, but with no defense or sentry posts to keep out Arab intruders.

On the road between Jerusalem and Tel Aviv you drive up a narrow gorge, on one side of which Jordanian territory juts down like a dagger pointed at the vital link between the two chief Israeli cities.

Thus it has been easy for Arab saboteurs to penetrate Israeli territory, mine their roads and blow up patrol jeeps. The resentment in Israel is understandable.

KING HUSSEIN'S PROBLEM

But what the Israeli military who invaded Jordan last week didn't seem to realize is that they were retailiating against the country which has tried to remain neutral and which likes the Syrians about as much as do the Israelis.

King Hussein, the young Monarch who rules over the tiny desert kingdom of Jordan, is faced with the fact that several thousand Palestinian refugees, exiled from Israel, live in his territory, itching to get back to the property they left behind. They are a constant irritant.

Despite this, and despite bitterness against Israel all over the Arab world, Hussein has managed to keep a fair amount of neutrality in his country.

Hussein was kneeling beside his late grandfather, King Abdullah, in the great Mosque of Jerusalem when Abdullah was shot and killed by Arabs who disapproved of his talks with Mrs. Golda Meir aimed at peace between the two countries. King Abdullah believed peace was essential, and his grandson, now on the throne, shares the same view.

I interviewed the young King in his palace in Amman. He is completely charming and as frank as the Monarch of a country constantly in danger of war can be.

He personally is in equal danger, and in passing up the hill to his palace I was stopped by three lines of guards to make sure I was not an assassin. Because of this constant danger, Hussein was the only speaker permitted to have an armed guard stand just below the speakers' rostrum when he addressed the U. S. Assembly some years ago.

This precarious situation has been made all the more precarious by the Israel invasion of Jordan, which is why the United States joined Great Britain and France in a stern rebuke to the government of Israel. Ambassador Arthur Goldberg has not always agreed with instructions he receives from Washington, but although a strong supporter of Israel, he agreed with this one.

Doc. Duncan Says

Gramp how come you spose Mr. Rockefeller settled in Ark?

My guess is it maybe that Petty Jean mountain means bout the same to him as old Spindle Top did to Dad Joiner in Texas.

Yep could be, they got some shallow gas all around. See where the confistiration is gonna move to Little Rock. Are do you spose Mr. Rocky when he gets to be Guvnor would give the poor landowners a break in that Ozark Caper?

Donno, that'd be a big political knock out at one little punch if he did, it'd be worser than that fe-escue in Boone County, and have world wide political reprocushions. You see by now everbody knows bout the Ozark Rivers Caper and the rich minerals there, but few of the news media will mention that. One thing puzzles me. That is how come the last few State lawmaker bodies has tried to rub all the little people the wrong way? Don't they know it's a long lane that has no turn?

H. L. Hunt Says

NOT THE MIDDLE ROAD

In this time of threat to liberty, we have to draw certain lines to determine who is for freedom and who is against freedom. We need to be careful not to draw the wrong lines. To do so lends strength to the enemy.

One line may be safely drawn between the Patriot and the non - patriotic.

The known Patriot, giving his active efforts to advance the pro - freedom cause, serves a fine purpose. No one can ever say of the construction Patriot that he is too constructive. There is simply no such thing. The constructive Patriot cannot be divisive to the detriment of the United States. He is a force for good.

No person needs to have earned the terrible designation of "traitor" in order to be guilty, by sin of commission or ommission, of failure to promote the cause of the United States. The non - patriotic simply does nothing constructive for his country or for freedom. In his non - doing, he gives aid and comfort to the enemies of freedom.

Any American who cannot be given the honored title of Patriot surely must be accounted at fault. This applies especially to those who lack the courage to stand either for or against freedom, but who prefer to bask in the warmth and friendliness so often extended the middle - of - the roader. The lack of conviction implicit in this comfortable position will never contribute anything at all toward preserving our liberties.

Tolerance of evil is no virtue, and the greatest evil of all is found in the effort to eliminate freedom. HLH

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Labor's National High Command Silent Despite Strikes Which Hit Warships, Supply Freighters and Gun - Firing Radar Production.

Washington, D. C. -- There was a weird moment on the morning of November 14 when uncomfortable silences wrapped themselves around vital defense works on two coasts.

No workman touched unfinished warships. No skilled fingers laced together the sophisticated insides of Sidewinder missiles in key plants. And no hands touched special assembly lines of educated radar electronic brains which seek out enemy targets and automatically fire at them.

That morning some 26 shipyards and electronic plants, pride of the Pentagon, were on strike. There was no noise because the orders to the Defense Dept. brass were to play it "soft sell."

But in the polished, modern conference chamber of the AFL-CIO's Executive Council that morning and for days later, there was loud sharp talk. The portly statesmen behind closed portals were worried by the swelling outcry for tough antistrike laws.

Articulate men in labor's veteran Executive Council wondered aloud how they would be able to fight off moves for arbitration of emergency strikes; or Congressional action for labor courts; or how to handle the whole "new arsenal of anti - strike weapons" which leaders of a "more conservative" Congress want to hand the President.

In labor's executive suite, the practical men who have made a fetish of realism for half a century, avoided it like the proverbial plague.

At the moment the Executive Council was called to order on the morning of Nov. 14th, 13 West Coast shipyards in the San Francisco, Portland and Seattle areas had been on strike 10 days. The stoppage, called by locals of the generally sedate International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (IBEW), had slashed work on 14 destroyers, 7 smaller naval vessels, a naval tanker escort and a self-propelled floating drydock. The latter two were just in for repairs from Viet Nam's waters.

Also paralyzed was the reactivation of a string of supply ships. All had top priority in the race to keep the lanes open to Saigon.

Why the strike? The union had demanded raises coming to $28 per week per man -- retroactive to July 1, 1965. This meant, according to one pentagon spokesman, an initial payment of some $22 million just to catch up with the moment.

Yet despite the need for the warships and the supply freighters -- and despite the fact that other metal trade unions in the same yards had signed satisfactory contracts and were willing to work -- there was no word from the high council in the national AFL-CIO headquarters.

But that was not all. At just about the same moment that the labor federation's most prestigious and powerful leaders began seating themselves around the table for their opening session, the IBEW struck 13 desperately vital East Coast plants.

One of these is the Westinghouse aerospace installation at Friendship airport near Baltimore. As the gavel crack opened the high command session not many miles away, strikers closed down production of magical radar equipment and naval torpedoes.

This radar is no ordinary wizardry. It operates the armament control systems for the Navy and Air Force jet fighter bombers -- F-4. Phantom jets. This radar seeks out the target. It locks on to it. It fires guns if the fighter pilots are too busy.

Furthermore, it is an all-weather system. This radar is the eye of these planes. At the moment, "desperate" is understatement for the Pentagon's description of its need for this equipment.

Yet, though the plant was shut all through the week - long gathering of national labor leaders, there was no public word from them to the strikers.

At exactly the same moment that Nov. 14 morning, the IBEW locals in Massachusetts struck 12 Raytheon Corp. plants there. This firm is "90 per cent on classified defense work," said one harassed, uncommunicative Pentagon officer. They make, when not struck, Hawk, Sparrow and Sidewinder missiles.

Read the story of any day's aerial dog fights and you read the saga of the Sidewinders. Yet the strike went through the week. And not a word to those on the bricks from those in the executive chamber.

This is what is called solidarity. But what of the citizenry? What of the war? What of solidarity with the young soldiers who need that equipment?

That's what Congressmen will be asking when they reconvene.

Mrs. Lee Nelson Hellums II

Laura Lynn Waggener Weds Lee Nelson Hellums II

HOUSTON, Texas -- Miss Laura Lynn Waggener and Lee Nelson Hellums II of West Columbia, Texas, were married Saturday in the Bellaire Methodist church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donnell E. Waggener, 5035 Yarwell. Her grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Waggener of Sikeston, Mo.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lee N. Hellums, 504 West Brazos, West Columbia.

For her wedding, Miss Waggener chose a street-length gown fashioned of English net with lavish appliques of re-embroidered Alencon lace in a candlelight color all-over pattern. The fitted Empire bodice was sleeveless and featured a high bateau neckline.

The softly flaring A-line skirt, ending in a deep flounce marked by two silk bows, was edged in scallops of the lace's pattern.

Her veil of imported silk illusion fell in short, bouffant tiers from a wedding ring of lace accented with a bow.

Dr. James T. Neff, pastor of the First Methodist church of West Columbia, officiated.

The couple's attendants were Miss Melinda Waggener, cousin of the bride, and John Douglas Smith, Jr.

The reception was held in the church parlor. The couple left for a wedding trip to an undisclosed destination and upon their return will live in Houston.

The bride is a graduate of Bellaire high school and attended Texas Technological College. Hellums is a graduate of Texas A and M University and is attending the South Texas School of Law. He was a member of Alpha Phi Omega at Texas A and M and is a member of Delta Theta Phi legal fraternity at the school of law. He is a second lieutenant in the army reserve. Both are employed by Magcobar.

AN AMERICAN task force anchored off Italy in World War II, seeing a fighter plane approaching a high speed and low level, shot it down--only to discover that it was an American Air Force craft. The pilot was fished out and brought aboard the flagship, unhurt but dripping and chastened.

"Lieutenant," asked the admiral, "what were you doing in this area?"

"Sir, I had completed my mission, and this was the shortest way back to my base in Africa."

"But, son," continued the admiral, "didn't your superiors tell you never to overfly our fleet?"

"Yes, sir, they did," admitted the pilot. "But, sir they also told me that the Navy couldn't hit anything!"

Mrs. Britton Is Hostess to Club Meeting

BELL CITY - The Shawan Homemaker's Club met at the home of Mrs. Robert Britton, Thursday, for the monthly meeting.

Mrs. Britton served a dinner in keeping with the Thanksgiving season. Her table was decorated with appropriate symbols of Thanksgiving.

In the absence of the president, Mrs. Arch Lemmons, Mrs. Bennie Hesselrode presided over the business meeting. The Christmas party was discussed and it will be held Dec. 15 at the home of Mrs. Blair Dalton.

After the meeting was adjourned, Mrs. Hesselrode presented a lesson, "Children and Selection of Toys". Mrs. Britton then led the group in several games.

Members present were:

Mrs. Blair Dalton, Mrs. Leonard Green, Mrs. H. H. Thrasher, Mrs. J.C. Phillips, Mrs. Lincoln Scherer, Mrs. Bennie Hesselrode, Mrs. C.G. Lemmons, Miss Edna Allison and Mrs. Robert Britton.

Visitors were:

Mrs. Ray Patterson and David, Mrs. Dorothy Robbins and children, Mrs. Charlie Britton, Mrs. Ed Britton and Mrs. Irvin Johnson and Brent.

Homemakers Have Fall Banquet

The Homemakers Class of the First Assembly of God church had a pre-Thanksgiving banquet Thursday evening in the fellowship hall of the church. Turkey and trimmings were served to the 50 class members and their families and guests.

Mrs. T. A. McDonough is the teacher of the class and Raymond Page is the superintendent of the Young Adult department. Page was the master of ceremonies for the program that followed the meal.

Musical entertainment was furnished by the Ladies Trio from the church. The trio is composed of Mrs. Brenda Ballard, Miss Jean Frala and Miss Brenda Stacy. John Garret spoke on "What Thanksgiving Means to Me."

WSCS Bazaar Planned

All circles of the First Methodist church completed the study of "Affluence and Poverty: Dilemma for Christians," by using the subject, "The Church Faces Affluence and Poverty."

In all circles an announcement was made that the bazaar or golden harvest festival will be held from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Tuesday. Luncheon will be served from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

A monetary gift from the Woman's Society treasury will be sent to Western North Carolina Rural Work and to the Friendship Home, Los Angeles, Calif., for the conference as a result of study.

Members in all circles will plan some project to be completed in the home church or community.

The pre-school mothers' circles will plan some project to be completed in the home church or community.

The pre-school mothers' circle met at 8 p.m. Wednesday with Mrs. Ed Aldrich. Mrs. Barbara Box gave the devotional and Mrs. John Doggett was program leader.

Mrs. George Reynolds was hostess to Circle one Thursday at 9:30 a.m. The devotional was given by Mrs. Gene Crenshaw and the program was presented by Mrs. William Bess.

The new church parsonage was the meeting place for Circle two members at 9:30 a.m. Thursday. Mrs. Joseph Wagner was hostess and Mrs. R. D. Mow, co-hostess. Mrs. Preston Alley presented the devotional. Mrs. William Proffer assisted by Mrs. M.E. Montgomery, Mrs. J.S. Wallace, Mrs. Rex Johnson, Mrs. Lyon Schroff and Mrs. Thatcher Scism conducted a question and answer period on the program subject. Individual contributions were made for Methodist Children's Home as one result of the study.

Mrs. Charles Conn was hostess to members of Circle three Thursday at 9:30 a.m. Mrs. Robert Dempster presented the program and Mrs. Gene Aufdenberg gave a Thanksgiving devotional.

At 2 p.m. Thursday Mrs. E. E. Leighninger was hostess to Circle four members. Mrs. J.S. Kevil gave the devotion and Mrs. A. L. Waller was program leader. This group plans to serve the Christmas luncheon for the general society Dec. 1.

Members of Circle five met with Mrs. Harold Lewis at 2 p.m. Thursday. Mrs. Robley Lennox presented the program and Mrs. C. J. Stevens gave a devotion.

Mrs. J.W. Foley was hostess to Circle six members at 1:30 p.m. Thursday. Mrs. Raymert Miller gave the devotional. Mrs. Dempster was program leader. Plans were made to bring food to be placed in baskets for needy families to the next circle meeting.

Circle seven members met with Mrs. Pinnell Hunter Thursday at 2 p.m. Mrs. Dess Bloomfield gave both the devotion and the program. This group made plans to serve the Men's Club Wednesday, Nov. 30.

Thursday at 7:30 p.m. Mrs. William Burke was hostess to members of Circle nine. Mrs. Paul Slinkard and Mrs. Guy Comer had charge of the program.

Mrs. Lee Nelson Hellums II

Laura Lynn Waggener Weds Lee Nelson Hellums II

HOUSTON, Texas -- Miss Laura Lynn Waggener and Lee Nelson Hellums II of West Columbia, Texas, were married Saturday in the Bellaire Methodist church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donnell E. Waggener, 5035 Yarwell. Her grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Waggener of Sikeston, Mo.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lee N. Hellums, 504 West Brazos, West Columbia.

For her wedding, Miss Waggener chose a street-length gown fashioned of English net with lavish appliques of re-embroidered Alencon lace in a candlelight color all-over pattern. The fitted Empire bodice was sleeveless and featured a high bateau neckline.

The softly flaring A-line skirt, ending in a deep flounce marked by two silk bows, was edged in scallops of the lace's pattern.

Her veil of imported silk illusion fell in short, bouffant tiers from a wedding ring of lace accented with a bow.

Dr. James T. Neff, pastor of the First Methodist church of West Columbia, officiated.

The couple's attendants were Miss Melinda Waggener, cousin of the bride, and John Douglas Smith, Jr.

The reception was held in the church parlor. The couple left for a wedding trip to an undisclosed destination and upon their return will live in Houston.

The bride is a graduate of Bellaire high school and attended Texas Technological College. Hellums is a graduate of Texas A and M University and is attending the South Texas School of Law. He was a member of Alpha Phi Omega at Texas A and M and is a member of Delta Theta Phi legal fraternity at the school of law. He is a second lieutenant in the army reserve. Both are employed by Magcobar.

AN AMERICAN task force anchored off Italy in World War II, seeing a fighter plane approaching a high speed and low level, shot it down--only to discover that it was an American Air Force craft. The pilot was fished out and brought aboard the flagship, unhurt but dripping and chastened. "Lieutenant," asked the admiral, "what were you doing in this area?"

"Sir, I had completed my mission, and this was the shortest way back to my base in Africa."

"But, son," continued the admiral, "didn't your superiors tell you never to overfly our fleet?"

"Yes, sir, they did," admitted the pilot. "But, sir they also told me that the Navy couldn't hit anything!"

Homemakers Have Fall Banquet

The Homemakers Class of the First Assembly of God church had a pre-Thanksgiving banquet Thursday evening in the fellowship hall of the church. Turkey and trimmings were served to the 50 class members and their families and guests.

Mrs. T. A. McDonough is the teacher of the class and Raymond Page is the superintendent of the Young Adult department. Page was the master of ceremonies for the program that followed the meal.

Musical entertainment was furnished by the Ladies Trio from the church. The trio is composed of Mrs. Brenda Ballard, Miss Jean Frala and Miss Brenda Stacy. John Garret spoke on "What Thanksgiving Means to Me."

WSCS Bazaar Planned

All circles of the First Methodist church completed the study of "Affluence and Povverty: Dilemma for Christians," by using the subject, "The Church Faces Affluence and Poverty."

In all circles an announcement was made that the bazaar or golden harvest festival will be held from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Tuesday. Luncheon will be served from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

A monetary gift from the Woman's Society treasury will be sent to Western North Carolina Rural Work and to the Friendship Home, Los Angeles, Calif., for the conference as a result of study.

Members in all circles will plan some project to be completed in the home church or community.

The pre-school mothers' circles will plan some project to be completed in the home church or community.

The pre-school mothers' circle met at 8 p.m. Wednesday with Mrs. Ed Aldrich. Mrs. Barbara Box gave the devotional and Mrs. John Doggett was program leader.

Mrs. George Reynolds was hostess to Circle one Thursday at 9:30 a.m. The devotional was given by Mrs. Gene Crenshaw and the program was presented by Mrs. William Bess.

The new church parsonage was the meeting place for Circle two members at 9:30 a.m. Thursday. Mrs. Joseph Wagner was hostess and Mrs. R. D. Mow, co-hostess. Mrs. Preston Alley presented the devotional. Mrs. William Proffer assisted by Mrs. M.E. Montgomery, Mrs. J.S. Wallace, Mrs. Rex Johnson, Mrs. Lyon Schroff and Mrs. Thatcher Scism conducted a question and answer period on the program subject. Individual contributions were made for Methodist Children's Home as one result of the study.

Mrs. Charles Conn was hostess to members of Circle three Thursday at 9:30 a.m. Mrs. Robert Dempster presented the program and Mrs. Gene Aufdenberg gave a Thanksgiving devotional.

At 2 p.m. Thursday Mrs. E. E. Leighninger was hostess to Circle four members. Mrs. J.S. Kevil gave the devotion and Mrs. A. L. Waller was program leader. This group plans to serve the Christmas luncheon for the general society Dec. 1.

Members of Circle five met with Mrs. Harold Lewis at 2 p.m. Thursday. Mrs. Robley Lennox presented the program and Mrs. C. J. Stevens gave a devotion.

Mrs. J.W. Foley was hostess to Circle six members at 1:30 p.m. Thursday. Mrs. Raymert Miller gave the devotional. Mrs. Dempster was program leader. Plans were made to bring food to be placed in baskets for needy families to the next circle meeting.

Circle seven members met with Mrs. Pinnell Hunter Thursday at 2 p.m. Mrs. Dess Bloomfield gave both the devotion and the program. This group made plans to serve the Men's Club Wednesday, Nov. 30.

Thursday at 7:30 p.m. Mrs. William Burke was hostess to members of Circle nine. Mrs. Paul Slinkard and Mrs. Guy Comer had charge of the program.

The Sports Review

BY RON JAYNES, Sports Editor

Cowboys Win, Tie St. Louis

By EICK COUCH

Last month, Johnny Unitas was just another quarterback to Garo Yepremian, the Cypriot Lion.

Sunday, Unitas was just another quarterback to Yepremian's Detroit playmates.

The Lions intercepted five Unitas passes before driving the Baltimore quarterback ace to cover Sunday on the way to a 20-14 National Football League upset victory over the Colts.

Yepremian, the left-foot, soccer-style place-kicker from Cyprus who made his NFL debut against the Colts on Oct. 16, booted a pair of field goals for the Lions' winning margin in the return match.

Before the clubs' first meeting, Yepremian was asked if he'd ever heard of Unitas. "He's a quarterback," the little newcomer said. "I hear about him on television. Whose quarterback is he?"

Unitas then fired four touchdown passes, leading the Colts to a 45-14 romp over Detroit.

It was a different story Sunday, the Lion defenders blanking Baltimore until sub quarterback Cary Cuozzo replaced Unitas in the final period and hit John Mackey with a 64-yard TD pass. Unitas connected on only nine of 19 pass attempts for a total of 93 yards.

Yepremian meanwhile kicked field goals of 17 and 21 yards, Pat Studstill grabbed a 9-yard scoring pass from Karl Sweetan and Bobby Felts plunged a yard for another Detroit touchdown.

The loss, coupled with Green Bay's 13-6 victory over Chicago, dropped the Colts one game behind the Packers in the league's Western Division title race.

Dallas trimmed Pittsburgh 20-7 and tied idle St. Louis for the Eastern Division lead; Cleveland remained in the Eastern race by beating Washington 14-3; Atlanta drubbed New York 27-16 for its first NFL victory; Philadelphia nipped San Francisco 35-34 and Los Angeles downed Minnesota 21-6 in other games.

Zeke Bratkowski, filling in for injured Bart Starr, fired two touchdown passes to Carroll Dale, leading Green Bay past the Bears. Bratkowski and Dale connected on a climactic 33-yard scoring play after Chicago's Roger Leclerc missed the extra point attempt following Gale Sayers' two-yard touchdown dive.

Starr suffered a pulled hamstring muscle on his first pass attempt in the game.

Don Meredith ran for one touchdown and passed 38 yards to Bob Hayes for another and Danny Villaneuva kicked two field goals as Dallas thwarted the Steelers' bid for a third straight upset.

Leroy Kelly capped the Browns' victory with a 56-yard touchdown bolt up the middle after Frank Ryan had sent them ahead with a five-yard TD pitch to Ernie Green.

Randy Johnson threw three touchdown passes and scored another TD as the Falcons ended their losing string at nine games and handed the plodding Giants their eighth setback against one victory and a tie.

King Hill's four-yard scoring flip to veteran Ollie Matson capped a second-half comeback by the Eagles, who trailed 20-7 at intermission. Hill also threw two TD passes to Pete Retzlaff in the Philadelphia rally.

Bruce Bossett kicked four field goals, Roosevelt Grier threw Minnesota's Fran Tarkenton for a safety and Billy Truax recovered teammate Roman Gabriel's fumble in the end zone for the game's only touchdown as the Rams outfought the Vikings.

College Teams Await Bowl Offers

By RON RAPOPORT

With the college football season all but over, the balloting season begins in earnest and a handful of victorious clubs nervously await their postseason fate.

There are the clubs hoping for bids to play in major bowl games — UCLA and Southern California for the Rose Bowl, and Mississippi or Tennessee for the Gator Bowl. Arkansas' chances for the Cotton Bowl depend on Southern Methodist's losing to a weak Texas Christian team on Saturday.

And then there are Michigan State and Notre Dame, which are sweating out ballots of a different kind: The ones that will decide which is the top team in the country. The Irish and Spartans, ranked 1-2 last week, fought to a 10-10 tie in their clash at East Lansing, Mich., Saturday.

The Sugar Bowl has already picked its teams — Alabama, 8-0, and Nebraska, 9-0. The Crimson Tide was No. 3 in last week's Associated Press college football poll and the Cornhuskers were No. 4. And the Orange Bowl has picked fifth-ranked Georgia Tech, 9-0, to play Florida, 8-1.

Other teams set for bowl competition are 10th-ranked Purdue 8-2, as the Big Ten representative in the Rose Bowl; ninth-rated Georgia, 8-1, in the Cotton Bowl; and Syracuse, 8-2 in the Gator Bowl.

The Pacific 8 Rose Bowl representative may have been decided Saturday when UCLA, No. 8, beat Southern California, No. 7, 14-7. The Trojans are conference champions -- they played one league game more than the Bruins -- but UCLA, with a 9-1 mark, is one game up on them overall.

Arkansas' chances for a Cotton Bowl bid and another Southwest Conference title were rudely treated Saturday when upstart Texas Tech beat the Razorbacks, 21-16. SMU, a 24-22 victor over Baylor, can clinch both the bowl bid and the championship with a victory over TCU.

Michigan State jumped to a 10-0 lead over Notre Dame, but the Irish, with substitute quarterback Coley O'Brien in charge, fought back for the tie. The game ended in controversy with Notre Dame seemingly trying to run out the clock by keeping the ball on the ground rather than go for the winning score.

Bob Griese passed for three touchdowns and kicked a field goal and six extra points as Purdue beat Indiana, 51-6. Floyd Little and Larry Csonka combined to gain 272 yards rushing for Syracuse, which took West Virginia, 34-7.

Mississippi beat Vanderbilt, 34-0 with Doug Cunningham rushing for a pair of touchdowns. Tennessee bounced Kentucky, 28-19, on Dewey Warren's four touchdown passes.

The Ivy League race ended in a three-way tie as Princeton, Dartmouth and Harvard all finished with records of 6-1. Princeton beat Cornell, 7-0, Dartmouth bounced Penn., 40-21, and Harvard blanked Yale, 40-21.

Wyoming won the Western Athletic Conference with a 9-1 mark, beating Brigham Young, 47-14, on Rick Egloff's three touchdown passes.

WACO, TEX. (AP) - Clifford Ann Creed of Alexandria, La., shot her second two-under-par 70 in the $10,000 Success Open Women's Tournament for a 207 total and beat Sandra Haynie and Susie Maxwell, who tied for second.

Flaker Sets School Record For Notre Dame

CAPE GIRARDEAU - Notre Dame high school opened its 1966-67 basketball campaign here Friday night and handing visiting Oak Ridge a 69-43 defeat behind the 41 point performance of Greg Flaker.

Flaker set a new school record which had previously been 40 points and held by two players, one in 1958 and 1963. He is a junior and is 6 foot three inches tall.

Turner and Clippard paced the visitors with 14 and 11 points respectively.

Oak Ridge edged out the Bulldogs in the "B" game, 34-32, to take a split of the night's activities.

Hahs and Berkbigler netted 11 points each in leading the Oak Ridge quintet.

Ruopp collected 10 points to lead the host Bulldogs scoring attack.

Notre Dame will host Scott Central, Tuesday, in which should be the area's top attraction.

BALTIMORE (AP) - Stefanich of Chicago went from fourth place to first on the final day of the $34,000 Fair Lanes Open by taking 13 of 16 games and beat runner-up Dave Soutar of Detroit.

Mizzou Wraps Up Season With Win Over Kansas, 7-0

By JIM VAN VALKENBURG
Associated Press Sports Writer

It's bowl-picking time and two Big Eight football teams - Nebraska's unbeaten league champs and runner-up Colorado -likely will make the grade. Third-place Missouri probably would vote against a bowl trip, if it receives a bid.

The Sugar Bowl already has picked Nebraska and Alabama and it's simply a matter of making it official today. The fourth-ranked Huskers need a victory at Oklahoma Thanksgiving Day for a 10-0 finish.

Colorado may be in line for the Sun Bowl, nationally televised this year. The Buffs finished 7-3 by overcoming a 9-0 Air Force lead for a 10-9 victory on John Farler's 34-yard field goal with 5:19 left. Defensive tack Dick Anderson made several vital plays. A crowd of 39,876 watched at Boulder.

Missouri edged Kansas 7-0 in the 75th renewal of their bitter rivalry to Earl Denny. The Tigers finished 4-2-1 in the league and 6-3-1 for all games.

The third period bomb was Missouri's only pass of the last half. Little Billy Fenton led a 71-yard drive to the Missouri 9, but the Tigers stopped it there. Fenton hit 10 of 14 passes and had 149 total offense.

Kansas State coach Doug Weaver said farewell at Manhattan to each of his players after a 21-6 loss to Oklahoma State. He predicted the new coach will have the basis for a good team.

A 38-yard strike, Vic Castillo to Dave Jones, gave K-State an early 6-0 lead, but Ronnie Johnson, OSU rookie, threw for 216 yards and OSU rushed for 210 more against the outmanned K-State defense.

K-State fullback Cornelius Davis finished with 1,028 yards rushing, the ninth player in league history to crack 1,000. Another K-State sophomore, end Dave Jones, set a Big Eight receiving record of 721 yards for the season, but it lasted only a matter of hours.

Iowa State's Eppie Barney caught 11, a league record, for 175 yards, brining his season total to 726, as Iowa State lost 27-24 at Arizona in the closing minutes. Tim Van Galder, Iowa State quarterback, smashed the Big Eight career passing record as expected.

Van Galder hit 25 of 40 passes for 335 yards, pushing his career total to 3,333. Missouri's Paul Christman had the old mark of 3,139 in 1938 - 49-40. Van Galder's 248 completions is another career mark.

Barney already held the Big Eight career mark for catches and his big night gave him 51 catches of the year, another league record. He and Van Galder have one game left, at Colorado State Saturday.

"Our seniors never lost to Oklahoma or Kansas," said Missouri coach Dan Devine. "That is something to be proud of. This club isn't strong physically but it built a good record.

"On the touchdown pass Kombrink did something he hadn't been doing well all season—locate and hit the secondary receiver. Marty Berg was covered but Denny wasn't."

Charlie Brown led Missouri with 58 yards in 15 trips but fell 85 yards short of Bob Steuber's school career record of 2,034 yards.

Al Onofrio, Missouri assistant, said Kansas surprised the Tigers a little by using a double tight end and flanker offense.

"It was a good move," he said. "They (the Kansas staff) did a lot of good thinking preparing for this one. We respected Fenton but he can throw better than we thought."

Fenton, who had 23 and 21-yard passes nullified by penalties, was jarred and lost a fumble at the Missouri 27 in the first half. He felt the Jayhawks outplayed Missouri strong in the first half.

"Fenton was tremendous as always, Jeff Elias did a great job and Dave Waxse did a fine job," said Kansas coach Jack Mitchell.

"We just didn't react on that one play for the TD, and it wasn't anything special. All year long it's been those third-and-long yardage plays that have killed us. Otherwise our boys played hard and well. It's a shame to have one bad play like that beat them."

Weaver said he had no idea at this point whether to stay in coaching, get out of it, or back to school to further his education.

"Emotions cloud my thinking," said the 36-year-old former Michigan State linebacker. "The way these players kept battling and would not quit, I can't say enough about them. It was tough to say good bye."

Bowl Bids Accepted

MIAMI, FLA. (AP) - It will be Florida and Georgia Tech in the Orange Bowl football game here Jan. 2.

Undefeated Tech and the once-beaten Gators receive the bids today from the Orange Bowl Committee.

"The teams involved should be obvious," Committee President John Ring told a news conference. For a week, the field had been narrowed to Tech-Gators and Alabama-Nebraska.

It was reported that third ranked Alabama and fourth ranked Nebraska preferred the Sugar Bowl in New Orleans. In the Orange Bowl a year ago, the Crimson Tide beat the Cornhuskers, 39-28.

Cowboys Win, Tie St. Louis

By EICK COUCH

Last month, Johnny Unitas was just another quarterback to Garo Yepremian, the Cypriot Lion.

Sunday, Unitas was just another quarterback to Yepremian's Detroit playmates.

The Lions intercepted five Unitas passes before driving the Baltimore quarterback ace to cover Sunday on the way to a 20-14 National Football League upset victory over the Colts.

Yepremian, the left-foot, soccer-style place-kicker from Cyprus who made his NFL debut against the Colts on Oct. 16, booted a pair of field goals for the Lions' winning margin in the return match.

Before the clubs' first meeting, Yepremian was asked if he'd ever heard of Unitas. "He's a quarterback," the little newcomer said. "I hear about him on television. Whose quarterback is he?"

Unitas then fired four touchdown passes, leading the Colts to a 45-14 romp over Detroit.

It was a different story Sunday, the Lion defenders blanking Baltimore until sub quarterback Cary Cuozzo replaced Unitas in the final period and hit John Mackey with a 64-yard TD pass. Unitas connected on only nine of 19 pass attempts for a total of 93 yards.

Yepremian meanwhile kicked field goals of 17 and 21 yards, Pat Studstill grabbed a 9-yard scoring pass from Karl Sweetan and Bobby Felts plunged a yard for another Detroit touchdown.

The loss, coupled with Green Bay's 13-6 victory over Chicago, dropped the Colts one game behind the Packers in the league's Western Division title race.

Dallas trimmed Pittsburgh 20-7 and tied idle St. Louis for the Eastern Division lead; Cleveland remained in the Eastern race by beating Washington 14-3; Atlanta drubbed New York 27-16 for its first NFL victory; Philadelphia nipped San Francisco 35-34 and Los Angeles downed Minnesota 21-6 in other games.

Zeke Bratkowski, filling in for injured Bart Starr, fired two touchdown passes to Carroll Dale, leading Green Bay past the Bears. Bratkowski and Dale connected on a climactic 33-yard scoring play after Chicago's Roger Leclerc missed the extra point attempt following Gale Sayers' two-yard touchdown dive.

Starr suffered a pulled hamstring muscle on his first pass attempt in the game.

Don Meredith ran for one touchdown and passed 38 yards to Bob Hayes for another and Danny Villaneuva kicked two field goals as Dallas thwarted the Steelers' bid for a third straight upset.

Leroy Kelly capped the Browns' victory with a 56-yard touchdown bolt up the middle after Frank Ryan had sent them ahead with a five-yard TD pitch to Ernie Green.

Randy Johnson threw three touchdown passes and scored another TD as the Falcons ended their losing string at nine games and handed the plodding Giants their eighth setback against one victory and a tie.

King Hill's four-yard scoring flip to veteran Ollie Matson capped a second-half comeback by the Eagles, who trailed 20-7 at intermission. Hill also threw two TD passes to Pete Retzlaff in the Philadelphia rally.

Bruce Bossett kicked four field goals, Roosevelt Grier threw Minnesota's Fran Tarkenton for a safety and Billy Truax recovered teammate Roman Gabriel's fumble in the end zone for the game's only touchdown as the Rams outfought the Vikings.

College Teams Await Bowl Offers

By RON RAPOPORT

With the college football season all but over, the balloting season begins in earnest and a handful of victorious clubs nervously await their postseason fate.

There are the clubs hoping for bids to play in major bowl games — UCLA and Southern California for the Rose Bowl, and Mississippi or Tennessee for the Gator Bowl. Arkansas' chances for the Cotton Bowl depend on Southern Methodist's losing to a weak Texas Christian team on Saturday.

And then there are Michigan State and Notre Dame, which are sweating out ballots of a different kind: The ones that will decide which is the top team in the country. The Irish and Spartans, ranked 1-2 last week, fought to a 10-10 tie in their clash at East Lansing, Mich., Saturday.

The Sugar Bowl has already picked its teams —Alabama, 8-0, and Nebraska, 9-0. The Crimson Tide was No. 3 in last week's Associated Press college football poll and the Cornhuskers were No. 4. And the Orange Bowl has picked fifth-ranked Georgia Tech, 9-0, to play Florida, 8-1.

Other teams set for bowl competition are 10th-ranked Purdue 8-2, as the Big Ten representative in the Rose Bowl; ninth-rated Georgia, 8-1, in the Cotton Bowl; and Syracuse, 8-2 in the Gator Bowl.

The Pacific 8 Rose Bowl representative may have been decided Saturday when UCLA, No. 8, beat Southern California, No. 7, 14-7. The Trojans are conference champions -- they played one league game more than the Bruins -- but UCLA, with a 9-1 mark, is one game up on them overall.

Arkansas' chances for a Cotton Bowl bid and another Southwest Conference title were rudely treated Saturday when upstart Texas Tech beat the Razorbacks, 21-16. SMU, a 24-22 victor over Baylor, can clinch both the bowl bid and the championship with a victory over TCU.

Michigan State jumped to a 10-0 lead over Notre Dame, but the Irish, with substitute quarterback Coley O'Brien in charge, fought back for the tie. The game ended in controversy with Notre Dame seemingly trying to run out the clock by keeping the ball on the ground rather than go for the winning score.

Bob Griese passed for three touchdowns and kicked a field goal and six extra points as Purdue beat Indiana, 51-6. Floyd Little and Larry Csonka combined to gain 272 yards rushing for Syracuse, which took West Virginia, 34-7.

Mississippi beat Vanderbilt, 34-0 with Doug Cunningham rushing for a pair of touchdowns. Tennessee bounced Kentucky, 28-19, on Dewey Warren's four touchdown passes.

The Ivy League race ended in a three-way tie as Princeton, Dartmouth and Harvard all finished with records of 6-1. Princeton beat Cornell, 7-0, Dartmouth bounced Penn., 40-21, and Harvard blanked Yale, 40-21.

Wyoming won the Western Athletic Conference with a 9-1 mark, beating Brigham Young, 47-14, on Rick Egloff's three touchdown passes.

WACO, TEX. (AP) - Clifford Ann Creed of Alexandria, La., shot her second two-under-par 70 in the $10,000 Success Open Women's Tournament for a 207 total and beat Sandra Haynie and Susie Maxwell, who tied for second.

Flaker Sets School Record For Notre Dame

CAPE GIRARDEAU - Notre Dame high school opened its 1966-67 basketball campaign here Friday night and handing visiting Oak Ridge a 69-43 defeat behind the 41 point performance of Greg Flaker.

Flaker set a new school record which had previously been 40 points and held by two players, one in 1958 and 1963. He is a junior and is 6 foot three inches tall.

Turner and Clippard paced the visitors with 14 and 11 points respectively.

Oak Ridge edged out the Bulldogs in the "B" game, 34-32, to take a split of the night's activities.

Hahs and Berkbigler netted 11 points each in leading the Oak Ridge quintet.

Ruopp collected 10 points to lead the host Bulldogs scoring attack.

Notre Dame will host Scott Central, Tuesday, in which should be the area's top attraction.

BALTIMORE (AP) - Stefanich of Chicago went from fourth place to first on the final day of the $34,000 Fair Lanes Open by taking 13 of 16 games and beat runner-up Dave Soutar of Detroit.

Mizzou Wraps Up Season With Win Over Kansas, 7-0

By JIM VAN VALKENBURG
Associated Press Sports Writer

It's bowl-picking time and two Big Eight football teams - Nebraska's unbeaten league champs and runner-up Colorado -likely will make the grade. Third-place Missouri probably would vote against a bowl trip, if it receives a bid.

The Sugar Bowl already has picked Nebraska and Alabama and it's simply a matter of making it official today. The fourth-ranked Huskers need a victory at Oklahoma Thanksgiving Day for a 10-0 finish.

Colorado may be in line for the Sun Bowl, nationally televised this year. The Buffs finished 7-3 by overcoming a 9-0 Air Force lead for a 10-9 victory on John Farler's 34-yard field goal with 5:19 left. Defensive back Dick Anderson made several vital plays. A crowd of 39,876 watched at Boulder.

Missouri edged Kansas 7-0 in the 75th renewal of their bitter rivalry to Earl Denny. The Tigers finished 4-2-1 in the league and 6-3-1 for all games.

The third period bomb was Missouri's only pass of the last half. Little Billy Fenton led a 71-yard drive to the Missouri 9, but the Tigers stopped it there. Fenton hit 10 of 14 passes and had 149 total offense.

Kansas State coach Doug Weaver said farewell at Manhattan to each of his players after a 21-6 loss to Oklahoma State. He predicted the new coach will have the basis for a good team.

A 38-yard strike, Vic Castillo to Dave Jones, gave K-State an early 6-0 lead, but Ronnie Johnson, OSU rookie, threw for 216 yards and OSU rushed for 210 more against the outmanned K-State defense.

K-State fullback Cornelius Davis finished with 1,028 yards rushing, the ninth player in league history to crack 1,000. Another K-State sophomore, end Dave Jones, set a Big Eight receiving record of 721 yards for the season, but it lasted only a matter of hours.

Iowa State's Eppie Barney caught 11, a league record, for 175 yards, brining his season total to 726, as Iowa State lost 27-24 at Arizona in the closing minutes. Tim Van Galder, Iowa State quarterback, smashed the Big Eight career passing record as expected.

Van Galder hit 25 of 40 passes for 335 yards, pushing his career total to 3,333. Missouri's Paul Christman had the old mark of 3,139 in 1938 - 49-40. Van Galder's 248 completions is another career mark.

Barney already held the Big Eight career mark for catches and his big night gave him 51 catches of the year, another league record. He and Van Galder have one game left, at Colorado State Saturday.

"Our seniors never lost to Oklahoma or Kansas," said Missouri coach Dan Devine. "That is something to be proud of. This club isn't strong physically but it built a good record.

"On the touchdown pass Kombrink did something he hadn't been doing well all season—locate and hit the secondary receiver. Marty Berg was covered but Denny wasn't."

Charlie Brown led Missouri with 58 yards in 15 trips but fell 85 yards short of Bob Steuber's school career record of 2,034 yards.

Al Onofrio, Missouri assistant, said Kansas surprised the Tigers a little by using a double tight end and flanker offense.

"It was a good move," he said. "They (the Kansas staff) did a lot of good thinking preparing for this one. We respected Fenton but he can throw better than we thought."

Fenton, who had 23 and 21-yard passes nullified by penalties, was jarred and lost a fumble at the Missouri 27 in the first half. He felt the Jayhawks outplayed Missouri strong in the first half.

"Fenton was tremendous as always, Jeff Elias did a great job and Dave Waxse did a fine job," said Kansas coach Jack Mitchell.

"We just didn't react on that one play for the TD, and it wasn't anything special. All year long it's been those third-and-long yardage plays that have killed us. Otherwise our boys played hard and well. It's a shame to have one bad play like that beat them."

Weaver said he had no idea at this point whether to stay in coaching, get out of it, or back to school to further his education.

"Emotions cloud my thinking," said the 36-year-old former Michigan State linebacker. "The way these players kept battling and would not quit, I can't say enough about them. It was tough to say good bye."

Bowl Bids Accepted

MIAMI, FLA. (AP) - It will be Florida and Georgia Tech in the Orange Bowl football game here Jan. 2.

Undefeated Tech and the once-beaten Gators receive the bids today from the Orange Bowl Committee.

"The teams involved should be obvious," Committee President John Ring told a news conference. For a week, the field had been narrowed to Tech-Gators and Alabama-Nebraska.

It was reported that third ranked Alabama and fourth ranked Nebraska preferred the Sugar Bowl in New Orleans. In the Orange Bowl a year ago, the Crimson Tide beat the Cornhuskers, 39-28.

Holcomb Sweeps Two From Lions

HOLCOMB -- In a Dunklin county conference game the Holcomb Hornets swept past visiting Senath-Hornersville 60-54 in the "A" game and 40-43 in the "B" contest.

Ralph Crain netted 18 points in leading the host to their win. Henry Roufe collected 16 points in pacing the visiting Lions quintet.

The teams were deadlocked 25-25 at intermission but the host came out the third period and outscored the host 23-16 for their winning margin.

Holcomb's "B" quintet staged a fourth quarter surge to down the visiting Lions, in that quarter the host poured in 15 points while holding their opponents to four.

Ron Thompson led the host to their win with 14 points. Kinsley collected 15 points in leading Senath-Hornersville.

Beauty Salon Certificates Make Nice Christmas Gifts

By POLLY CRAMER
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

DEAR POLLY—I am 72 years old, seven times a mother, 18 times a grandmother and six times a great grandmother, but I still know what is cooking, and of all the Christmas gifts that I received from my big family the certificate for four trips to my favorite beauty salon (for the works) is near the top of the list. So, girls, whether it is Christmas, her birthday or some other special day don't just think of a shawl for great-grandmother. Give her a beauty lift and what a lift, as I know from experience.—M. S.

DEAR GIRLS—and our masculine readers, too—M.S. is typical of many present-day grandmothers and I know her gift hint will be the answer to a real problem for many of you.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—While planning our Christmas gift for a nephew serving in Viet Nam, my husband suggested we send him two identical packages, one for him and the other for one of his buddies who might be forgotten. Perhaps other readers would like to do this for our boys. —A POLICEMAN'S WIFE

DEAR POLLY—Three years ago the plastic holders on our TV trays broke as did Patricia's. My husband purchased the spring-type clamps that are used to hold brooms or other round-handled objects. He riveted them to the undersides of the tables or trays and now they are firm and will not crack. The rivets look like decorative buttons.—MRS. H. E. H.

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—Would you ask the readers if they know how to cut angel food cake so that it does not flatten down? Mine looks unappetizing the way I cut it. —DELORES

DELORES—I never cut angel food cake but pull it apart with two forks. Some people use a silk thread for cutting such a cake and Betty, my right hand helper, says nothing beats an electric knife.—POLLY

BAKE 'N WAIT BEANS are just what they say - and more, too! They will wait if the family is late and even improve in flavor as they do. Serve with "Pineapple Nut Bread," vegetable salad, and ice cream for dessert.

Bake 'N Wait Beans Puts You 'Ahead of the Game'

This baked bean dish gives you a head start from the beginning. The secret is that you use canned beans and bake them a long time with such great flavor agents as canned tomato sauce and other ingredients - prepared mustard, vinegar, brown sugar and onions.

Then you are "ahead of the game" because this meal can wait beautifully - it only improves in flavor. So start baking the beans at the time most convenient for you, too.

With "Bake 'N Wait Beans" serve "Pineapple Nut Bread," a vegetable salad and ice cream for dessert.

(Both the beans and bread travel well; they are smart choices to take on a skiing weekend.

BAKE 'N WAIT BEANS
1 (1-lb. 13-oz.) can kidney beans
1 (1-lb. 10-oz.) can pork and beans
8 oz. thick-sliced bacon
1 (8 -oz.) can tomato sauce
1 large onion, sliced
1/2 cup brown sugar
1 Tablespoon vinegar
1 Tablespoon prepared mustard
1 Teaspoon salt
1/4 Teaspoon pepper

Partially drain beans. Cut bacon into 1-inch pieces; mix with beans. Add remaining ingredients; blend well. Spoon into 2-quart casserole. Bake, uncovered, at 325 degrees F. for 2 hours. Makes 6 servings.

PINEAPPLE NUT BREAD
1 cup sifted all-purpose flour
1-1/2 teasp. baking soda
1-1/2 teasp. salt
1/2 teasp. allspice
1 cup whole-wheat flour
1 cup cornmeal
3/4 cup brown sugar
2 cups buttermilk or sour milk
1 (13-1/2 oz.) can crushed pineapple, well drained
1/2 cup chopped nuts

Sift flour, soda, salt and allspice together into bowl. Stir in whole-wheat flour, cornmeal and brown sugar. Add buttermilk; beat well. Mix in crushed pineapple and nuts. Fill two, greased, 1-lb. coffee cans with mixture 2/3 full. Cover cans with foil. Place cans on rack in kettle. Add hot water to extend half way up cans. Cover tightly; steam 3-1/2 hours. Remove foil from cans at end of steaming. Place cans in 400 degree F. oven, 7 minutes. Cool 15 minutes before removing bread from cans. Makes 2 loaves.

Europe Takes Nazi Element Gains Coolly

By THOMAS A. REEDY

LONDON (AP) —A partial success for West Germany's rightist National Democrats in the Bavarian elections raised the old Nazi bugaboo in some European circles today but much of the reaction was cool and unperturbed.

Some quarters warned against exaggerating the importance of the votes which give the party 15 seats in the Bavarian Parliament. Others voiced the reminder that the Christian Democrats and Social Democrats, the two major parties of West Germany, hold the key to any resurgence of old-style nazism.

Parts of Europe which felt the Nazi boot a generation ago were surprisingly self-contained. In Denmark, the independent newspaper Information suggested that a show of strength by the big two parties soon would woo the sensible elements away from the National Democrats and leave the party with a small core of diehards.

In France, the conservative Aurore said the voting showed that the German people dislike "the sterile game of the politicians and need a government really capable of imposing uncontested authority on the country." The liberal Combat in Paris complimented the Bavarian voters for giving even further support to Franz Josef Strauss' Christian Democrats regardless of the ballots for the Nation Democrats. Combat said Strauss was the real winner.

This was the same sentiment expressed by the London Evening News.

The London Evening Standard was more perturbed, commenting:

"There seems to be some strange and eerie law of nature that insists that every 20 years or so Germany should stir from her ponderous bourgeois rectitude and do something that gives the world the creeps. It has haunted Europe for three generations— and here we go again."

Early reaction in Swiss and Italian papers lifted warning fingers, though in moderated tones.

TRAFFIC is the mother-in-law of the otherwise perfect marriage between the American motorist and his car.

WHAT PRICE GLORY?

"Seekest Thou great things for thyself? Seek them not." There's not much to argue about here! A terse question. A terse reply.

The first time we heard this verse from Jeremiah we were in the Salvation Army training school for officers. We thought it rather an odd text for a beginner. We were just becoming aware that we knew very little indeed. Merely a name among 400, we were humbly grateful for any slight recognition, if only a reproof. The idea of seeking great things for ourselves seemed slightly ridiculous. We filed the text away in a mental pigeonhole and that was that.

Life, however, is a wonderful enlightener. Sooner or later the obscure and irrelevant become clear and pertinent.

We know now that this simple statement has profound meaning for us on most levels of life. It is fatally certain that what we want with inordinate passion, we usually get, and lose everything else of value along the way.

The success story is a familiar one. It might almost be said that we in America must succeed or perish. There is no place in the "Great Society" for the man of medium success or, perish the thought, of no success at all.

So the race to the top begins. At first it is good -- challenging work, congenial associates, the exciting and stimulating awareness of belonging to a large organizaton.

It is not long before the enticing lure of promotion brings new vistas to view. Status symbols are acquired . . . wall to wall carpeting, reclining chairs, one's own secretary, membership in the country club, the society of top-flight people.

Slowly the real self begins to disintegrate, little by little. Love and concern for those at home, loyaly to friends, truth self-respect, one's sense of values diminish slowly but surely. Rationalization sets in: "I wish I didn't have to do these things, but it won't last. When I've reached my goal, I can let go at last and relax; I'll find myself again, my lost ideals, my faith, my values . . ."

But, unhappily, it never is like that. The prize is gained -- a jeweled casket indeed, but the jewels are false and the casket is hollow. In a moment of clear and devasting truth it is seen that everything of true worth is gone and has been replaced by coldness, suspicion, hardness, cruelty.

One of the Army's generals was being entertained in a palatial home on the Continent. Paintings, priceless tapestries and objects d'art filled the magnificent rooms.

"You must be a happy man," said the general, "to live surrounded by all this beauty."

"Yes," said his host slowly and heavily, "Yes, I should be a happy man, but you see, General, I have no treasure Above."

In spite of the fact that man is born in sin and shapen in iniquity, philosophers since Plato have maintained that man knows in his soul he was born to be king:

"Not in entire forgetfulness,
And not in utter nakedness,
But trailing clouds of glory do we come
From God who is our home."

It is when man realizes that somewhere along the way he has sold his birthright and forfeited his kingly heritage, that life loses its glory, no matter to what dazzling pinnacle he has come.

For the Christian in the world there is no choice. "If you would be My disciple," said our Lord, "take up your cross and follow." This most certainly cannot mean grasping for place, prestige and power.

Seekest thou great things for thyself? Seek them not. Seek rather the Kingdom of God and His righteousness, and those gifts which are of real and eternal value, and without which all of life is meaningless, shall be yours.

Chrstine E. McMillan

PLANS UNDERWAY

Little Tim rushed into the house and excitedly announced to his mother that he was going to marry the girl next door.

Mother, laughing to herself and willing to go along with her four-year-old son's enthusiasm, calmly inquired, "And where will you two go on your honeymoon?"

"Why, Disneyland, of course!" the boy replied.

Beauty Salon Certificates Make Nice Christmas Gifts

By POLLY CRAMER
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

DEAR POLLY—I am 72 years old, seven times a mother, 18 times a grandmother and six times a great grandmother, but I still know what is cooking, and of all the Christmas gifts that I received from my big family the certificate for four trips to my favorite beauty salon (for the works) is near the top of the list. So, girls, whether it is Christmas, her birthday or some other special day don't just think of a shawl for great-grandmother. Give her a beauty lift and what a lift, as I know from experience.—M. S.

DEAR GIRLS—and our masculine readers, too—M.S. is typical of many present-day grandmothers and I know her gift hint will be the answer to a real problem for many of you.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—While planning our Christmas gift for a nephew serving in Viet Nam, my husband suggested we send him two identical packages, one for him and the other for one of his buddies who might be forgotten. Perhaps other readers would like to do this for our boys.
—A POLICEMAN'S WIFE

DEAR POLLY—Three years ago the plastic holders on our TV trays broke as did Patricia's. My husband purchased the spring-type clamps that are used to hold brooms or other round-handled objects. He riveted them to the undersides of the tables or trays and now they are firm and will not crack. The rivets look like decorative buttons.—MRS. H. E. H.

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—Would you ask the readers if they know how to cut angel food cake so that it does not flatten down? Mine looks unappetizing the way I cut it.
—DELORES

DELORES—I never cut angel food cake but pull it apart with two forks. Some people use a silk thread for cutting such a cake and Betty, my right hand helper, says nothing beats an electric knife.—POLLY

BAKE 'N WAIT BEANS are just what they say - and more, too! They will wait if the family is late and even improve in flavor as they do. Serve with "Pineapple Nut Bread," vegetable salad, and ice cream for dessert.

Bake 'N Wait Beans Puts You 'Ahead of the Game'

This baked bean dish gives you a head start from the beginning. The secret is that you use canned beans and bake them a long time with such great flavor agents as canned tomato sauce and other ingredients - prepared mustard, vinegar, brown sugar and onions.

Then you are "ahead of the game" because this meal can wait beautifully - it only improves in flavor. So start baking the beans at the time most convenient for you, too.

With "Bake 'N Wait Beans" serve "Pineapple Nut Bread," a vegetable salad and ice cream for dessert.

(Both the beans and bread travel well; they are smart choices to take on a skiing weekend.

BAKE 'N WAIT BEANS
1 (1-lb. 13-oz.) can kidney beans
1 (1-lb. 10-oz.) can pork and beans
8 oz. thick-sliced bacon
1 (8-oz.) can tomato sauce
1 large onion, sliced
1/2 cup brown sugar
1 Tablespoon vinegar
1 Tablespoon prepared mustard
1 Teaspoon salt
1/4 Teaspoon pepper

Partially drain beans. Cut bacon into 1-inch pieces; mix with beans. Add remaining ingredients; blend well. Spoon into 2-quart casserole. Bake, uncovered, at 325 degrees F. for 2 hours. Makes 6 servings.

PINEAPPLE NUT BREAD
1 cup sifted all-purpose flour
1-1/2 teasp. baking soda
1-1/2 teasp. salt
1/2 teasp. allspice
1 cup whole-wheat flour
1 cup cornmeal
3/4 cup brown sugar
2 cups buttermilk or sour milk
1 (13-1/2 oz.) can crushed pineapple, well drained
1/2 cup chopped nuts

Sift flour, soda, salt and allspice together into bowl. Stir in whole-wheat flour, cornmeal and brown sugar. Add buttermilk; beat well. Mix in crushed pineapple and nuts. Fill two, greased, 1-lb. coffee cans with mixture 2/3 full. Cover cans with foil. Place cans on rack in kettle. Add hot water to extend half way up cans. Cover tightly; steam 3-1/2 hours. Remove foil from cans at end of steaming. Place cans in 400 degree F. oven, 7 minutes. Cool 15 minutes before removing bread from cans. Makes 2 loaves.

Europe Takes Nazi Element Gains Coolly

By THOMAS A. REEDY

LONDON (AP) —A partial success for West Germany's rightist National Democrats in the Bavarian elections raised the old Nazi bugaboo in some European circles today but much of the reaction was cool and unperturbed.

Some quarters warned against exaggerating the importance of the votes which give the party 15 seats in the Bavarian Parliament. Others voiced the reminder that the Christian Democrats and Social Democrats, the two major parties of West Germany, hold the key to any resurgence of old-style nazism.

Parts of Europe which felt the Nazi boot a generation ago were surprisingly self-contained. In Denmark, the independent newspaper Information suggested that a show of strength by the big two parties soon would woo the sensible elements away from the National Democrats and leave the party with a small core of diehards.

In France, the conservative Aurore said the voting showed that the German people dislike "the sterile game of the politicians and need a government really capable of imposing uncontested authority on the country." The liberal Combat in Paris complimented the Bavarian voters for giving even further support to Franz Josef Strauss' Christian Democrats regardless of the ballots for the Nation Democrats. Combat said Strauss was the real winner.

This was the same sentiment expressed by the London Evening News.

The London Evening Standard was more perturbed, commenting:

"There seems to be some strange and eerie law of nature that insists that every 20 years or so Germany should stir from her ponderous bourgeois rectitude and do something that gives the world the creeps. It has haunted Europe for three generations— and here we go again."

Early reaction in Swiss and Italian papers lifted warning fingers, though in moderated tones.

WHAT PRICE GLORY?

"Seekest Thou great things for thyself? Seek them not." There's not much to argue about here! A terse question. A terse reply.

The first time we heard this verse from Jeremiah we were in the Salvation Army training school for officers. We thought it rather an odd text for a beginner. We were just becoming aware that we knew very little indeed. Merely a name among 400, we were humbly grateful for any slight recognition, if only a reproof. The idea of seeking great things for ourselves seemed slightly ridiculous. We filed the text away in a mental pigeonhole and that was that.

Life, however, is a wonderful enlightener. Sooner or later the obscure and irrelevant become clear and pertinent.

We know now that this simple statement has profound meaning for us on most levels of life. It is fatally certain that what we want with inordinate passion, we usually get, and lose everything else of value along the way.

The success story is a familiar one. It might almost be said that we in America must succeed or perish. There is no place in the "Great Society" for the man of medium success or, perish the thought, of no success at all.

So the race to the top begins. At first it is good -- challenging work, congenial associates, the exciting and stimulating awareness of belonging to a large organizaton.

It is not long before the enticing lure of promotion brings new vistas to view. Status symbols are acquired . . . wall to wall carpeting, reclining chairs, one's own secretary, membership in the country club, the society of top-flight people.

Slowly the real self begins to disintegrate, little by little. Love and concern for those at home, loyaly to friends, truth self-respect, one's sense of values diminish slowly but surely. Rationalization sets in: "I wish I didn't have to do these things, but it won't last. When I've reached my goal, I can let go at last and relax; I'll find myself again, my lost ideals, my faith, my values . . ."

But, unhappily, it never is like that. The prize is gained --a jeweled casket indeed, but the jewels are false and the casket is hollow. In a moment of clear and devasting truth it is seen that everything of true worth is gone and has been replaced by coldness, suspicion, hardness, cruelty.

One of the Army's generals was being entertained in a palatial home on the Continent. Paintings, priceless tapestries and objects d'art filled the magnificent rooms.

"You must be a happy man," said the general, "to live surrounded by all this beauty."

"Yes," said his host slowly and heavily, "Yes, I should be a happy man, but you see, General, I have no treasure Above."

In spite of the fact that man is born in sin and shapen in iniquity, philosophers since Plato have maintained that man knows in his soul he was born to be king:

"Not in entire forgetfulness,
And not in utter nakedness,
But trailing clouds of glory do we come
From God who is our home."

It is when man realizes that somewhere along the way he has sold his birthright and forfeited his kingly heritage, that life loses its glory, no matter to what dazzling pinnacle he has come.

For the Christian in the world there is no choice. "If you would be My disciple," said our Lord, "take up your cross and follow." This most certainly cannot mean grasping for place, prestige and power.

Seekest thou great things for thyself? Seek them not. Seek rather the Kingdom of God and His righteousness, and those gifts which are of real and eternal value, and without which all of life is meaningless, shall be yours.

Little Tim rushed into the house and excitedly announced to his mother that he was going to marry the girl next door.

Mother, laughing to herself and willing to go along with her four-year-old son's enthusiasm, calmly inquired, "And where will you two go on your honeymoon?"

"Why, Disneyland, of course!" the boy replied.

GRANDMA'S WEST Indies Molasses - a pure, natural sweetener - gives rich flavor to a classic pumpkin pie and a spicy sweet potato-apple casserole.

Molasses Give Rich Flavor to Pumpkin Pie

Pumpkin pie always bespeaks the bounty of an abundant harvest at Thanksgiving and fall parties. In these days of ultra-convenience foods, canned pumpkin brings this bounty in quickly available form for use in pie fillings.

The recipe that follows for pumpkin pie provides a smooth, just-firm-enough filling. Unsulphured molasses, with its aromatic, mellow flavor, used in combination with exotic spices, gives the pie a richly nostalgic, old-fashioned quality. It's traditionally fall's beloved favorite dessert.

In the second recipe, sweet potatoes are excellent with apples, for the fruit introduces a light, juicy touch. This vegetable-fruit casserole also is all the more delicious when sweet-tart unsulphured molasses zips up the flavor.

Grandma's West Indies Molasses - the fine unsulphured type - gives deep richness to both the pie and casserole. Made from pure concentrated sugar cane juice, with no preservatives or sulphur dioxide added, unsulphured molasses is one of nature's primary sweeteners. This high-quality molasses contains the natural health-giving sugars and minerals squeezed from sun-ripened cane. In addition to being an energy food with a high content of true sugars, unsulphured molasses is a convenient source of available iron.

2	eggs, beaten
3/4	cup sugar
1-1/2	teaspoons cinnamon
1/2	teaspoon nutmeg
1/2	teaspoon ginger
1/4	teaspoon allspice
1/4	teaspoon cloves
1/2	teaspoon salt
1-1/2	cups canned pumpkin
3	tablespoons Grandma's West Indies Molasses
1	tall can (1-2/3 cups) evaporated milk
1	9-inch unbaked pastry shell

Combine beaten eggs, sugar, spices, salt, pumpkin and molasses. Add evaporated milk; stir until mixture is smooth. Pour into pastry shell. Bake in 450 degree F. oven 15 minutes reduce heat to 350 degrees F. and bake 40 minutes longer, or until tip of knife inserted in center comes out clean.

YIELD: One 9-inch pie.

Institutional Investing Stuns Many With Trading in Unison

By JOHN CUNNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — On the very day that a meeting was under way on the growing power of institutional investors 25 per cent of the stock in a certain company was traded on the New York Stock Exchange.

The amount was almost unbelievable. And it could only have occurred through trading by the big shareowners; that is, through activity of the institutions. Among these are mutual funds, pension funds, trusts.

The company, Fairchild Camera & Instrument Corp., has less than 3 million shares outstanding. More than 562,000 of them changed hands in a few hours Nov. 17. The price plunged $19.62 to $106.75.

About the same time, in an unrelated event, a speaker told the meeting on institutional investing that "apparently it is worrisome to the observers of the market to find we tend to buy and sell somewhat in unison."

The worry isn't confined to observers. It includes the exchanges, investment houses, federal officials and small investors. It includes as well the institutions, which have been proud of their role as stabilizers.

Such dips would have been considered amazing a few years ago, but big price changes became common this year. Among the reasons:

1. Institutional ownership is increasing. Fully one - third of all stock now listed is owned by institutions or trusts.

2. These institutions are trading more often than in the past. Official figures show the turnover rates for some have doubled in 10 years.

3. Institutions tend to congregate in certain stocks and often trade them at the same time. Considerable institution money this year has been invested in a well-known list of glamor stocks.

Declines may be caused by any very large fund unloading its shares at once. When institutions act in unison it can have a devastating effect. And, because they read the same storm signals, they may sell at the same tme.

The mere selling by one institution can influence another. If a fund trader holds a certain stock he cannot ignore a sale of that stock by a competitor fund, for a sale might lower the price. Funds, therefore, watch each other.

"Our trading operation is an intelligence and counter intelligence operation," said the head of a very large mutual fund group privately.

"The name of the game today is to use money effectively at all times," he said. "All of us are members of analysts societies, and analysts trade information and judgments back and forth." But, he said, not the timing.

This becomes more important during the so-called performance mania. Institutions once held stocks for years. Now they trade in and out so that they can always show the best performance at any time.

Nobody can say for sure why selling commenced in Fairchild, but the decline began as rumors spread that prices might be cut in integrated circuits, one of the products that put Fairchild in the glamor category.

Other manufacturers were hurt also. Texas Instruments dropped more than $15 and Motorola more than $10. All make integrated circuits, miniaturized electronic units used in television sets and satellites.

Tremendous blocks were unloaded, one of them more than 100,000 shares. This could not have been accomplished by small traders, most of whom had not even heard the apparent reason for selling.

The "unison" activity generally is not as evident as stock is purchased, for it can be accumulated slowly. But when it is unloaded it is dropped with a rush. Timing is important. Quickness in acting is essential.

"The concrete information is on the sell side more often than on the buy side," said the mutual fund man. And frequently that sign is an indication that earnings might not be as good as anticipated.

The institutions can be stabilizers, especially when they slow a rapidly declining market. But they present problems too.

Pollution Rules Predicted by Early Summer

ST. LOUIS (AP) - The executive secretary of the Missouri Water Pollution Board, Jack Smith, predicts regulations for water standards in the Mississippi River between St. Louis and Cape Girardeau will be ineffect by early summer.

A set of standards proposed Friday at a board hearing in St. Louis drew the criticism of the Missouri Conservation Commission and the greater St. Louis Citizens Committee for Nuclear Information. They argued the criteria was not sufficiently stringent.

A number of other groups, however, defended the proposed standards, including the Missouri Division of Health, the Missouri Water Resources Board and the Illinois Sanitary Water Board.

Smith said the reactions of the public on the proposals would be sampled before the regulations are finalized, probably in June. Some modifications may be forthcoming, he said.

One of the proposals would limit the amount of substances toxic to fish and wildlife or detrimental to agriculture, mining, industry, recreation or navigation that could be present in the river.

The company, Fairchild Camera & Instrument Corp., has less than 3 million shares outstanding. More than 562,000 of them changed hands in a few hours Nov. 17. The price plunged $19.62 to $106.75.

About the same time, in an unrelated event, a speaker told the meeting on institutional investing that "apparently it is worrisome to the observers of the market to find we tend to buy and sell somewhat in unison."

The worry isn't confined to observers. It includes the exchanges, investment houses, federal officials and small investors. It includes as well the institutions, which have been proud of their role as stabilizers.

Such dips would have been considered amazing a few years ago, but big price changes became common this year. Among the reasons:

1. Institutional ownership is increasing. Fully one - third of all stock now listed is owned by institutions or trusts.

2. These institutions are trading more often than in the past. Official figures show the turnover rates for some have doubled in 10 years.

3. Institutions tend to congregate in certain stocks and often trade them at the same time. Considerable institution money this year has been invested in a well-known list of glamor stocks.

Declines may be caused by any very large fund unloading its shares at once. When institutions act in unison it can have a devastating effect. And, because they read the same storm signals, they may sell at the same tme.

The mere selling by one institution can influence another. If a fund trader holds a certain stock he cannot ignore a sale of that stock by a competitor fund, for a sale might lower the price. Funds, therefore, watch each other.

"Our trading operation is an intelligence and counter intelligence operation," said the head of a very large mutual fund group privately.

"The name of the game today is to use money effectively at all times," he said. "All of us are members of analysts societies, and analysts trade information and judgments back and forth." But, he said, not the timing.

This becomes more important during the so-called performance mania. Institutions once held stocks for years. Now they trade in and out so that they can always show the best performance at any time.

Nobody can say for sure why selling commenced in Fairchild, but the decline began as rumors spread that prices might be cut in integrated circuits, one of the products that put Fairchild in the glamor category.

Other manufacturers were hurt also. Texas Instruments dropped more than $15 and Motorola more than $10. All make integrated circuits, miniaturized electronic units used in television sets and satellites.

Tremendous blocks were unloaded, one of them more than 100,000 shares. This could not have been accomplished by small traders, most of whom had not even heard the apparent reason for selling.

The "unison" activity generally is not as evident as stock is purchased, for it can be accumulated slowly. But when it is unloaded it is dropped with a rush. Timing is important. Quickness in acting is essential.

"The concrete information is on the sell side more often than on the buy side," said the mutual fund man. And frequently that sign is an indication that earnings might not be as good as anticipated.

The institutions can be stabilizers, especially when they slow a rapidly declining market. But they present problems too.

Pollution Rules Predicted by Early Summer

ST. LOUIS (AP) - The executive secretary of the Missouri Water Pollution Board, Jack Smith, predicts regulations for water standards in the Mississippi River between St. Louis and Cape Girardeau will be ineffect by early summer.

A set of standards proposed Friday at a board hearing in St. Louis drew the criticism of the Missouri Conservation Commission and the greater St. Louis Citizens Committee for Nuclear Information. They argued the criteria was not sufficiently stringent.

A number of other groups, however, defended the proposed standards, including the Missouri Division of Health, the Missouri Water Resources Board and the Illinois Sanitary Water Board.

Smith said the reactions of the public on the proposals would be sampled before the regulations are finalized, probably in June. Some modifications may be forthcoming, he said.

One of the proposals would limit the amount of substances toxic to fish and wildlife or detrimental to agriculture, mining, industry, recreation or navigation that could be present in the river.

Johnson Is Named Chairman

Ron Johnson of Frankfort, Ky., son of Mr. and Mrs. Arden Johnson of Vanduser, has been named publicity chairman for the campaign of Kentucky gubernatorial candidate Henry Ward.

Johnson's wife, the former Betsy Williams of Madisonville, Ky., has also been named receptionist for campaign headquarters.

A native of Vanduser, he is presently administrative assistant to Kentucky Highway Commissioner Mitchell Tinder, having been named to the post by former Highway Commissioner Ward, who recently resigned to campaign for the governor's office.

Johnson will resign his post to accept the campaign position and he and his wife will reside in Louisville, Ky., for the duration of the campaign.

In his new position, Johnson will handle speeches, news releases and statements for the candidate.

A graduate of Vanduser high school, he attended University of Missouri at Columbia and Southeast Missouri State College at Cape Girardeau. He is a member of Sigma Chi Fraternity.

He is a former sports editor of the Daily Standard and served for three years as a staff writer and associate editor for the Sun-Democrat of Paducah, Ky.

Mod Wedding Fits in With Circus Setting

DETROIT (AP) — "This is not exactly the wedding I had planned for my daughter," said the mother of the bride.

Joined in marriage in a mod wedding ceremony Sunday at the Michigan State Fairgrounds were Randy Rossi, 19, an unemployed go-go dancer, and Gary Norris, 25, an unemployed artist.

The bride wore a thigh-high, minigown that reached eight inches above the knee. She had matching white satin boots which reached seven inches above the knee.

The bridegroom wore a five-button, plaid suit with a cowboy belt and a six-inch-wide tie.

Billed as the nation's first mod wedding, the affair included:

—A bearded youth banging on the roof of a dilapidated car with a sledge hammer.

—A youth slithering across the stage using a bullwhip and two high-powered flashlights for props while performing an alleged dance.

A crowd of about 4,500 attended the half-hour ceremony, listening to a rock 'n' roll group.

The couple was married by Highland Park Municipal Judge David Golden, who last year was honored by the North American Judges Association for "outstanding community service."

Serve Popular Vegetables Together

Easy to prepare and as delicious as it looks — that's "Green Beans and Potatoes Duchesse."

This appealing vegetable dish combines two favorite vegetables in convenient forms: instant mashed potatoes and canned green beans of the Blue Lake variety. Substitute cut Blue Lakes for the whole pack beans called for in the recipe, if you wish.

This two-in-one vegetable dish is good with any roast or broiled meats.

Green Beans and Potatoes Duchesse

- 2 tablespoons salad oil
- ¼ cup chopped onion
- 2 cans (1 lb. each) whole Blue Lake variety green beans
- 1 tablespoon vinegar
- ¼ teaspoon oregano, crushed
- ½ teaspoon seasoned salt
- 1 envelope (4 servings) instant mashed potatoes
- 2 egg yolks

Heat oil in saucepan. Add onion and sauté lightly. Drain beans, saving ¼ cup liquid. Add beans, liquid, vinegar, oregano and seasoned salt to mixture. Cover and simmer about 5 minutes. Meanwhile, prepare mashed potatoes as package directs. Beat in egg yolks. Arrange beans down center of shallow baking dish. Spoon potatoes in 6 puffs along both sides of beans. Bake in 350-degree (moderate) oven about 15 minutes or until potatoes are lightly browned. Garnish with pimiento strips if you wish. Makes 6 servings.

Juvenile Patients Suggest Ways to Combat Walkaways

By ROBERT L. SLATER
The St. Joseph News-Press
For The Associated Press

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. (AP)—Dr. Liam O'Brien has appealed to juvenile patients at St. Joseph Hospital for their help in curtailing the walkaway problem at the institution.

Dr. O'Brien, acting superintendent at the 1,900-patient hospital, and Dr. John Goldsborough, child psychiatrist, met with about 35 or 40 of the hospital's juvenile patients, and asked for their help and suggestions in controlling the walkaway problem.

"It was a very enlightening experience, Dr. O'Brien commented, "They presented some good ideas. They weren't giving me a snow job."

Juvenile patients account for a substantial number of the hospital's walkaways, but the problem extends to other areas and Dr. O'Brien plans similar work among older patients.

Dr. O'Brien who took over control of the hospital Sept. 1, doesn't expect to eliminate the problem, "but it should be kept to a minimum."

He said he made his appeal to the young patients "in the good father idea, rather than as an autocratic disciplinarian."

The young patients, he said, "appeared very sincere in what they were saying. They may not like the idea of being in a hospital, but they're trying to make the best of it."

Dr. O'Brien said he explained to them that elopement — the hospital term for a walkaway—not only gets the patient in trouble, but reflects on the hospital, "and it should."

"An elopement indicates the patient isn't ready to be released from the hospital," he told the patients.

"If you're the superintendent, what would you do?" he asked. "I tried to get them to exchange roles for a few minutes."

About 50 per cent of the patients at the meeting offered comment.

One said punishment by way of confinement to another hospital ward, away from the Youth Center, was not an answer.

"I could do time over there standing on my head," he said.

A more effective reminder of the wrong-doing would be to put the returned patient on a work detail while others were at recreation, it was suggested.

Others said temporarily excluding the returned patient from group matters—being exiled by their peers—would be an effective step which could be taken by the patients.

Or, when learning of another patient's plan to leave the hospital, efforts could be made to convince him why he should stay.

A portion of the problem is simple homesickness, Dr. O'Brien explained. When information about a patient's homesickness is available, then efforts can be made to increase the number of visits from the patient's family, or possible arrangements made for a visit home.

"All the youngsters had isolated ideas, but they hadn't shared them with one another," Dr. O'Brien said. "This gave them a chance to put them into a pool.

It may take more meetings—and more experiences within the group—before tangible dividends are realized, the acting superintendent says. But, he feels the move is in the right direction.

DURING Gen. Joe Stilwell's second Burma campaign, I was assigned as one of his four bodyguards. On one of his frequent trips to the front lines "Vinegar Joe," as he was affectionately called, struck a blow for fair play that I'll always remember. The fourth member of the bodyguard was a tall, handsome, haughty--and obviously lazy--Sikh. He was detailed to carry a Thompson submachine gun, with its supply of ammunition. Even to keep upright on the slippery trails was a problem. After a particularly bad hill, we were surprised to see the submachine gun and belts of ammo hanging from a small mule used as an equipment carrier. Would the general notice?

Upon resuming our march after a short rest period, we had our answer. Hanging from the right shoulder of a humbled Sikh were the gun and ammunition--and from his left shoulder, the bundle of supplies formerly carried by the mule.

The Cream of the Crop

Skim the top off the bountiful milk supplies currently available and you'll have, literally -- the cream of the crop!

Cream is lighter than milk, reminds the U. S. Department of Agriculture, so it rises to where it can be skimmed off the top easily. And cream--from half and half to heavy whipping cream -- rises also to the cooking occasion -- as a topping, beverage companion or ingredient.

Light cream, for example, is well known for use with coffee or as a topping for cereal or fruit. Sometimes called coffee or table cream, this dairy product contains a flavorful range of 16 to 22 per cent butterfat.

It's a much higher butterfat content which makes whipping cream -- whether light or heavy -- beat up so well. Yet, the cream in aerosol cans is much like table cream, and is whipped to fluffy peaks by the pressure despite the lower butterfat content.

Half and half is literally half cream and half milk. Because of its much lower butterfat content, this is a good compromise between whole milk and light cream.

Boasting a distinctive, tangy flavor of its own, dairy sour cream is still another member of the cream family. This is a ripened cream, containing about the same butterfat as light cream.

There is a type of cream available to provide just the right degree of richness to any kitchen creation, as in these USDA recommended recipes.

PAUL FLOWER'S
Greenhouse

This is the W. C. Handy few people knew--only a few intimates, and the alert ones who became aware that in his later years, the tone of his music had moved far from the barrel house, to the House of the Lord.

Oh, yes, his name carries the sobriquet "Daddy of the Blues," and all the world knows the story of what went on at Pee Wee's Saloon on Beale Street to gain international acclaim for the horn player, but his real immortality will stand on the sacred music that came from his soul as he approached the sunset years.

Once again Memphis and the nation have paused to pay tribute to William Christopher Handy, and to set apart as a national shrine the street where first burst upon the air the blues notes about St. Louis, Memphis, and Beale itself; but echoing down the halls of time will be the penetrating melodies of his hymns and anthems, with messages of love and hope and faith.

Among his favorites were:

"Stand on That Sea of Glass," " 'Tis The Old Ship of Zion," "The Bridegroom Has Done Come," "Steal Away To Jesus," "I'll Be There In The Mornin'," "I've Heard Of A City Called Heaven," "The Rough Rocky Road (I'm Most Done With Travelin'," and "I Want Jesus To Walk With Me."

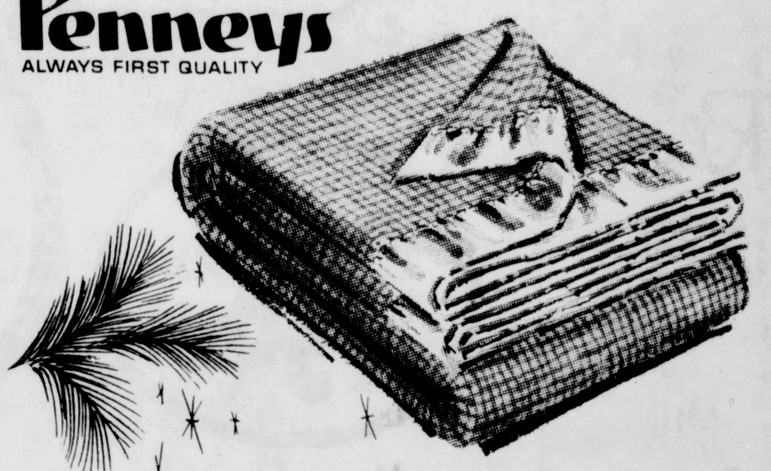

One of his great anthems, "They That Sow in Tears Shall Reap In Joy," taken from the 126 Psalm, was sung by the Pendleton Presbyterian Church choir at an Overton Park Shell vesper service in the summer of 1955. The same group sang it again on Beale Street, at a memorial service for W. C. Handy, after his death in 1958.

This is the story he told about a song which has gone round the world, and of which he was quite proud:

"Sure, I wrote the blues in Pee Wee's saloon and up in Greasy Plant. But it was on a streetcar, a Walker Avenue car, that this on came to me. It is the finale to 'Hail To The Spirit Freedom.'

"Never sell the blues short," he cautioned. "Blues are to music what Paul Lawrence Dunbar's poetry is to literature. Pure folk expression, which has to be the fundamental of art. The truthful, accurate preservation of what comes from people's hearts and souls."

"I could do time over there standing on my head," he said.

A more effective reminder of the wrong-doing would be to put the returned patient on a work detail while others were at recreation, it was suggested.

Others said temporarily excluding the returned patient from group matters—being exiled by their peers—would be an effective step which could be taken by the patients.

Or, when learning of another patient's plan to leave the hospital, efforts could be made to convince him why he should stay.

A portion of the problem is simple homesickness, Dr. O'Brien explained. When information about a patient's homesickness is available, then efforts can be made to increase the number of visits from the patient's family, or possible arrangements made for a visit home.

"All the youngsters had isolated ideas, but they hadn't shared them with one another," Dr. O'Brien said. "This gave them a chance to put them into a pool.

It may take more meetings—and more experiences within the group—before tangible dividends are realized, the acting superintendent says. But, he feels the move is in the right direction.

DURING Gen. Joe Stilwell's second Burma campaign, I was assigned as one of his four bodyguards. On one of his frequent trips to the front lines "Vinegar Joe," as he was affectionately called, struck a blow for fair play that I'll always remember. The fourth member of the bodyguard was a tall, handsome, haughty--and obviously lazy--Sikh. He was detailed to carry a Thompson submachine gun, with its supply of ammunition. Even to keep upright on the slippery trails was a problem. After particularly bad hill, we were surprised to see the submachine gun and belts of ammo hanging from a small mule used as an equipment carrier. Would the general notice?

Upon resuming our march after a short rest period, we had our answer. Hanging from the right shoulder of a humbled Sikh were the gun and ammunition--and from his left shoulder, the bundle of supplies formerly carried by the mule.

Paul C. Jones Takes Vacation

KENNETT - Rep. and Mrs. Paul C. Jones left today on a two-week vacation to visit their son and family in Albuquerque, N.M. After spending Thanksgiving with their son's family, they will drive to Houston, Tex., for a visit with the family of their daughter, Mrs. Joe D. Cash, before going to New Orleans for a meeting of the Lower Mississippi Valley Flood Control Association Dec. 1-1.

During his absence from his office in Kennett, the Congressman is requesting that all correspondence be addressed to his office in Washington, 2302 Rayburn House Office Building where any business with his office can be handled without delay.

The Cream of the Crop

Skim the top off the bountiful milk supplies currently available and you'll have, literally -- the cream of the crop!

Cream is lighter than milk, reminds the U. S. Department of Agriculture, so it rises to where it can be skimmed off the top easily. And cream--from half and half to heavy whipping cream -- rises also to the cooking occasion -- as a topping, beverage companion or ingredient.

Light cream, for example, is well known for use with coffee or as a topping for cereal or fruit. Sometimes called coffee or table cream, this dairy product contains a flavorful range of 16 to 22 per cent butterfat.

It's a much higher butterfat content which makes whipping cream -- whether light or heavy -- beat up so well. Yet, the cream in aerosol cans is much like table cream, and is whipped to fluffy peaks by the pressure despite the lower butterfat content.

Half and half is literally half cream and half milk. Because of its much lower butterfat content, this is a good compromise between whole milk and light cream.

Boasting a distinctive, tangy flavor of its own, dairy sour cream is still another member of the cream family. This is a ripened cream, containing about the same butterfat as light cream.

There is a type of cream available to provide just the right degree of richness to any kitchen creation, as in these USDA recommended recipes.

PAUL FLOWER'S
Greenhouse

This is the W. C. Handy few people knew--only a few intimates, and the alert ones who became aware that in his later years, the tone of his music had moved far from the barrel house, to the House of the Lord.

Oh, yes, his name carries the sobriquet "Daddy of the Blues," and all the world knows the story of what went on at Pee Wee's Saloon on Beale Street to gain international acclaim for the horn player, but his real immortality will stand on the sacred music that came from his soul as he approached the sunset years.

Once again Memphis and the nation have paused to pay tribute to William Christopher Handy, and to set apart as a national shrine the street where first burst upon the air the blues notes about St. Louis, Memphis, and Beale itself; but echoing down the halls of time will be the penetrating melodies of his hymns and anthems, with messages of love and hope and faith.

Among his favorites were:

"Stand on That Sea of Glass," " 'Tis The Old Ship of Zion," "The Bridegroom Has Done Come," "Steal Away To Jesus," "I'll Be There In The Mornin'," "I've Heard Of A City Called Heaven," "The Rough Rocky Road (I'm Most Done With Travelin'," and "I Want Jesus To Walk With Me."

One of his great anthems, "They That Sow in Tears Shall Reap In Joy," taken from the 126 Psalm, was sung by the Pendleton Presbyterian Church choir at an Overton Park Shell vesper service in the summer of 1955. The same group sang it again on Beale Street, at a memorial service for W. C. Handy, after his death in 1958.

This is the story he told about a song which has gone round the world, and of which he was quite proud:

"Sure, I wrote the blues in Pee Wee's saloon and up in Greasy Plant. But it was on a streetcar, a Walker Avenue car, that this one came to me. It is the finale to 'Hail To The Spirit of Freedom.'

"Never sell the blues short," he cautioned. "Blues are to music what Paul Lawrence Dunbar's poetry is to literature. Pure folk expression, which has to be the fundamental of art. The truthful, accurate preservation of what comes from people's hearts and souls."

So everybody gave a half bushel of corn.

In the late 1600's, all citizens of the New England colonies supported Harvard University by voluntary taxation. A fair gift, they decided, was a half bushel of corn. A portion of their harvest.

Today, as then, voluntary gifts are one of our colleges' main means of support.

This and the community spirit of giving is what made higher education grow.

A portion of your harvest can keep it growing.

Give to the college of your choice.

THE BELL WITH THE CRACK

When America had the opportunity a few years ago to have the crack in the two-hundred-and-thirteen-year-old Liberty Bell remedied, the answer was a firm NO and a soft "We like the crack."

The bell foundry in London that originally cast the historic bell in 1751 offered to have it shipped back to England. As a friendly gesture they would break up the bell, melt it and recast it into a perfect bell. After brief deliberation the keepers of the bell informed the English foundry that much as Americans appreciated the offer, they had decided to reject it.

The cracked Liberty Bell is a cherished symbol of America's struggle for freedom. Just as a man's facial lines and creases are a symbol of some of the strain and stress he has survived, so the crack in the Liberty Bell helps Americans remember that their forefathers did not win liberty for this country and its people without extensive fractures.

Today most Americans consider the Liberty Bell with its wide crack an important part of their heritage, an emblem of liberty to be cherished, not changed. The Liberty Bell, mounted on what is believed to be its original handhewn yoke and frame, is enshrined in Independence Hall in Philadelphia, site of the signing of the Declaration of Independence. The bell is twelve feet in circumference at the lip and weights two thousand and eighty pounds. For safety it is rigidly supported and is mute. It is feared that if the bell is ever struck violently again, the crack will deepen and perhaps destroy the bell.

The bell rang with solemn harmoney on such momentous occasions as the adoption of the Declaration of Independence, July 8, 1776, and at the proclamation of peace on April 16, 1783. It tolled the death of George Washington and announced the election of Thomas Jefferson. On July 4, 1826, the bell's sonorous notes celebrated the fiftieth birthday of the United States of America. On July 8, 1835, while tolling for the funeral cortege of John Marshall, Chief Justice of the Supreme court and one of the original signers of the Declaration of Independence, the bell cracked.

Fearing the crack would eventually destroy the historic bell, officials ordered it taken down from the tower. Several times in the nineteenth century it was on a stand, separated from its yoke. For a time, it hung from the ceiling, supported by a chain of thirteen links. About 1895, mounted on its old wooden frame and protected by a large glass case, the bell was displayed in the Assembly Room and in the tower room.

Because of the fame of the bell authorities later permitted it to travel to several important national and international expositions, including Chicago in 1893 and San Francisco in 1915. The bell was on display but never rung.

Young people of this day and age may view lightly the need for an official town bell in 1752 to announce important events. Today's television announcers enter our homes, bringing us on-the-spot coverage and reports of events that have occurred only minutes before. Not so two hundred years ago. Instead, a bell in the town square clanged out important announcements and townsmen quickly gathered to learn the news.

Back in 1751 when a tower to house a grand staircase and a bell were to be added to the Statehouse in Philadelphia, leaders wanted a fine bell to commemorate the fiftieth year of the province of Pennsylvania. Here is part of a letter written November 1, 1751, ordering the bell from the London foundry:

Let the bell be cast by the best workmen, and examined carefully before it is shipped, with the following words, well shapen in large letters round it, viz:

"By order of the Assembly of the Province of Pennsylvania for the State House in the City of Philadelphia, 1752."

And underneath:

"Proclaim liberty throughout all the land unto all the inhabitants thereof.

--Lev. XXV 10."

Statesmen saw a similarity between Pennsylvania's liberty, won after fifty years of work and struggle, and the Biblical jubilee liberty. To the men who ordered the bell the verse chosen was most appropriate, even though they could not foresee the full portent of the words.

In 1752 the bell arrived safely from England. But when it was struck with a hammer to test it, the bell cracked. Not wanting to delay by returning the bell to England, statesmen ordered bell founders in Philadelphia to remedy the fault. They broke up the bell, melted They broke up the bell, melted the bronze, added more copper to make it less brittle, and recast the bell. The second bell was also defective and it was again broken, melted and recast. The third casting is the bell now in Independence Hall.

During the Revolution, when the bell was in danger of being captured by the British and melted down for cannon balls, patriots lugged it down from the tower by night, loaded it into a farmer's wagon and hauled it off to Allentown, Pennsylvania. There it was hidden for nearly a year under the floor of a church. When the British troops had withdrawn, the bell was transported back to the Statehouse.

In spite of its inscription, "Proclaim liberty throughout all the land," the bell was not called the Liberty Bell until much later. Instead it was known as the Old Statehouse Bell or the Independence Bell. It was not until after 1839 that the Liberty Bell received its name, and that name probably first appeared in print in 1848.

In recent years the massive hand-hewn beam that supports the bell weakened and the bronze pedestal on which the yoke rests vibrated noticeably. Repairs were in order. In 1962 the bell was carefully lowered onto a specially prepared platform. Skilled technical employees removed the iron reinforcing plate which had been installed in the yoke in 1929, replacing this with a modern steel T-beam.

A question long puzzling those interested in historical data about the cracked bell was the nature of the wood in the heavy beam. No one was allowed to remove a splinter of wood for examination. However, now the question is answered: According to forestry experts who inspected the wood during the repair job, the beam is slippery elm, or hackberry. The yoke, skillfully repaired, is back in place supporting the Liberty Bell, with authorities breathing a bit easier.

No one living has heard the Liberty Bell, for it has never actually been rung since 1835. The famous crack in the old bell is prevented from widening by a mechanical device, called a spider, installed inside the bell. It equalizes the weight strain and holds the bell at all times in a safe position. But the bell was tapped lightly at the beginning of World War I to emphasize that freedom was being threatened. At the end of World War II the bell was tapped with a rubber hammer. Broadcast by radio, its tones proclaimed again liberty throughout the land.

From its beginning America was meant to be free. Those who pioneered this land did so that they might be free to speak, to work, to govern themselves, to worship God as they pleased. Travelers from all over the United States and the world, including heads of other governments and United States presidents, come to Independence Hall to see the Liberty Bell, to touch it gently with awe and to offer a prayer of thanksgiving for the freedom the big bell stands for.

The crack in the old Liberty Bell is a mute warning that freedom must be defended today. The freedom the Liberty Bell stands for has never been easily won or kept, and it is as important today as it was two hundred years ago.

Women's Day.

WHILE awaiting shipment overseas from a Southern Arizona Army base, our group was assigned a number of what we considered degrading duties for combat soldiers. The crowning indignity came on the day before we were to ship out -- we were assigned to seed the lawn in front of the general's quarters. All morning we worked, spading, hoeing, and sowing grass seed.

During our lunch break several of us made a visit to the post exchange. That afternoon we finished seeding the general's lawn--with turnip, pansy, spinach and watermelon seeds.

Minister's Wife Dons Miniskirt

LONDON (AP) — When the shapely wife of the new minister showed up at the church youth club in a miniskirt, the boys besieged her with requests for dates.

They did not get them, but Judith Rydings, 23, had some new sounding things to say about preachers' wives.

"I see no reason why vicars' wives should be dowdy," Mrs. Rydings said. "I think the church must create a modern image.

"I want the teen-agers' confidence, and I think I'm getting it. I should add that I'm very flattered."

Her husband is the Rev. Donald Rydings of St. Mark's, an Anglican church in nearby Bourne End. Now serving as church missioner, he will be inducted as vicar next month.

With her miniskirt, pretty Mrs. Rydings wore black fishnet stockings studded with diamond designs and her dark hair cut in a short bob.

Her skirts were four inches above her knees.

In Britain, vicars' wives usually wear tweedy suits and pass around cucumber and watercress sandwiches at village fetes and garden parties.

Not Mrs. Rydings.

She said her husband approves of her attitude.

THE BELL WITH THE CRACK

When America had the opportunity a few years ago to have the crack in the two-hundred-and-thirteen-year-old Liberty Bell remedied, the answer was a firm NO and a soft "We like the crack."

The bell foundry in London that originally cast the historic bell in 1751 offered to have it shipped back to England. As a friendly gesture they would break up the bell, melt it and recast it into a perfect bell. After brief deliberation the keepers of the bell informed the English foundry that much as Americans appreciated the offer, they had decided to reject it.

The cracked Liberty Bell is a cherished symbol of America's struggle for freedom. Just as a man's facial lines and creases are a symbol of some of the strain and stress he has survived, so the crack in the Liberty Bell helps Americans remember that their forefathers did not win liberty for this country and its people without extensive fractures.

Today most Americans consider the Liberty Bell with its wide crack an important part of their heritage, an emblem of liberty to be cherished, not changed. The Liberty Bell, mounted on what is believed to be its original hand-hewn yoke and frame, is enshrined in Independence Hall in Philadelphia, site of the signing of the Declaration of Independence. The bell is twelve feet in circumference at the lip and weights two thousand and eighty pounds. For safety it is rigidly supported and is mute. It is feared that if the bell is ever struck violently again, the crack will deepen and perhaps destroy the bell.

The bell rang with solemn harmoney on such momentous occasions as the adoption of the Declaration of Independence, July 8, 1776, and at the proclamation of peace on April 16, 1783. It tolled the death of George Washington and announced the election of Thomas Jefferson. On July 4, 1826, the bell's sonorous notes celebrated the fiftieth birthday of the United States of America. On July 8, 1835, while tolling for the funeral cortege of John Marshall, Chief Justice of the Supreme court and one of the original signers of the Declaration of Independence, the bell cracked.

Fearing the crack would eventually destroy the historic bell, officials ordered it taken down from the tower. Several times in the nineteenth century it was on a stand, separated from its yoke. For a time, it hung from the ceiling, supported by a chain of thirteen links. About 1895, mounted on its old wooden frame and protected by a large glass case, the bell was displayed in the Assembly Room and in the tower room.

Because of the fame of the bell authorities later permitted it to travel to several important national and international expositions, including Chicago in 1893 and San Francisco in 1915. The bell was on display but never rung.

Young people of this day and age may view lightly the need for an official town bell in 1752 to announce important events. Today's television announcers enter our homes, bringing us on-the-spot coverage and reports of events that have occurred only minutes before. Not so two hundred years ago. Instead, a bell in the town square clanged out important announcements and townsmen quickly gathered to learn the news.

Back in 1751 when a tower to house a grand staircase and a bell were to be added to the Statehouse in Philadelphia, leaders wanted a fine bell to commemorate the fiftieth year of the province of Pennsylvania. Here is part of a letter written November 1, 1751, ordering the bell from the London foundry:

Let the bell be cast by the best workmen, and examined carefully before it is shipped, with the following words, well shapen in large letters round it, viz:

"By order of the Assembly of the Province of Pennsylvania for the State House in the City of Philadelphia, 1752."

And underneath:

"Proclaim liberty throughout all the land unto all the inhabitants thereof.

--Lev. XXV 10."

Statesmen saw a similarity between Pennsylvania's liberty, won after fifty years of work and struggle, and the Biblical jubilee liberty. To the men who ordered the bell the verse chosen was most appropriate, even though they could not foresee the full portent of the words.

In 1752 the bell arrived safely from England. But when it was struck with a hammer to test it, the bell cracked. Not wanting to delay by returning the bell to England, statesmen ordered bell founders in Philadelphia to remedy the fault. They broke up the bell, melted They broke up the bell, melted the bronze, added more copper to make it less brittle, and recast the bell. The second bell was also defective and it was again broken, melted and recast. The third casting is the bell now in Independence Hall.

During the Revolution, when the bell was in danger of being captured by the British and melted down for cannon balls, patriots lugged it down from the tower by night, loaded it into a farmer's wagon and hauled it off to Allentown, Pennsylvania. There it was hidden for nearly a year under the floor of a church. When the British troops had withdrawn, the bell was transported back to the Statehouse.

In spite of its inscription, "Proclaim liberty throughout all the land," the bell was not called the Liberty Bell until much later. Instead it was known as the Old Statehouse Bell or the Independence Bell. It was not until after 1839 that the Liberty Bell received its name, and that name probably first appeared in print in 1848.

In recent years the massive hand-hewn beam that supports the bell weakened and the bronze pedestal on which the yoke rests vibrated noticeably. Repairs were in order. In 1962 the bell was carefully lowered onto a specially prepared platform. Skilled technical employees removed the iron reinforcing plate which had been installed in the yoke in 1929, replacing this with a modern steel T-beam.

A question long puzzling those interested in historical data about the cracked bell was the nature of the wood in the heavy beam. No one was allowed to remove a splinter of wood for examination. However, now the question is answered: According to forestry experts who inspected the wood during the repair job, the beam is slippery elm, or hackberry. The yoke, skillfully repaired, is back in place supporting the Liberty Bell, with authorities breathing a bit easier.

No one living has heard the Liberty Bell, for it has never actually been rung since 1835. The famous crack in the old bell is prevented from widening by a mechanical device, called a spider, installed inside the bell. It equalizes the weight strain and holds the bell at all times in a safe position. But the bell was tapped lightly at the beginning of World War I to emphasize that freedom was being threatened. At the end of World War II the bell was tapped with a rubber hammer. Broadcast by radio, its tones proclaimed again liberty throughout the land.

From its beginning America was meant to be free. Those who pioneered this land did so that they might be free to speak, to work, to govern themselves, to worship God as they pleased. Travelers from all over the United States and the world, including heads of other governments and United States presidents, come to Independence Hall to see the Liberty Bell, to touch it gently with awe and to offer a prayer of thanksgiving for the freedom the big bell stands for.

The crack in the old Liberty Bell is a mute warning that freedom must be defended today. The freedom the Liberty Bell stands for has never been easily won or kept, and it is as important today as it was two hundred years ago.

Women's Day.

WHILE awaiting shipment overseas from a Southern Arizona Army base, our group was assigned a number of what we considered degrading duties for combat soldiers. The crowning indignity came on the day before we were to ship out -- we were assigned to seed the lawn in front of the general's quarters. All morning we worked, spading, hoeing, and sowing grass seed.

During our lunch break several of us made a visit to the post exchange. That afternoon we finished seeding the general's lawn--with turnip, pansy, spinach and watermelon seeds.

REDUCES DRAFT CALLS -- President Johnson, resting at his Texas ranch, meets newsmen with Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara announcing that next year's draft calls will be substantially reduced, almost by half, and that "no sharp increases are planned" in the bombing raids against North Viet Nam.

Minister's Wife Dons Miniskirt

LONDON (AP) — When the shapely wife of the new minister showed up at the church youth club in a miniskirt, the boys besieged her with requests for dates.

They did not get them, but Judith Rydings, 23, had some new sounding things to say about preachers' wives.

"I see no reason why vicars' wives should be dowdy," Mrs. Rydings said. "I think the church must create a modern image.

"I want the teen-agers' confidence, and I think I'm getting it. I should add that I'm very flattered."

Her husband is the Rev. Donald Rydings of St. Mark's, an Anglican church in nearby Bourne End. Now serving as church missioner, he will be inducted as vicar next month.

With her miniskirt, pretty Mrs. Rydings wore black fishnet stockings studded with diamond designs and her dark hair cut in a short bob.

Her skirts were four inches above her knees.

Not Mrs. Rydings.

She said her husband approves of her attitude.

To Serve Successful Souffles

Souffles to serve with pride are the sign of a skillful cook. Simply by keeping a few basic pointers in mind, anyone can prepare a company-perfect souffle.

To begin, the egg whites should be at room temperature. Remove the shell eggs from the refrigerator and separate whites from yolks. Allow the whites to remain at room temperature for about one hour.

To keep the yolks fresh, place them in a clean jar that has a tight fitting cover. Add water to cover yolks and close the cover tightly before placing in the refrigerator.

Before beating the egg whites, check for any traces of yolk; even the tiniest portion of yolk will hold back the fluffiness of the whites when beaten. Be sure the bowl and beaters are very clean and dry.

Electric mixers make the puffiest souffles. However, one must be careful to stop beating at the right moment. Whites should be at the just-stiff point: soft, moist peaks that stand, then bend slightly when the beater is removed. Just one turn too many can make the whites too dry to puff up the souffle to its highest.

When the recipe calls for a cooked sauce, prepare this first and while it cools whip the whites.

When the recipe calls for a hot mixture to be stirred into the yolks, stir in the sauce slowly so the heated sauce will cook the yolks just enough to give a firm base. If the sauce is folded into the yolks too rapidly, a thin runny base will be created which might ruin the souffle.

The critical point in creating a souffle is when the egg whites are folded in with the other mixture. The trick is to barely blend. Overmixing can reduce the volume of the whites, allowing some of the air to escape, and the baked souffle will turn out limp and deflated.

Be sure to use the size container called for in the recipe. The bottom of the souffle dish may be greased -- but not the sides. The sides should be clean so the souffle can soar to a lofty height.

A souffle can be kept waiting but not for more than 15 minutes. Just leave the souffle in the oven with the heat turned off. Serve as soon as possible within the 15-minute period.

Now you are ready to try these company-perfect souffles recommended by the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Consumer and Marketing Service. Serve souffles for vegetable dish, entree or dessert.

RECIPES FOR SUCCESSFUL SOUFFLES

APRICOT-EGGNOT SOUFFLE
(Dessert or entree accompaniment)

1 c. dried apricots
1/2 c. water
1/2 stick butter
1/2 c. sifted flour
1/4 tsp. salt
1-1/2 c. plain eggnog
4 egg yolks
1/2 c. sugar
1/2 tsp. rum extract
3/4 tsp. nutmeg
4 egg whites
3/4 c. flake coconut

For the sauce:
1 tblsp. cornstarch
1-1/2 c. eggnog
1/4 tsp. rum extract

Cook apricots in water until tender (about 20 minutes). Drain, dice and spread over bottom of 2-quart souffle baking dish. In saucepan, melt butter, blend in flour and salt. Gradually add eggnog, stirring until smooth and thickened. Remove from heat. In separate bowl beat together yolks and sugar until light and creamy. Into this same bowl gradually add 1/2 the eggnog mixture; then place in saucepan with remaining eggnog mixture. Stir and cook over low heat for about 1 minute. Remove from heat and cool slightly before adding run extract and nutmeg. While cooked mixture cools beat egg whites until stiff, but not dry. Fold whites into custard; fold in coconut. Pour into casserle. Bake at 375 degrees for 60 to 70 minutes.

To prepare sauce: place cornstarch in saucepan and gradually stir in eggnog. Cook, stirring constantly, until smooth and slightly thickened. Remove from heat and cool slightly. Add rum extract. Serve warm over fresh-from-the-oven souffle. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

CARROT SOUFFLE
(Vegetable or entree)

6 tblsp. butter
7 tblsp. flour
1-1/2 c. milk
3/4 c. egg whites (about 6)
1 -1/2 tsp. salt
1 tblsp. flour
1 c. grated raw carrots
4 egg yolks
1 tblsp. minced dried onion
1/4 tsp. black pepper

Heat a 1-1/2 qt. ungreased casserole in a 325 degree oven. Melt butter, add 7 tblsp. flour and stir in milk. Cook, stirring constantly, until uniformly thickened. In separate bowl, blend 1 tblsp. flour into carrots and add beaten yolks, onion and pepper. Blend this mixture into the hot white sauce. Add salt to egg whites and beat until stiff and glossy, but not dry. Fold 1/4 carrot mixture at a time into egg whites. Pour combined mixture into hot casserole. Bake at 325 degrees 60-70 minutes, or until set. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Cook apricots in water until tender (about 20 minutes). Drain, dice and spread over bottom of 2-quart souffle baking dish. In saucepan, melt butter, blend in flour and salt. Gradually add eggnog, stirring until smooth and thickened. Remove from heat. In separate bowl beat together yolks and sugar until light and creamy. Into this same bowl gradually add 1/2 the eggnog mixture; then place in saucepan with remaining eggnog mixture. Stir and cook over low heat for about 1 minute. Remove from heat and cool slightly before adding rum extract and nutmeg. While cooked mixture cools beat egg whites until stiff, but not dry. Fold whites into custard; fold in coconut. Pour into casserle. Bake at 375 degrees for 60 to 70 minutes.

To prepare sauce: place cornstarch in saucepan and gradually stir in eggnog. Cook, stirring constantly, until smooth and slightly thickened. Remove from heat and cool slightly. Add rum extract. Serve warm over fresh-from-the-oven souffle. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

CARROT SOUFFLE
(Vegetable or entree)

6 tblsp. butter
7 tblsp. flour
1-1/2 c. milk
3/4 c. egg whites (about 6)
1 -1/2 tsp. salt
1 tblsp. flour
1 c. grated raw carrots
4 egg yolks
1 tblsp. minced dried onion
1/4 tsp. black pepper

Heat a 1-1/2 qt. ungreased casserole in a 325 degree oven. Melt butter, add 7 tblsp. flour and stir in milk. Cook, stirring constantly, until uniformly thickened. In separate bowl, blend 1 tblsp. flour into carrots and add beaten yolks, onion and pepper. Blend this mixture into the hot white sauce. Add salt to egg whites and beat until stiff and glossy, but not dry. Fold 1/4 carrot mixture at a time into egg whites. Pour combined mixture into hot casserole. Bake at 325 degrees 60-70 minutes, or until set. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Quintus Richards, New Madrid Pioneer, Dies

NEW MADRID -- Quintus Richards, 85, one of the oldest native citizens and retired business man, died Sunday at 12:30 p.m. in the Charleston Host House, where he had been a patient for two weeks. He was born in New Madrid on Feb. 8, 1881, son of the late Rufus and Cordelia Forster Richards, natives of Virginia.

He had operated a business in New Madrid and Sikeston for many years, and until his retirement about seven years ago, assisted in the office of county collector. He was a member of the Methodist church, the Masonic Lodge, the Elks Lodge at Cape Girardeau, and the Modern Woodman. In his early years he also worked on the Lee boat lines. He was married to the former Miss Arra Finley of Charleston.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Viverette Lee of Charleston, and Mrs. Scott Ruby of Sacramento, Calif.; one son, Elton Richards of Los Angeles, Calif; four grandchildren, Mrs. Charles L. Blanton III, of Sikeston, Mrs. Gary Williamson of Memphis, Tenn., Robert Ruby of Sacramento, Calif., and Lee Mollicone of Orange, Calif.; three great-grandchildren, Brete and Charles Blanton IV, both of Sikeston, and Arra Lynn Mollicone, Orange, Calif.

Services will be Tuesday at 2 p.m. in the Richards Funeral Chapel, with the Rev. Sylvan L. Nussbaum, Methodist minister, officiating. Burial will be in the Latham cemetery.

Catron Man Dies Thursday

CATRON -- Rufus Eakins, 63, died Thursday at Missouri Delta Community hospital, Sikeston. Born at Seibert, Ky., July 3, 1903, he was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wade Eakins.

He moved to Missouri in the early 1920's and had lived in the Catron area since then. He had been employed on the Ralph Hubbard farm since 1937.

Surviving are one son, Jackie Lynn Eakins; one daughter, Miss Nell Eakins; two sisters, Mrs. Nancy Chambers, and Mrs. Mamie DeVine, Evansville, Ind., and one brother, Lester Eakins, Poplar Bluff.

Services were Sunday afternoon at Ponder Funeral Home, New Madrid with the Rev. William Coomer officiating. Burial was in Mounds Park cemetery.

ITALIAN

Goldberg spoke shortly after Italy and its five cosponsors formally submitted the resolution for a study of the China problem. The plan called for recommendations "taking into account the existing situation and the political realities of the area."

Belgium, Bolivia, Brazil, Chile, Italy and Trinidad — Tobago submitted a resolution, originally drafted by Italy, for that purpose.

The resolution called for the committee to explore and study the situation in all its aspects and recommend "an equitable and practical solution" to the 1967 assembly session. It appealed "to all governments concerned to give assistance to the committee in its search for such a solution."

Explaining the proposal to correspondents, Italian Ambassador Piero Vinci said its object was to "break the deadlock" on the issue. He criticized a pending resolution to replace Nationalist China with Communist China in the United Nations and suggested that, in the interest of universality and self-determination, both should be here.

Italian Sen. Attilio Piccioni, outlining the proposal to the assembly Friday, said the committee should ask Peking if it really wants to be represented in the United Nations and if it will abide by the charter.

The committee also should determine what the position of Nationalist China would be if Peking were granted a seat, he said. The Nationalists, now confined to the island of Formosa, currently represent China in the Security Council and the General Assembly. The Nationalist government and the mainland Communist regime both have expressed strong opposition to a two-China policy giving representation to both.

Goldberg told the assembly Sept. 22 that the issue of seating Red China concerned whether Peking would abide by the charter and whether it would withhold "unacceptable" demands for the expulsion of the Nationalists.

He said the United States would oppose any effort to oust the Nationalists in favor of Peking.

Controversy

evaluate."

The magazine said Texas Gov. John B. Connally, who was riding with Kennedy and was wounded himself, was still certain that he and Kennedy were hit by two different bullets, not one as the Warren Commission determined.

So persistent are the attacks that in a Nov. 4 news conference President Johnson apparently left open a possibility that the circumstances of the assassination might be further explored -- if important new evidence should be forthcoming.

Johnson said: "I know of no evidence that would in any way cause any reasonable person to have a doubt about the Warren Commission. But if there is any evidence that's brought forth, I'm sure that the commission and the appropriate authorities will take action that may be justified."

The Warren Commission report made this summation: "The shots which killed President Kennedy and wounded Gov. (John B.(Connally (of Texas) were fired by Lee Harvey Oswald. On the basis of the evidence before the commission, it concludes that Oswald acted alone."

The commission found that the rifle fire had come entirely from a window of the Texas School Book Depository Building. Critics of the commission insist there is reason to believe some shots were fired from elsewhere.

Attorney Mark Lane asserts in his book "Rush to Judgment" that at least seven witnesses said they had seen "a puff, or puffs, of white smoke" from behind a wooden fence which the presidential car was about to pass.

On that point the Warren report had this to say: "In contrast to the testimony of witnesses who heard and observed shots fired from the depository, the commission's investigation has disclosed no credible evidence that shots were fired from anywhere else."

"Freedom has a certain revolutionary aspect, that all men are created equal, and the greatest revolutionary statement ever made when our founding fathers said that all men are created with unalienable rights. Liberty can be preserved when it is welded with truth, and can be preserved not by what a man says, but what he does."

The new charter members and the capacity in which they serve, in alphabetical order are:

C. D. Alcorn; Elmer Anderson, director and chairman of Boys Work; Don Baker, Joe Barnes Jr., Claude Benney, Dr. Bob Bennett, Harold Boardman, Pete Burns, Jerry Callow, Phil Campagna Jr., W. L. Clayton; Jere Cox, chairman of inter-club committee; Melvin Dockins, Keith Duncan, Ted Elliott, Stan Eudy.

Tom Gilmore, secretary-treasurer; Gene Godwin, director; Bob Greene; Sam Harbin, first vice president and chairman of membership committee; John Harper, president; Larry Harshbarger, second vice president and chairman of program committee; Ken Hawkins, co-chairman public relations committee; Bill Kiefer; E. E. "Bud" Sisson; Norman Spitzmiller; Jim Stallings; Tharon Stallings, director and chairman of new club building committee; Herb Stephens, Mike Taylor; Harold Vogel; Bob Watson, Bill Winans and Wayne Woodard.

Guests at the meeting were the Rev. Mr. Lively, Glenn Greene and Glenn Forbis.

Goldberg spoke shortly after Italy and its five cosponsors formally submitted the resolution for a study of the China problem. The plan called for recommendations "taking into account the existing situation and the political realities of the area."

Belgium, Bolivia, Brazil, Chile, Italy and Trinidad — Tobago submitted a resolution, originally drafted by Italy, for that purpose.

The resolution called for the committee to explore and study the situation in all its aspects and recommend "an equitable and practical solution" to the 1967 assembly session. It appealed "to all governments concerned to give assistance to the committee in its search for such a solution."

Explaining the proposal to correspondents, Italian Ambassador Piero Vinci said its object was to "break the deadlock" on the issue. He criticized a pending resolution to replace Nationalist China with Communist China in the United Nations and suggested that, in the interest of universality and self - determination, both should be here.

Italian Sen. Attilio Piccioni, outlining the proposal to the assembly Friday, said the committee should ask Peking if it really wants to be represented in the United Nations and if it will abide by the charter.

The committee also should determine what the position of Nationalist China would be if Peking were granted a seat, he said. The Nationalists, now confined to the island of Formosa, currently represent China in the Security Council and the General Assembly. The Nationalist government and the mainland Communist regime both have expressed strong opposition to a two - China policy giving representation to both.

Goldberg told the assembly Sept. 22 that the issue of seating Red China concerned whether Peking would abide by the charter and whether it would withhold "unacceptable" demands for the expulsion of the Nationalists.

He said the United States would oppose any effort to oust the Nationalists in favor of Peking.

evaluate."

The magazine said Texas Gov. John B. Connally, who was riding with Kennedy and was wounded himself, was still certain that he and Kennedy were hit by two different bullets, not one as the Warren Commission determined.

So persistent are the attacks that in a Nov. 4 news conference President Johnson apparently left open a possibility that the circumstances of the assassination might be further explored -- if important new evidence should be forthcoming.

Johnson said: "I know of no evidence that would in any way cause any reasonable person to have a doubt about the Warren Commission. But if there is any evidence that's brought forth, I'm sure that the commission and the appropriate authorities will take action that may be justified."

The Warren Commission report made this summation: "The shots which killed President Kennedy and wounded Gov. (John B.) Connally (of Texas) were fired by Lee Harvey Oswald. On the basis of the evidence before the commission, it concludes that Oswald acted alone."

The commission found that the rifle fire had come entirely from a window of the Texas School Book Depository Building. Critics tf the commission insist there is reason to believe some shots were fired from elsewhere.

Attorney Mark Lane asserts in his book "Rush to Judgment" that at least seven witnesses said they had seen "a puff, or puffs, of white smoke" from behind a wooden fence which the presidential car was about to pass.

On that point the Warren report had this to say: "In contrast to the testimony of witnesses who heard and observed shots fired from the depository, the commission's investigation has disclosed no credible evidence that shots were fired from anywhere else."

NEW YORK CITY Detective Charles Waldon takes a close look at some of the weapons confiscated by police in a series of raids on a right-wing organization known as the Minutemen. Members were said to be en route to make armed attacks on reputedly subversive camps in a three-state area when they were arrested. Sen. Thomas Dodd, D-Conn., said the arrests and confiscations would lead to a strong firearms control bill in the next Congress.

States Seek Fewer Federal Aid Strings

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—The old argument—that the federal government should keep its nose out of states' business so they can have more independence—is going to look pretty odd if an idea now gaining momentum causes a rumpus in Congress in 1967.

One of the ways in which the federal government helps states now is through grants-in-aid, meaning that if a state has a need for some specific program, which Washington approves, the government will give the state money to help pay the bill, provided the state matches the amount with money of its own.

The idea being batted around now - not new but with support of both the Democratic and Republican sides—is that the federal government should just hand over to the states some of the money it gets from taxes for the states to use for programs in which they don't have to match the federal help.

The idea has different shapes.

Walter W. Heller and Joseph Pechman of the Brookings Institution have proposed one; massive federal grants to the states without strings attached.

Heller was chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers under Presidents Johnson and John F. Kennedy before he resigned in 1964 to go back to teaching at the University of Minnesota. He has repeatedly made this kind of suggestion which Johnson so far has been unwilling to buy.

Then there are suggestions, made separately, by two Wisconsin members of the House, Rep. Henry S. Reuss, a Democrat, and Rep. Melvin R. Laird, chairman of the Republican Conference Committee.

Last week Reuss proposed the federal government should hand over $5 billion a year for five years to the states, with no strings, except that the states would have to have programs to reorganize and modernize their state and local governments.

Laird, who has talked about this since 1958, proposed that a certain percentage of taxes collected in each state be returned to the state yearly to help it solve its problem. The National Governor's Conference endorsed this idea last July.

Laird called this a first step toward decentralization of government. No matter what it's called, it's a plea for the federal government to share its taxes with the states and makes hash out of the argument that states should be more free and independent of the federal government.

It would let a state have it both ways: It would depend on the federal government to bail it out, whether it was unwilling or unable to raise enough money of its own to take care of its needs.

Reuss, who did attach one condition to his idea, is opposed to both the Heller and Laird plans on the grounds that giving a lot of money to states as they are now organized would be "pouring federal money down a rathole."

Curfew Law Rebellion Flares Anew

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — From the police car blared the amplified warning:

"Attention. Attention. It is now past 10 p.m. The curfew law is now in effect. Anyone remaining in the area under 18 years old will be arrested."

Teen-agers on crowded, neon-lit Sunset Boulevard — some conventionally dressed, many with shaggy beards, hair or clothing — have heard the message often recently.

It may mean a new face for the Sunset Strip, once a place for good food, adult night clubbing, elegant jazz; now a place for youngsters to dance frenetically and clog weekend traffic to a standstill. Many, having autos, can visit the area from distant parts of the Los Angeles area.

In two weekends of protesting the 10 p.m. curfew, more than 200 have been arrested on charges ranging from curfew violation to battery against a police officer. Saturday 400 policemen quelled disturbances involving 1,000.

Reactions — and proposed action — have been varied.

Some say the strip has become run-down, tawdry; the County Board of Supervisors should repeal the ordinance allowing teen-age dancing in night clubs.

Others — adults as well as teen-agers — say it is the curfew ordinance that should go.

Disturbances began when policemen increased enforcement of the curfew ordinance on the strip. This brought taunts, rock-and-egg throwing, some property damage, and a plethora of protesting signs and pamphlets arguing against the ordinance as the "shackling of 15-year-olds."

Owners of some clubs and restaurants had said unruly juveniles were hurting their business.

Some citizens talk about what they call teen-age anarchy, others about what they call the rights of teen-agers. Both sides agree that the time has come for the Sunset Strip to take on a new image.

Search Party Rescues Youths Lost in Cave

ROLLA, Mo. AP -- A search party rescued two youths who were lost in the Onyx Cave about 20 miles west of Rolla Saturday night.

The two, Jerry Jennings, 21, and Steve Sell, 19, had entered the cave with Jack Miller, 21, and Gene Curry, 18, for exploration. All are from Crocker, Mo.

Jennings and Sell followed one passage in the cave while Miller and Curry took another.

Miller and Curry came out three hours later. They waited 90 minutes, then started looking for Jennings and Sell. Their battery - powered lights burned out, Miller said, so they called the highway patrol.

Prof. J. C. Maxwell, adviser to the Spelunker Club at the University of Missouri at Rolla, organized a seven-member search party.

They found the two about 750 feet from the entrance. Jennings and Sell said their lights went out and they waited in the darkness to be rescued.

Funds to Be Used For Research

COLUMBIA, Mo. -- Funds from a National Institute of Arthritis and Metabolic Disease grant of $40,450 will be used to continue research and a teaching program for the control of diabetes and other doctrine disturbances in children by Dr. Robert L. Jackson, professor and chairman of pediatrics at the University of Missouri here.

Activities in the program include two specialty clinics which are held at the Medical Center. The first, a weekly clinic for children with diabetes, is one of the largest of its type in the United States. The other clinic, also held weekly, is for children with other endocrine problems.

Woman to Quit Church If Dog Can't Take Communion

HALBERTON, England (AP)- A 76-year-old widow who takes her dog to church every Sunday said today if the dog is prevented from taking Communion with her she will stop going to church.

"My little dog Pip means everything to me," said Florence Cox. "She's all I've got. When I take Communion I give her a bit of the wafer and a little wine on my finger.

"No one has ever said this is wrong, and I see no harm in it. But if they stop me I shall stop attending church."

The vicar, the Rev. Arthur Jones of St. Andrew's church said: "I don't go along with passing consecrated wafers or wine to a dog, and I do not think anyone else would."

One who does not approve is the vicar's superior, the Bishop of Exeter, Dr. Robert Mortimer.

"I'm very opposed to this," said the bishop. "I shall speak to the vicar about it."

Commenting, the London Sun said: "Whatever theological arguments are put forward about the place of dogs in church, Mrs. Cox can quote at least one saint in her evidence.

"St. Bernard wrote in the 12th century: 'Who loves me will love my dog'."

I WAS among a group of mothers and children waiting for the pediatrician's office to open one morning. When the doctor arrived and unlocked the door, one young mother remarked, "I suppose to him we look just like a sink full of dirty dishes."

NEW YORK CITY Detective Charles Waldon takes a close look at some of the weapons confiscated by police in a series of raids on a right-wing organization known as the Minutemen. Members were said to be en route to make armed attacks on reputedly subversive camps in a three-state area when they were arrested. Sen. Thomas Dodd, D-Conn., said the arrests and confiscations would lead to a strong firearms control bill in the next Congress.

States Seek Fewer Federal Aid Strings

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—The old argument—that the federal government should keep its nose out of states' business so they can have more independence—is going to look pretty odd if an idea now gaining momentum causes a rumpus in Congress in 1967.

One of the ways in which the federal government helps states now is through grants-in-aid, meaning that if a state has a need for some specific program, which Washington approves, the government will give the state money to help pay the bill, provided the state matches the amount with money of its own.

The idea being batted around now - not new but with support of both the Democratic and Republican sides—is that the federal government should just hand over to the states some of the money it gets from taxes for the states to use for programs in which they don't have to match the federal help.

The idea has different shapes.

Walter W. Heller and Joseph Pechman of the Brookings Institution have proposed one; massive federal grants to the states without strings attached.

Heller was chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers under Presidents Johnson and John F. Kennedy before he resigned in 1964 to go back to teaching at the University of Minnesota. He has repeatedly made this kind of suggestion which Johnson so far has been unwilling to buy.

Then there are suggestions, made separately, by two Wisconsin members of the House, Rep. Henry S. Reuss, a Democrat, and Rep. Melvin R. Laird, chairman of the Republican Conference Committee.

Last week Reuss proposed the federal government should hand over $5 billion a year for five years to the states, with no strings, except that the states would have to have programs to reorganize and modernize their state and local governments.

Laird, who has talked about this since 1958, proposed that a certain percentage of taxes collected in each state be returned to the state yearly to help it solve its problem. The National Governor's Conference endorsed this idea last July.

Laird called this a first step toward decentralization of government. No matter what it's called, it's a plea for the federal government to share its taxes with the states and makes hash out of the argument that states should be more free and independent of the federal government.

It would let a state have it both ways: It would depend on the federal government to bail it out, whether it was unwilling or unable to raise enough money of its own to take care of its needs.

Reuss, who did attach one condition to his idea, is opposed to both the Heller and Laird plans on the grounds that giving a lot of money to states as they are now organized would be "pouring federal money down a rathole."

Curfew Law Rebellion Flares Anew

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — From the police car blared the amplified warning:

"Attention. Attention. It is now past 10 p.m. The curfew law is now in effect. Anyone remaining in the area under 18 years old will be arrested."

Teen-agers on crowded, neon-lit Sunset Boulevard — some conventionally dressed, many with shaggy beards, hair or clothing — have heard the message often recently.

It may mean a new face for the Sunset Strip, once a place for good food, adult night clubbing, elegant jazz; now a place for youngsters to dance frenetically and clog weekend traffic to a standstill. Many, having autos, can visit the area from distant parts of the Los Angeles area.

In two weekends of protesting the 10 p.m. curfew, more than 200 have been arrested on charges ranging from curfew violation to battery against a police officer. Saturday 400 policemen quelled disturbances involving 1,000.

Reactions — and proposed action — have been varied.

Some say the strip has become run-down, tawdry; the County Board of Supervisors should repeal the ordinance allowing teen-age dancing in night clubs.

Others — adults as well as teen-agers — say it is the curfew ordinance that should go.

Disturbances began when policemen increased enforcement of the curfew ordinance on the strip. This brought taunts, rock-and-egg throwing, some property damage, and a plethora of protesting signs and pamphlets arguing against the ordinance as the "shackling of 15-year-olds."

Owners of some clubs and restaurants had said unruly juveniles were hurting their business.

Some citizens talk about what they call teen-age anarchy, others about what they call the rights of teen-agers. Both sides agree that the time has come for the Sunset Strip to take on a new image.

Search Party Rescues Youths Lost in Cave

ROLLA, Mo. AP -- A search party rescued two youths who were lost in the Onyx Cave about 20 miles west of Rolla Saturday night.

The two, Jerry Jennings, 21, and Steve Sell, 19, had entered the cave with Jack Miller, 21, and Gene Curry, 18, for exploration. All are from Crocker, Mo.

Jennings and Sell followed one passage in the cave while Miller and Curry took another.

Miller and Curry came out three hours later. They waited 90 minutes, then started looking for Jennings and Sell. Their battery - powered lights burned out, Miller said, so they called the highway patrol.

Prof. J. C. Maxwell, adviser to the Spelunker Club at the University of Missouri at Rolla, organized a seven-member search party.

They found the two about 750 feet from the entrance. Jennings and Sell said their lights went out and they waited in the darkness to be rescued.

Funds to Be Used For Research

COLUMBIA, Mo. -- Funds from a National Institute of Arthritis and Metabolic Disease grant of $40,450 will be used to continue research and a teaching program for the control of diabetes and other doctrine disturbances in children by Dr. Robert L. Jackson, professor and chairman of pediatrics at the University of Missouri here.

Activities in the program include two specialty clinics which are held at the Medical Center. The first, a weekly clinic for children with diabetes, is one of the largest of its type in the United States. The other clinic, also held weekly, is for children with other endocrine problems.

GO TO CHURCH SUNDAY

Woman to Quit Church If Dog Can't Take Communion

HALBERTON, England (AP)- A 76-year-old widow who takes her dog to church every Sunday said today if the dog is prevented from taking Communion with her she will stop going to church.

"My little dog Pip means everything to me," said Florence Cox. "She's all I've got. When I take Communion I give her a bit of the wafer and a little wine on my finger.

"No one has ever said this is wrong, and I see no harm in it. But if they stop me I shall stop attending church."

The vicar, the Rev. Arthur Jones of St. Andrew's church said: "I don't go along with passing consecrated wafers or wine to a dog, and I do not think anyone else would."

One who does not approve is the vicar's superior, the Bishop of Exeter, Dr. Robert Mortimer.

"I'm very opposed to this," said the bishop. "I shall speak to the vicar about it."

Commenting, the London Sun said: "Whatever theological arguments are put forward about the place of dogs in church, Mrs. Cox can quote at least one saint in her evidence. "St. Bernard wrote in the 12th century: 'Who loves me will love my dog'."

I WAS among a group of mothers and children waiting for the pediatrician's office to open one morning. When the doctor arrived and unlocked the door, one young mother remarked, "I suppose to him we look just like a sink full of dirty dishes."

Looking Back Over The Years

50 years ago
Nov. 21, 1916

The members of the older hunting club expect to come in about Saturday. Two or three are already here. They have had splendid luck, we hear, killing three deer, besides smaller game. Chas. Tanner, Dr. Handy Smith and Lyman Bowman were the fortunate ones. The younger club has had pretty good luck also as Ranney Applegate and Steve Humphrey killed a four-pointed buck the first of the week. Lyle, Will and John Malone left Wednesday night for a week's hunting near the Arkansas line.

A few car loads of rock have been received here for the new ron Mountain depot. Evidently work is to be started on the building soon, as other material is coming in soon.

W. C. Perry, chef at the Hotel Del Rey, was run down Wednesday night by a car driven by Linn Finley. Perry was crossing the street and in watching a car coming from the other direction, failed to see Finley. He sustained a sprained ankle and bruises upon his legs and arms.

Mrs. Orilla H. Piercy, wife of C.L. Piercy, living six miles southeast of Sikeston, died Tuesday of tuberculosis.

The moon sedan belonging to Gord Dill was destroyed by fire shortly after lunch Thursday. Mr. Dill had been working on the car out in the yard, and he went into the house to warm. When he returned he found the car a mass of flames.

New Madrid -- Mrs. Maggie Gray of Fredericktown arrived Monday on a visit to her daughter, Mrs. Fred Lewis, and other relatives and friends.

When Ward Denman left home Saturday afternoon on a business errand at Cape Girardeau, he seemed in good health but soon after reaching that city he suffered an acute attack of appendicitis, and was taken to Southeast Missouri Hospital, where an emergency operation for removal of the appendix was performed that night.

Morley -- Mr. and Mrs. Homer Carter are the proud parents of a son who arrived November 15. He is the third son and fourth child.

Wanda Ray, a second grade pupil, was scratched and bruised Friday when a car driven by Henry Cunningham knocked her down on the parking lot before the high school building. Wanda was going home for lunch at the time, and in her haste she ran out onto the driveway from between two cars and directly in front of Cunningham's machine.

Landers Ridge -- Margaret and Mildred Crosno, who are attending school in Cape Girardeau, spent the weekend at home with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Crosno.

Sikeston's school teachers will receive an extra $20 per month following a decision by the local board of education to allow teachers the increase.

Mr. and Mrs. John Utley of Crowder are parents of a daughter born on Friday night at the Southeast Missouri Hospital in Cape Girardeau.

Airport notes. James W. Ward of Sikeston flew a Piper Cub to Jonesboro, Ark., Sunday on his first solo cross-country and returned.

Everett Lee Foy, Lilbourn made his firt solo flight Sunday in a Piper Cub.

Mr. and Mrs. Dillon Ross are parents of a daughter born last Friday at Southeast Missouri Hospital in Cape Girardeau.

ANN LANDERS
Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: The letter from "Wall Street Warrior" was an eye-opener. I am glad to know there is at least one man in the world who is too tired for sex.

I'm 53. My first husband died when he was 50 and I think I know what killed him. My second husband was also after me night and day. I had to divorce him to get some rest. Two years later I married a man 62 thinking I'd be out of danger. He's the worst of the lot.

Your column is a post-graduate course in living. Thank you for it. -- GEMINI

Dear Ann: What a rotten trick you pulled on every love-starved wife in America. I wonder if you know how much trouble you cause. My Lochinvar has been giving me the old routine "I'm dead tired beating my brains out making a living for you and the kids -- bla bla bla." I've been saying it is not normal for a man 38 years old to be too tired for love no matter how hard he works at his job. Then you come along with your lousy column and take HIS side. He has talked of nothing else for two days. Why don't you retire)-- MAD

Dear Ann: I wish I could trade places with Wall Street Warrior's wife. She doesn't know how lucky she is. My husband thinks sex is the answer to everything -- tension, sleeplessness, worry, headache. Where he got this crazy idea I'll never know but it has been the bane of my existence for 15 years. I wonder if I'm the only woman in the world who is married to such a nut. Ask around, willyou? -- PADUCAH SHIMMY QUEEN

Dear Ann: Please tell "Warrior" he is an ignorant boob. When will men learn that sex and love are not the same thing? A simple, "I love you," a warm carass, or a sweet kiss on the cheek would keep most hard-working, floor-scrubbing, baby-tending wives happy for a week. In fact, a little affection WITHOUT sex as the objective, would be darned welcome. Women get tired, too, you know. -- MADELINE

Dear Ann: "Warrior" had a lot to say about women, most of it rubbish. Funny how some men can be so smart when it comes to business and so stupid when it comes to the female psyche. Warrior complained because his wife's timing was poor. He resented her bringing up money matters when he was in an amorous mood.

Even the dumbest wife knows that the only way to get anything extra out of a husband is to nail him when he feels romantic. Any wife who tries to get a new vacuum sweeper, or a new rug out of the old man by explaining that she NEEDS one is out of her mind. -- BEEN THERE AND BACK.

Dear Ann: Why don't men wise up? The reason women attach so much importance to sex is because it's the only method of communication open to us. Men don't talk anymore. They turn on the TV, or bury their noses in the newspaper, or just fall asleep. The only way a wife can win the battle for her husband's attention is to use her strongest weapon. -- CHICKADEE

Dear Ann Landers: Where do all the tired men come from? When I was single I never ran into a man who was too tired for anything. What is there about the marriage ceremony that creates such exhaustion? If you know will you please let me in on it? -- LOLLYPOP

Dear Lollypop and Readers: Tomorrow I will let you all in on plenty. I'm going to print what I regard as the best reply to the Wall Street Warriors. See you here. -- ANN LANDERS

Economists Say Arts Must Have Aid to Survive

By BOB MONROE

NEW YORK (AP) — The professional performing arts in America, which now need more than $20 million a year in contributions to survive, are going to require three times that amount by 1975, a team of economists predicts.

Their study of the performing arts — dance, drama, opera and music — made for the Twentieth Century Fund attributes this monetary problem to the technology of the live performance which "leaves little room for labor-saving innovations."

"No one has yet succeeded in decreasing the human effort expended at a live performance of a 45-minute Schubert quartet much below a total of three man hours," Princeton University economists William J. Baumol and William G. Bowen wrote in the study made public Sunday.

Since increased costs in the arts cannot be offset by increased productivity, "the performing arts are largely outside the magic cycle of economic progress," said their report titled "Performing Arts — the Economic Dilemma."

The Bowen-Baumol study, three years in preparation, put in dollar-and-cent detail a statement that these arts cannot survive on the box office alone.

Americans spent $127 million on admissions in 1929 and $433 million in 1963 but figures in the report based on population growth and the relative value of the dollar showed a 25 per cent decline in disposable personal income spent on the arts.

As for the artists, "in many ways, the working conditions of the performer fall below what might be considered reasonable standards," it said, with the average annual income of a singer, dancer, actor or musician given as $7,275.

The survey did not cover motion pictures; the radio, television, or recording industries; visual arts or amateur efforts.

WHEN Vice Adm. William F. Raborn, head of CIA, was in the Pentagon, his staff operated most of the time on a standard six-day work week, often longer. To a subordinate who complained of pressing comestic errands, Raborn advised, "I recognize you can't use Saturdays to get groceries any more. Use Thursday evenings or, even better, get your wife to do the marketing the way I do. That's called leadership."

Graft Is Stumbling Block On Path to Viet Victory

By RAY CROMLEY
Washington Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

CAN THO, Viet Nam (NEA)

The former province chief was an earnest young army colonel.

"When I went to my province up north of here, the deputy province chief for finance offered me 600,000 piasters ($5,100) and said that this money was not recorded in the books. He said I could use the funds to set up my own spy system or for any purpose I desired.

"He said there would be another 100,000 piasters ($870) a month which would not have to be accounted for. He said he would put them at my disposal. He said he would manage the paperwork in reporting to Saigon.

"He said this was extra money that Saigon did not know about.

"I reported him and had him demoted to a simple clerk in a tribal area in the highlands.

"I then called in the province deputies, the district chiefs and the merchants and told them what I had done.

"I told them I knew there had been corruption in the past and that they had taken part in it. I would forget the past, I said, but there would be no more payoffs and no more acceptance of payoffs.

"I said I would remove any official who took payoffs and take away the licenses of any merchants who attempted to bribe any official.

"I emphasized what I had done to my own deputy.

"Where did the 600,000 piasters come from? That's easy. Saigon sends cement, steel and other things. The province chief can fix the prices. Suppose something should cost 90 piasters. He can fix the price at 110. He will take 10 and the merchant take 10. There are many ways to work these things.

"But after setting this example, I had no further trouble. People didn't have to pay off officials to get business done as they did formerly.

"The graft shut off just like that.

"But then I left that province and was assigned to another place. Shortly after I left the old deputy province chief for finance—the one who had taken bribes and attempted to bribe me—was shifted back to the province into his old job.

"The province is now back in its old ways. The bribery and the payoffs are back."

Some U.S. officials say privately that graft is a major barrier to establishing confidence and winning the war in Viet Nam. They claim widespread graft is impossible to eradicate at this time.

The example of this young province chief shows graft and payoffs can be sharply cut if there is backing from above.

East European Reds Cool To Hanoi Terms

By HENRY S. BRADSHER

SOFIA, Bulgaria (AP) —East European Communists have a frustrated feeling of being dragged unwillingly behind what they consider the unrealistic onward rush of Hanoi's war policy.

This feeling was expressed privately and was reflected in public speeches at the Bulgarian Communist Party Congress which ended Saturday. Leaders from Eastern Europe and Communists from other areas attended.

The Congress heard more about China than Viet Nam. Except for the Romanians, the delegates in their speeches did not discuss the Vietnamese situation in detail, and most notably they did not set conditions for peace.

This was one of several recent signs that, in Eastern Europe and in Moscow, policies on Viet Nam are flexible. The European Communist governments want the war to end and therefore are not insisting on such conditions as U.S. withdrawal from Viet Nam before peace negotiations can open.

Some sources considered it significant that speakers at the Bulgarian Congress did not demand that U.S. air raids on North Viet Nam be halted. The suggestion is that the East European Communists want peace talks started despite the air raids.

But Hanoi is adamant.

It still is insisting publicly that the United States accept the whole package of its peace terms: end the raids, withdraw, leave Viet Nam to the Communists. So far as could be determined during the Congress, Hanoi's public position is also its private position.

"They're unrealistic," a Bulgarian said.

Morehouse Firemen Have Fund Drive

MOREHOUSE - The Women's Missionary Union of the First Baptist church met Thursday night at the home of Mrs. Bob Breeden. Attending were Mrs. Glen Bohannon, Mrs. Bernice Bryant, Mrs. Ed Orr, Mrs. Edna Boswell, Mrs. Mont Frank, Mrs. Pearl Starks, Mrs. Fred Laminack, Mrs. Marion Clark, Mrs. Melvin Clark, Mrs. C. D. Savage and Mrs. Tom Breeden.

Mrs. Bryant gave the remaining chapters of the W.M.U. book study, "Beneath the Himalayas." Mrs. Marion Clark read the prayer calendar, after which Mrs. Savage led in a closing prayer. Refreshments were served after the meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Woods and son of Edwardsville, Ill., were guests Thursday through Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Barnett. Also visiting the Barnetts on Friday night were Mr. and Mrs. Bill Woods of Cape Girardeau.

The Morehouse Volunteer Fire Department met Thursday night to see two fire-fighting films. Present were Fire Chief Willard Reynolds, Farris Sliger, Bill Reynolds, Bill Harp, Bill Ellis, William Acres, Ed Acres, Jack Taylor, I.B. McNew and Charlie Stroud.

Refreshments of coffee and doughnuts were served. Plans were discussed for a fund drive in order to enlarge the fire house. The Fire Department will sponsor projects such as cake and pie sales, rummage sales and a box supper. Another project sponsored will be a ball game in which members will participate.

IN HIS autobiography, Cellist, Gregor Piatigorsky tells about a time he was soloist at a concert conducted by Arturo Toscanini: "The maestro paced the dressing room in which I practiced, repeating, 'You are no good; I am no good.' 'Please, maestro,' I begged, 'I will be a complete wreck.' Then, as we walked onstage, he said, 'We are no good, but the others are worse. Come on, caro, let's go.' "

New Dishwashers

Smartly styled mobile dishwashers for 1967, with every model providing quiet but powerful super-surge washing action, were shown for the first time in Sikeston area Friday.

Carl Campbell, of Campbell Appliance said that the new convenient mobile units, which are simply rolled to the sink for hook-up, are available in a choice of three top-loading models and four front-loading type.

Of particular interest to families on the move or planning to build, said Mr. Campbell, is a conversion kit which makes it possible to change the new front-loading mobile dishwashers, if desired, into under-counter installations.

Q—Who is the author of the "Timothy Titcomb" letters?

A—Josiah Gilbert Holland, American editor and novelist.

GALS GOOD WITH MONEY

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. - Nearly two-thirds of the employes in banks today are women, and half the officers in your local bank are likely to be women by 1975, the president of the National Association of Bank Women told Minnesota members of the association at a meeting here.

Miss Eleanor A. Kropf, second vice-president of the Chase Manhattan Bank in New York City, reported that women have been entering banking, which was once completely "man's work", very rapidly since World War II.

Prayer
From The Upper Room

It is a good thing to give thanks unto the Lord, and to sing praises unto thy name, O most High. (Psalm 92:1)

PRAYER: O God, help us not to take Thy mercies for granted but with gratitude. We ask this in the name of Thy Son, praying as He taught us, "Our Father who art in heaven. . .Amen."

Mr. and Mrs. John Utley of Crowder are parents of a daughter born on Friday night at the Southeast Missouri Hospital in Cape Girardeau.

Airport notes. James W. Ward of Sikeston flew a Piper Cub to Jonesboro, Ark., Sunday on his first solo cross-country and returned.

Everett Lee Foy, Lilbourn made his first solo flight Sunday in a Piper Cub.

Mr. and Mrs. Dillon Ross are parents of a daughter born last Friday at Southeast Missouri Hospital in Cape Girardeau.

ANN LANDERS
Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: The letter from "Wall Street Warrior" was an eye - opener. I am glad to know there is at least one man in the world who is too tired for sex.

I'm 53. My first husband died when he was 50 and I think I know what killed him. My second husband was also after me night and day. I had to divorce him to get some rest. Two years later I married a man 62 thinking I'd be out of danger. He's the worst of the lot.

Your column is a post-graduate course in living. Thank you for it. -- GEMINI

Dear Ann: What a rotten trick you pulled on every love - starved wife in America. I wonder if you know how much trouble you cause. My Lochinvar has been giving me the old routine "I'm dead tired beating my brains out making a living for you and the kids -- bla bla bla." I've been saying it is not normal for a man 38 years old to be too tired for love no matter how hard he works at his job. Then you come along with your lousy column and take HIS side. He has talked of nothing else for two days. Why don't you retire)-- MAD

Dear Ann: I wish I could trade places with Wall Street Warrior's wife. She doesn't know how lucky she is. My husband thinks sex is the answer to everything -- tension, sleeplessness, worry, headache. Where he got this crazy idea I'll never know but it has been the bane of my existence for 15 years. I wonder if I'm the only woman in the world who is married to such a nut. Ask around, willyou? -- PADUCAH SHIMMY QUEEN

Dear Ann: Please tell "Warrior" he is an ignorant boob. When will men learn that sex and love are not the same thing? A simple, "I love you," a warm carass, or a sweet kiss on the cheek would keep most hard-working, floor - scrubbing, baby - tending wives happy for a week. In fact, a little affection WITHOUT sex as the objective, would be darned welcome. Women get tired, too, you know. -- MADELINE

Dear Ann: "Warrior" had a lot to say about women, most of it rubbish. Funny how some men can be so smart when it comes to business and so stupid when it comes to the female psyche. Warrior complained because his wife's timing was poor. He resented her bringing up money matters when he was in an amorous mood.

Even the dumbest wife knows that the only way to get anything extra out of a husband is to nail him when he feels romantic. Any wife who tries to get a new vacuum sweeper, or a new rug out of the old man by explaining that she NEEDS one is out of her mind. -- BEEN THERE AND BACK.

Dear Ann: Why don't men wise up? The reason women attach so much importance to sex is because it's the only method of communication open to us. Men don't talk anymore. They turn on the TV, or bury their noses in the newspaper, or just fall asleep. The only way a wife can win the battle for her husband's attention is to use her strongest weapon. -- CHICKADEE

Dear Ann Landers: Where do all the tired men come from? When I was single I never ran into a man who was too tired for anything. What is there about the marriage ceremony that creates such exhaustion? If you know will you please let me in on it? -- LOLLYPOP

Dear Lollypop and Readers: Tomorrow I will let you all in on plenty. I'm going to print what I regard as the best reply to the Wall Street Warriors. See you here. -- ANN LANDERS

Economists Say Arts Must Have Aid to Survive

By BOB MONROE

NEW YORK (AP) — The professional performing arts in America, which now need more than $20 million a year in contributions to survive, are going to require three times that amount by 1975, a team of economists predicts.

Their study of the performing arts — dance, drama, opera and music — made for the Twentieth Century Fund attributes this monetary problem to the technology of the live performance which "leaves little room for labor-saving innovations."

"No one has yet succeeded in decreasing the human effort expended at a live performance of a 45-minute Schubert quartet much below a total of three man hours," Princeton University economists William J. Baumol and William G. Bowen wrote in the study made public Sunday.

Since increased costs in the arts cannot be offset by increased productivity, "the performing arts are largely outside the magic cycle of economic progress," said their report titled "Performing Arts — the Economic Dilemma."

The Bowen-Baumol study, three years in preparation, put in dollar-and-cent detail a statement that these arts cannot survive on the box office alone.

Americans spent $127 million on admissions in 1929 and $433 million in 1963 but figures in the report based on population growth and the relative value of the dollar showed a 25 per cent decline in disposable personal income spent on the arts.

As for the artists, "in many ways, the working conditions of the performer fall below what might be considered reasonable standards," it said, with the average annual income of a singer, dancer, actor or musician given as $7,275.

The survey did not cover motion pictures; the radio, television, or recording industries; visual arts or amateur efforts.

WHEN Vice Adm. William F. Raborn, head of CIA, was in the Pentagon, his staff operated most of the time on a standard six-day work week, often longer. To a subordinate who complained of pressing comestic errands, Raborn advised, "I recognize you can't use Saturdays to get groceries any more. Use Thursday evenings or, even better, get your wife to do the marketing the way I do. That's called leadership."

Graft Is Stumbling Block On Path to Viet Victory

By RAY CROMLEY
Washington Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

CAN THO, Viet Nam (NEA)

The former province chief was an earnest young army colonel.

"When I went to my province up north of here, the deputy province chief for finance offered me 600,000 piasters ($5,100) and said that this money was not recorded in the books. He said I could use the funds to set up my own spy system or for any purpose I desired.

"He said there would be another 100,000 piasters ($870) a month which would not have to be accounted for. He said he would put them at my disposal. He said he would manage the paperwork in reporting to Saigon.

"He said this was extra money that Saigon did not know about.

"I reported him and had him demoted to a simple clerk in a tribal area in the highlands.

"I then called in the province deputies, the district chiefs and the merchants and told them what I had done.

"I told them I knew there had been corruption in the past and that they had taken part in it. I would forget the past, I said, but there would be no more payoffs and no more acceptance of payoffs.

"I said I would remove any official who took payoffs and take away the licenses of any merchants who attempted to bribe any official.

"I emphasized what I had done to my own deputy.

"Where did the 600,000 piasters come from? That's easy. Saigon sends cement, steel and other things. The province chief can fix the prices. Suppose something should cost 90 piasters. He can fix the price at 110. He will take 10 and the merchant take 10. There are many ways to work these things.

"But after setting this example, I had no further trouble. People didn't have to pay off officials to get business done as they did formerly.

"The graft shut off just like that.

"But then I left that province and was assigned to another place. Shortly after I left the old deputy province chief for finance—the one who had taken bribes and attempted to bribe me—was shifted back to the province into his old job.

"The province is now back in its old ways. The bribery and the payoffs are back."

Some U.S. officials say privately that graft is a major barrier to establishing confidence and winning the war in Viet Nam. They claim widespread graft is impossible to eradicate at this time.

The example of this young province chief shows graft and payoffs can be sharply cut if there is backing from above.

East European Reds Cool To Hanoi Terms

By HENRY S. BRADSHER

SOFIA, Bulgaria (AP) —East European Communists have a frustrated feeling of being dragged unwillingly behind what they consider the unrealistic onward rush of Hanoi's war policy.

This feeling was expressed privately and was reflected in public speeches at the Bulgarian Communist Party Congress which ended Saturday. Leaders from Eastern Europe and Communists from other areas attended.

The Congress heard more about China than Viet Nam. Except for the Romanians, the delegates in their speeches did not discuss the Vietnamese situation in detail, and most notably they did not set conditions for peace.

This was one of several recent signs that, in Eastern Europe and in Moscow, policies on Viet Nam are flexible. The European Communist governments want the war to end and therefore are not insisting on such conditions as U.S. withdrawal from Viet Nam before peace negotiations can open.

Some sources considered it significant that speakers at the Bulgarian Congress did not demand that U.S. air raids on North Viet Nam be halted. The suggestion is that the East European Communists want peace talks started despite the air raids.

But Hanoi is adamant.

It still is insisting publicly that the United States accept the whole package of its peace terms: end the raids, withdraw, leave Viet Nam to the Communists. So far as could be determined during the Congress, Hanoi's public position is also its private position.

"They're unrealistic," a Bulgarian said.

Morehouse Firemen Have Fund Drive

MOREHOUSE - The Women's Missionary Union of the First Baptist church met Thursday night at the home of Mrs. Bob Breeden. Attending were Mrs. Glen Bohannon, Mrs. Bernice Bryant, Mrs. Ed Orr, Mrs. Edna Boswell, Mrs. Mont Frank, Mrs. Pearl Starks, Mrs. Fred Laminack, Mrs. Marion Clark, Mrs. Melvin Clark, Mrs. C. D. Savage and Mrs. Tom Breeden.

Mrs. Bryant gave the remaining chapters of the W.M.U. book study, "Beneath the Himalayas." Mrs. Marion Clark read the prayer calendar, after which Mrs. Savage led in a closing prayer. Refreshments were served after the meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Woods and son of Edwardsville, Ill., were guests Thursday through Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Barnett. Also visiting the Barnetts on Friday night were Mr. and Mrs. Bill Woods of Cape Girardeau.

The Morehouse Volunteer Fire Department met Thursday night to see two fire-fighting films. Present were Fire Chief Willard Reynolds, Farris Sliger, Bill Reynolds, Bill Harp, Bill Ellis, William Acres, Ed Acres, Jack Taylor, I.B. McNew and Charlie Stroud.

Refreshments of coffee and doughnuts were served. Plans were discussed for a fund drive in order to enlarge the fire house. The Fire Department will sponsor projects such as cake and pie sales, rummage sales and a box supper. Another project sponsored will be a ball game in which members will participate.

IN HIS autobiography, Cellist, Gregor Piatigorsky tells about a time he was soloist at a concert conducted by Arturo Toscanini: "The maestro paced the dressing room in which I practiced, repeating, 'You are no good; I am no good.' 'Please, maestro,' I begged, 'I will be a complete wreck.' Then, as we walked onstage, he said, 'We are no good, but the others are worse. Come on, caro, let's go.' "

New Dishwashers

Smartly styled mobile dishwashers for 1967, with every model providing quiet but powerful super-surge washing action, were shown for the first time in Sikeston area Friday.

Carl Campbell, of Campbell Appliance said that the new convenient mobile units, which are simply rolled to the sink for hook-up, are available in a choice of three top-loading models and four front-loading type.

Of particular interest to families on the move or planning to build, said Mr. Campbell, is a conversion kit which makes it possible to change the new front-loading mobile dishwashers, if desired, into under-counter installations.

Q—Who is the author of the "Timothy Titcomb" letters?

A—Josiah Gilbert Holland, American editor and novelist.

GALS GOOD WITH MONEY

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. — Nearly two - thirds of the employes in banks today are women, and half the officers in your local bank are likely to be women by 1975, the president of the National Association of Bank Women told Minnesota members of the association at a meeting here.

Miss Eleanor A. Kropf, second vice - president of the Chase Manhattan Bank in New York City, reported that women have been entering banking, which was once completely "man's work", very rapidly since World War II.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Monday, Nov. 21, the 325th day of 1966. There are 40 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1877, Thomas A. Edison announced in Menlo Park, N. J., that he had invented a talking machine, the phonograph.

On this date:

In 1789, North Carolina ratified the United States Constitution.

In 1894, the Japanese captured Port Arthur, Manchuria.

In 1910, Russian author Leo Tolstoy died.

In 1940, John L. Lewis resigned as president of the CIO.

In 1943, U.S. forces were meeting stiff opposition from the Japanese in the Battle of Tarawa.

Ten years ago — Egyptian President Nasser declared that he would never become, as he put it, "the stooge or satellite or pawn or hireling of anybody." He said Egypt would remain free of all foreign ideologies and that the idea of trying to create an Arab empire or of trying to dominate such an empire is, in his words, "repugnant to Egypt and to me."

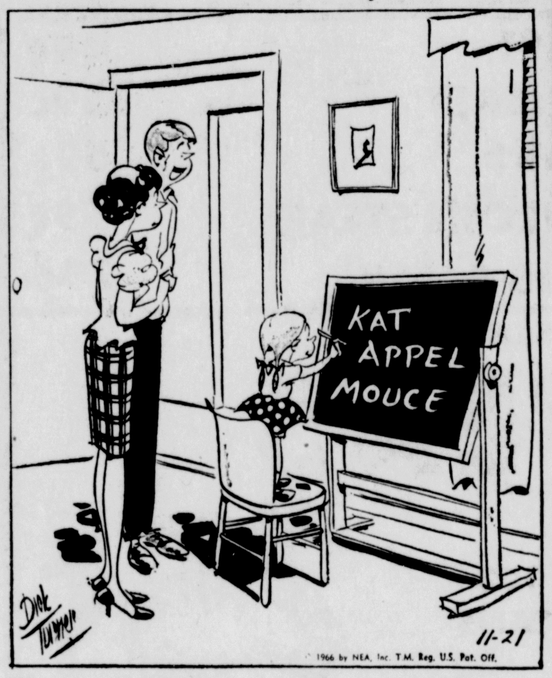

Five years ago — The Soviet Union accepted and Anglo-American proposal to resume three-power talks on a treaty to ban nuclear weapons tests.

One year ago — Austrian diplomats said Romania had opened talks with both the United States and North Viet Nam seeking to start negotiations to end the Viet Nam war.
